COPY of a MINUTE of the Wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company submitted to the consideration of the Chancellor of Exchequer.

THE facts stated in the memorial of Messrs. Hayne & Cater, and others, relative to the mismanagement of the country halls, may be entirely relied on; and it must not be understood that the errors, not to say frauds, therein mentioned, are solitary ones, or only of recent occurrence.

The manufacturers above referred to (Messrs. Hayne & Cater) have in their possession a variety of articles, several of which were exhibited at the interview of the wardens in Downing-street on the 17th instant, the whole of a quality averaging at least 1 d. per ounce worse than the standard, this being nearly 2 per cent. on the value of the silver, and 25 per cent. on the value of the fashion (the fashion being the sum charged beyond the value of the silver and duty, for workmanship and profit); thus the manufacturer, who is compelled to make his silver of the sterling quality in conducting his business, is at a disadvantage of 25 per cent. on the outlay for manufacture. Not a single article that has come into the possession of Messrs. Hayne & Cater during the past six months has been of standard quality.

For many years past the attention of the Goldsmiths' Company has from time to time been drawn to numerous cases of wares below standard which had been marked at the country halls; their attention has also been called to the circumstances attending the constitution of the companies, and the mode in which their business is done; and they conceive that when these circumstances are considered, surprise at the facts which have come to light will no longer be felt.

The country halls were established by Acts of the 12 Will. 3, c. 4, 1 Anne, c. 9, and 13 Geo. 3, c. 52; of those created by the first-mentioned statute, two (viz., Bristol and Norwich) have not been kept up, and are now entirely discontinued.

Those remaining are York, Chester, Sheffield, Birmingham, Exeter, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne. In most of these places there are a few manufacturers, who themselves compose the management of the company, and whose work forms the chief part of the work assayed and marked. The assayer is subject to their influence, if not under their direct control, and in some cases which have been brought to the notice of the Goldsmiths' Company is not capable of making an assay. At York, for instance, where there are only three or four manufacturers, the hall is or was at the back of the chief manufacturer's premises, and the assay master is, or was lately, one of his workmen.

The abuse in passing work below standard, important as it is, may not be the only one. The chief manufacturer at Exeter some time since had and may still have access, by means of a key in his own possession, to the marks, and therefore had power to mark any of his own work unknown to any of the other officers. This is capable of proof. The assay master at most of the halls has the sole custody of the diet, and of course previous to its trial may make it up as he finds it necessary to suit his purpose.

The fact is, that the persons at these places in whom the executive is reposed are in no way responsible. They are not responsible to a superior power or authority, and from their station are not responsible to public opinion.

The wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company having been asked to suggest the remedy for these abuses, their answer is, the entire abolition of the country halls, and they cannot see that there can be any valid reason adduced against this proceeding.

The objection which will most readily occur, is one which is easily answered. It will probably be urged that the obligation to send their work to Goldsmiths' Hall in London to be assayed would occasion delay and expense to the country manufacturer. The reply to this is, that whilst at the country halls there are only two hall days, and in some cases only one hall day in the week, at Goldsmiths' Hall there are six, on every one of which the whole business is done; so that considering the increased facilities now afforded of sending goods by railway, the country manufacturer would have his work assayed and marked as quickly as he can get it done now. In some instances there might be a small addition to his expense in the railway carriage ; but this would be compensated for to the honest manufacturer by other circumstances.

It is a fact that the workmen of Bath and Bristol send their goods to Exeter, a distance nearly equal to that of London, to be assayed ; thereby incurring the delay occasioned by there being two hall days at Exeter in the week. They rarely or ever send their work to London. For this the facts stated in the memorial relative to the assay of work at the Exeter hall will suggest a sufficient reason.

At the same time, manufacturers at Liverpool send their work to London instead of Chester, owing to the exposure of the incapacity of the assay master at Chester which took place some years ago.

The wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company consider that there is another matter to which the attention of Her Majesty's Government should be directed, and which is productive of much fraud ; they allude to the imitation of the marks used for stamping silver plate, which are put in common wares of base metal for purposes of deception, and for the prevention of which there is now no sufficient remedy.

COPY of a MEMORIAL received by the Wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company from the Manufacturers of Silver Spoons and Forks in London, dated the 6th day of November 1849, calling Attention to the MISMANAGEMENT of the COUNTRY HALLS.

To the Prime Warden, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths.

Gentlemen,

London, 6 November 1849.

As manufacturers of silver spoons and forks, we beg respectfully to call your attention to the mismanagement of the country halls, by which, through error or design, the public are defrauded, and the London manufacturer unable to carry on business on equal terms.

We have at this time in our possession forks bearing the Exeter mark, $2\frac{1}{2}$ dwts., 3 dwts., $3\frac{1}{2}$ dwts., and an assay of some others 6 dwts. worse than standard (while, as you are well aware, at the London hall the silver would be broken if $\frac{1}{2}$ dwt. worse) ; this makes a difference of about 1 d. or $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce on the value of the metal, which, although apparently small, is a manufacturer's profit.

One manufacturer at Exeter advertises that he has sold within the last few years 139,000 ounces ; and in this case alone, the $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per ounce the public are defrauded of amounts to nearly 900*l.*

Another important consideration which we would mention is, that British plate has been ever held in the highest repute by foreigners, chiefly owing to the confidence placed in its quality, the Government hall mark being considered a guarantee of its purity. It will be soon discovered the mark is not an index of purity, and then our characters will suffer, and foreign orders will not be given.

In Scotland some articles are sold with an imitation mark only. We have now one soup ladle made at Aberdeen worse 17 dwts., or nearly 6 d. per ounce less than the standard value.

As a remedy for this evil, and to protect the public, the trade generally, and the integrity of the Government stamp, we venture to suggest to you that application should be made to Government for a Bill, either to abolish altogether the country halls, or to place them under the control of the Goldsmiths' Company. By the former plan we think there would be little, if any, extra expense or trouble occasioned to country manufacturers, as those living at Bath, Bristol, and other places have now to send to Exeter, where the hall is only open two days in the week, while in London they have the opportunity of sending daily. By the latter plan they would have the same facility as at present, and a guarantee of accuracy by the company finding experienced assayers and officers responsible for the proper fulfilment of the duties.

Requesting the favour of your earnest consideration of this application,

We have, &c.

(signed) Hayne & Cater, 16, Red Lion-street, Clerkenwell, who have in their possession forks worse 2½ dwts., 3 dwts., and Scotch soup ladle, 17 dwts.

Henry Holland, 13, Smith-street, Northampton-square, has also in his possession 6 table forks 3½ dwts. worse than standard; also an assay of 24 forks at 6 dwts. worse.

George William Adams, 16, Hosier-lane, West Smithfield.

Elizabeth Eaton, 16, Jewin-crescent.

Charles Lias, 65, Crown-street.

Henry John Lias, 7, Salisbury-court, Fleet-street.

Robert Wallis, 6, President-street East, King-square.

COPY of a MINUTE of the Board of Inland Revenue, dated the 14th day of April 1851.

THE Chairman stated to the Board the wish of the Chancellor of the Exchequer that an inspection should be made of the assay offices at York, Chester, Sheffield, Birmingham, Exeter, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, with a view to ascertain the course of proceeding adopted at each of these offices in the assaying and marking of gold and silver plate, and whether or not it affords a sufficient security against any frauds or irregularities in the execution of the business, and in accounting for the duties.

The Board direct that the Inspector-general do proceed to the towns above-mentioned, and inspect the assay office at each of them, inquiring fully into the mode of transacting the business, and report to the Board the result of his inquiries.

Let this Minute be handed to the Inspector-general for his government.

COPY of so much of a REPORT of the Inspector-General of Stamps and Taxes, dated the 11th day of December 1851, as relates to the Assaying and Marking of GOLD and SILVER PLATE at Exeter, Newcastle, Chester, and York, and his Observations thereon.

EXETER.

THE Goldsmiths' Company at Exeter, which was established under the Act of the 12 Will. 3, cap. 4, is composed of four members only, being silversmiths resident there; two of whom are appointed annually by rotation, as "acting wardens," and a third as deputy warden. The persons acting as wardens at the time of this inspection were Mr. W. R. Sobey and Mr. John Stone, and as deputy warden, Mr. James Osmont.

The other officers are—

An assay master, Mr. Parkin, who was brought up to the silversmith trade, but now keeps a public-house.

A treasurer, Mr. Ferris.

A clerk, Mr. Peppitt.

The

The wardens are not paid officers; the deputy-warden receives 12*l.* per annum, and the assay master 60*l.* per annum, with half of the diet. The clerk is paid 10*l.* per annum by the treasurer out of the Government allowance of one per cent., which he gets for receiving and accounting for the duty.

The usual assay days are Wednesday and Thursday in each week.

A note or ticket is delivered with the plate to be assayed, containing the name and residence of the manufacturer, the date, the number and species of the articles, the gross weight, and the duty on the net weight after deducting the allowance of one-sixth for waste in the finishing. The tickets are sent weekly to the clerk, who enters the particulars thereof in a book kept for the purpose.

The plate is assayed and marked wholly by the assay master. The deputy warden sees the articles weighed, but is not present whilst they are assayed.

The assay master receives the duty and hands it to the deputy-warden, who pays it over to the treasurer. It is not, however, always received on the delivery of the plate; some of the manufacturers are allowed credit, they giving a bond to the treasurer as security.

An entry is made by the deputy warden of the particulars of the plate assayed on each day, and an abstract is made of the gross quantity of gold and silver assayed in each year, ending the 7th August, and the weight of the gold and silver in the diet box. The deputy warden also keeps a printed check receipt book, in which he fills up a receipt for the work, distinguishing the weight and the amount of the duty, which is delivered to the manufacturer, and the book containing the counterparts of such receipts is sent to the clerk once a quarter. The clerk compares it with the entries previously made by him from the tickets, and then makes out an account for the Stamp-office, which account he sends to the treasurer with the tickets; the treasurer then delivers the account and tickets to the distributor of stamps, and pays the duty; after which the clerk sends his book to the Stamp-office to be examined with the tickets.

The diet is deposited in a box with two locks, the keys of which are kept by the deputy warden and the assayer respectively. It is not sent to the Mint to be tried, because no requisition has ever been made for that purpose. It is kept till the end of the year, and is then sold, and the proceeds applied towards the expenses of the office.

The punches are kept in the same box as the diet. It is stated that the deputy warden is always in attendance when the box is opened; but it appears that it is then left open in the sole charge of the assay master. The deputy warden attends after the work has been assayed and marked, and the punches are then replaced in the box.

The charges for assaying and marking are $\frac{1}{2}$ d. an ounce for silver, 1*s.* for gold assays, and $\frac{1}{4}$ d. each for rings and other small articles.

The office and all the materials for assaying and marking, (including the punches) are provided by the company, excepting fuel, which is furnished by the assayer out of his allowance.

No work has been broken at this office for the last 12 months. It is a circumstance of very rare occurrence. If any work be broken as being worse than standard, it is noted accordingly on the ticket sent to the clerk.

The marks used at Exeter are—

The City arms (the Castle of Exeter).

The Lion passant.

The variable letter, which is changed annually at the election of wardens.

The Queen's head.

Work is received for assay from five manufacturers at Exeter, five at Bristol, two at Plymouth, and one at Devonport.

The names of the manufacturers are registered at the office, and their marks are impressed upon a copper-plate. Several of the manufacturers, however, occasionally impress on the plate the initials or names of the shopkeepers for whom they make the goods, instead of using their own marks; but these marks are also registered at the assay office, and the assay master states that he always knows by what manufacturer the goods are made.

REMARKS.

The mode of conducting the business at this office is by no means satisfactory. The only officer who takes any part in the proceedings is the deputy warden (himself a manufacturer), but he is not present during the operations of the assay master. The diet is kept in a box with two locks only, the keys of which are kept by the deputy warden and the assay master; whereas the Act requires that it shall be deposited in a box with three different locks, and that the keys shall be kept by the two wardens and the assayer; and this box, which also contains the punches, is left open in the sole charge of the assayer during the day. There being, therefore, no supervision over his proceedings, plate worse than standard may be marked to any extent without detection, and there is equal facility for tampering with the diet. The practice also of permitting the plate to be marked with the initials or names of the dealers, instead of the mark of the manufacturer, affords a means of evading one of the checks contemplated by the Acts of Parliament, and is therefore very objectionable.

It may further be remarked, that the apparatus for making the assays at this office is of a most imperfect description, and it is manifest that no accurate assay can be made with it. The assay master, who is evidently a very unfit person for the office, admitted that he was in the habit of using the same cupels repeatedly for melting the assays, and expressed his opinion that they were the better for continued use. From the above circumstances the conclusion must naturally result, that there is no sufficient safeguard against frauds in the execution of the business; and it is equally clear that there is no security for payment of the duty in respect of all the work marked, supposing collusion to exist between the manufacturers and the assay master.

NEWCASTLE.

THE Goldsmiths' Company at Newcastle was established under the Act 1 Anne, c. 9, and is subject to the regulations of the Act 12 Will. 3, c. 4, before referred to. It consists of about 15 or 16 members, of whom, however, three only belong to the trade of silversmiths; and one of these, though formerly a journeyman silversmith, is not now in the trade, but is in the employ of Mr. Harthorn, a civil engineer. The other members are only admitted by patrimony, and, not having served an apprenticeship to the trade, are not, according to the Act, duly qualified members.

Two wardens are appointed annually on the 3d of May. The present wardens are, Mr. Thomas Sewell and Mr. Wakinshaw. The other officers are,

An assay master, Mr. T. Somerville.

A secretary, Mr. F. Sanderson, an iron merchant.

A drawer and stamper.

The assay master has no fixed salary, but he receives the charges for marking and the one per cent. allowed for receiving the duty, it being his province also to keep the accounts. The secretary has no salary; his only duty is, to keep the minutes of the company's proceedings, and to receive reports from the assayer of any work that may be broken as being worse than standard. The stamper has 5 l. per annum.

The assay days are Tuesday and Friday, but the business of the office is so inconsiderable that there are not, on an average, more than two or three assays on each day.

There is no regular form provided for notes to be delivered with the work to be assayed. A memorandum in writing is brought with the name (sometimes only the initials) of the worker, the number and description of articles, and the weight, which the assayer checks, and inserts the allowance for waste and the amount of duty.

The

The assayer makes no daily record of the work assayed, but files the notes till the end of the quarter, when he enters the particulars in a book. Credit is allowed to the manufacturers for the duty till the termination of the quarter, when the assay master collects it and pays it over to the distributor of stamps, to whom he delivers an account with the notes. The account is not certified by the wardens, but it is examined at the Stamp-office with the assayer's book.

The work is weighed and examined only by the assayer. The scrapings are deposited in a drawer, with one lock only, the key of which is kept by the assayer. No part is reserved for diet. The provisions of the Act as to the trial of the diet at the Mint never having been enforced, it has been deemed unnecessary to preserve it.

The charges for assaying and marking are, $\frac{1}{2}d.$ an ounce for silver, and $6d.$ for gold, which charges are the perquisite of the assay master.

The marks used at this office are,—

The Lion passant.

The Leopard's head.

The variable letter (changed annually).

The Queen's head.

The punches are kept in a box with three locks, the keys of which are kept by the assayer and the two wardens. The wardens do not attend to open the box, but send their keys to the office at 12 o'clock on each assay day, by the drawer. They are consequently in the sole custody of the assayer and drawer during the day, and there is no supervision over their proceedings.

The incidental expenses of the office are paid by the company. They amount to about $23l.$ per annum, and are made good by a rate upon the manufacturers.

Very little work is now received at this office, the principal part is from Newcastle and Carlisle. A register is kept of the names of the manufacturers, in which appear the names of various persons residing at other towns in the counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, and Durham, but it is very seldom that any work is brought from those places.

REMARKS.

The assay office at Newcastle is one of the most miserable description, and is situate in an obscure back court in a low neighbourhood, where it has been for a very long period. The receipts are obviously insufficient to defray the expense of a proper office or an efficient establishment. The assay master seems to be a person in a very inferior condition of life; and though he may be very honest, there is no supervision over his proceedings, and consequently no safeguard against irregularities: nor is there any security for the due payment of the stamp duty. It will be observed that no diet is kept for trial, if it should be required at any time, and that there is no precaution to prevent the improper use of the dies.

CHESTER.

THE Goldsmiths' Company at Chester, which was also established under the Act 12 Will. 3, c. 4, is composed of four members only, being plate manufacturers in that city, two of whom are appointed annually as prime warden and assistant warden.

The persons so acting at the date of this inspection were—

As prime warden, Mr. John Lowe.

As assistant warden, Mr. John Garner.

The other officers are—

An assay master, Mr. Thomas Lowe, a brother of Mr. J. Lowe, but not in the trade.

An assistant, Mr. Green.

A clerk, Mr. Edward Jones.

A scraper and marker.

These officers receive the following salaries and allowances: the prime warden and assistant, 5*l.* per annum each; in addition to which, the assistant is paid 3*s.* 6*d.* per day for his attendance. The assay master's salary is 300*l.* per annum, but which is at present subject to a deduction of 20 per cent., in consequence of heavy expenses to which the company were put some years since by reason of a prosecution against the late assay master. He also gets the produce of the diet and of the scrapings of gold. The assistant assayer receives 2*l.* per week, and the clerk 20*l.* per annum. The salaries are paid out of the charges for marking.

The usual assay days are Thursday and Friday, but work is assayed daily, if required.

Tickets are delivered with the work to be assayed, containing the name and residence of the manufacturer, the date, number, and species of articles, and the gross weight; but the duty is not noted thereon (as directed by law).

An entry is made in a book by the assistant warden of the particulars contained in the tickets, with the addition of the net weight and the duty. A check receipt-book is also kept, showing the weight of the plate assayed for each party, the duty, and the charges made for marking; one part of which (the receipt) is delivered to the manufacturer on returning the goods.

A book is kept by the clerk, containing an entry of the date, the name of the manufacturer, the number and species of articles assayed, the gross weight, the net weight, and the duty on the latter. This book is sent quarterly to the Stamp-office with the tickets and the official return of the duty received which is attested by the signatures of the wardens.

The duty is paid by the manufacturers on the delivery of the work, excepting in the case of some who are well known, and who receive credit till the end of the quarter.

The dies are kept in a box with three locks, the keys of which are in the custody of the prime warden, the assistant warden, and the assay master. It is stated that the box is never opened but in their joint presence.

The assays are made in the presence of the assistant warden, who attends daily, and weighs the work in and out. The prime warden attends at the end of the day, weighs the assays, and enters the result thereof in a book. The dies are then replaced in the box, and locked up.

The diet has not been sent to the Mint for many years, because no trial has been ordered. It was formerly kept for a year, but it is now disposed of half-yearly. A trial is made of it at the office twice a year, when it becomes the perquisite of the assay master. It has been sold up to January last. The quantity in the last half-year was 2 oz. 6 dwts. 18 grs. of gold, and 8 oz. of silver.

The charges for assaying and marking are as follows: For watch cases, gold, 1*s.* 6*d.*; Silver, 4*d.*; and for the pendants, 3*d.* for gold, and 1*d.* for silver. For other articles, 1*d.* per ounce for silver, and 3*d.* each piece for gold, the latter consisting only of rings. For private assays the charges are 6*d.* for silver, and 1*s.* for gold.

It is very seldom that any work is broken at this office; but an instance occurred in May last, when some articles made by Ralph Samuel, of Liverpool, were found to be 2 dwts. worse than standard.

The marks used at Chester are—

Work

Work is received from 12 manufacturers at Liverpool, 4 at Chester, and 1 at Manchester. The work consists chiefly of watch cases. The other goods assayed at this office are manufactured principally by Mr. John Lowe, Mr. Garner, and Mr. George Lowe, of Chester; and Mr. George Ward, of Manchester.

A book is kept for entering the names and places of abode of the manufacturers, and their marks have usually been registered upon copper plates; but it appears that there has been some neglect in this respect, as in several instances the marks of the manufacturers could not be found. In some cases, the goods are marked with the names of the shopkeepers for whom they are made, instead of the marks of the manufacturers.

REMARKS.

The management of the Chester Assay Office is entirely in the hands of four resident manufacturers, two of whom are relatives of the assay master, who of course owes his appointment to their interest, and must naturally be to a great extent under their control. The competency of the assay master for the performance of his duty is very doubtful, but his assistant appears to be an intelligent person. It will be observed that there has been some laxity as regards the registry of the marks of the manufacturers, as well as neglect with respect to the preservation of the diet, which is disposed of half-yearly, although the company are liable to be called upon to transmit it annually to the Mint for trial. Under these circumstances, it is obvious that there is no adequate check against frauds or irregularities in the transaction of the business of the office.

Y O R K.

THE Goldsmiths' Company at York (which was established under the same Act as those at Exeter and Chester) consists in reality of two persons only, viz., Mr. James Barber, a silversmith, who occasionally manufactures gold articles, and Mr. John Bell, who manufactures wedding rings and a few articles of silver. There are some other individuals who are admitted as members for convivial purposes only, but who have no vote.

The two manufacturers above named are styled the prime warden and the assistant warden, and of course have the sole control of the office. The only other officers are the assay master, Mr. John Burrill, a decayed spoon maker, who was formerly in the employ of Mr. Barber, but now keeps a small tavern, and a clerk, Mr. Stephen Baker, a chemist in the town.

The assay master receives a salary of 10*l.* per annum, of which Mr. Barber pays 7*l.* and Mr. Bell 3*l.* The clerk receives only the 1 per cent. allowed by Government for receiving and accounting for the duty.

On inquiring into the practice of this office, the assay master stated the following particulars; viz., that tickets were delivered with the work, specifying the name of the worker, the date, the number and description of the articles, and the weight; that the plate was assayed and marked by him alone; that he had not usually made a distinct assay of each article, but that when he entertained a doubt as to the quality of the silver, it had been his practice to send the scrapings up to the assay office in Hatton-garden, and that on receiving a satisfactory report from that office, he proceeded to mark the articles without any further trial; that the scrapings were deposited in a box with three locks, the keys of which were kept by the two wardens and himself, but that no part thereof had been set apart for diet, it being considered unnecessary (as no trial had ever been required) to reserve any portion to be sent to the Mint; that the box was never opened excepting for the purpose of disposing of its contents, and that on the last occasion when it was opened (about three months since), the total weight of the scrapings did not exceed 30 ounces, although they were the accumulation of 14 years.

The assay master, however, admitted that no assay had been made by him for some months past, in consequence, as he alleged, of his having changed his residence, residence, and of his new office not being yet fitted up; but he stated that the scrapings of the plate had been regularly sent up, either by him or by Mr. Barber, to Messrs. Johnson & Co., at the assay office in Hatton-garden, to be assayed; and that on the faith of reports from that office, he had marked the plate in the usual manner. On being requested to produce the reports of the assays so alleged to have been made, he was unable to find them, and expressed his belief that they were in the hands of Mr. Barber, the prime warden. He therefore sent a messenger to Mr. Barber, requesting his attendance; but Mr. Barber not being at home, his assistant attended, by whom it was stated that neither the reports nor the assays had been preserved.

It was evident from these admissions that great irregularity had prevailed in the execution of the business of the office, and there was reason to suspect that for some time past manufactured articles of plate had been marked by the assay master without any previous assay being made thereof, which, on a more close interrogation of that officer, proved to be the fact, as he acknowledged that the principal manufacturer, Mr. Barber, had been in the habit of purchasing a quantity of silver of Messrs. Collins & Farber, in London (a portion of which it was understood had been assayed at Hatton-garden), and of manufacturing articles of plate from it, and then sending them to the office to be marked, but that no further assay was made thereof; so that any admixture of base metal might have been introduced in the process of manufacture without detection. The assay master also acknowledged that he had been in the habit of marking wedding rings without assaying them, taking it for granted, on being assured that they were made from sovereigns, that they were standard.

The whole of the work marked at this office is manufactured by Mr. Barber and by Mr. Bell, with the exception of a few wedding-rings made by Mr. Parker, a jeweller in the town.

With respect to the remaining points connected with the business of the office, it appears that credit is taken by the manufacturers for the duty till the end of the quarter, when the assay master, who keeps an entry of the particulars contained in tickets delivered with the work, makes out an account therefrom and sends it with the tickets to the clerk, who then collects the duty and accounts for the same to the Stamp-office, but the clerk has no check whatever upon the accuracy of the account delivered to him. He merely compares it with the tickets, and transcribes the particulars into a book, but does not examine it with the assay master's book. The account was formerly examined and signed by the wardens, but this practice has not been pursued since the year 1848.

A minute book was produced, in which no entry had been made since the year 1847. In this book the names and marks of the several manufacturers ought to have been registered, but the regulation of the Act of Parliament upon this point appears to have been neglected.

The punches are kept in a box with one lock only, and are in the sole custody of the assay master.

The marks in use are :—

The city arms, a cross with five lions, only impressed on large articles.

The lion passant.

The leopard's head.

The variable letter, which is changed annually on the 13th August.

The Queen's head.

REMARKS.

It will be obvious, from the preceding statement, that the Act of Parliament under which the assay office at York was established has been of late wholly disregarded, and that the office, so far as regards the taking of assays of plate, has fallen completely into disuse. Although the fact was not distinctly acknowledged, there is great reason to believe, from the circumstances disclosed, as well as from certain tickets or reports from the assay office at Hatton-garden, produced by Mr. Burrill, bearing date as far back as the year 1846, that the irregular practice described by him has been carried on for several years, and the the state of the apparatus for making assays, which was deposited in a lumber closet and covered with rust and dirt, tended to strengthen this supposition. In this state of things it is evident that every facility has existed for the commission of frauds and irregularities. The assay master is, of course, wholly under the control of the two manufacturers who constitute the company, so called, and he appears to be a very unfit person to be entrusted with the duties of the office; it is clear that he has disregarded the obligations of his oath of office, and that the manufacturers have rendered themselves liable to forfeitures under the Act; which is the more extraordinary, as Mr. Barber, the prime warden, is known to be a highly respectable person, and is a magistrate of the city of York.

EXTRACTS of a REPORT made by Mr. Garard, the Prime Warden of the Goldsmiths' Company of London, and Mr. Johnson, one of the Wardens of the said Company, on the same subject.

REPORT AS TO EXETER HALL.

THE Goldsmiths' Company of Exeter is under the Act of 12 & 13 Will. 3, c. 4, anno 1700. It now consists of four persons, viz., — Sobey, W. R. Sobey, John Stone, and John Osmond, being working silversmiths, of whom two are always the wardens, and one the deputy warden; thus in a company of four members, three out of that four are always in office, and have the whole control.

The company appoints an assayer, who, with the deputy warden, keeps the keys of the box containing the punches, and they mark all articles sent.

The assayer's name is Parkyn; he keeps a small public-house, and has from this company a salary of 60*l.* per annum, out of which he finds the fuel, acids, and other necessaries for assaying. The company provides a room as an assay office. The deputy warden (one of the company) has a salary of 12*l.* per annum. The company has no funds. The expenses of the assay office are paid by a charge of sixpence in the pound for marking silver, a shilling for each gold assay, and a farthing each for marking rings and other small articles; producing an income of little more than a hundred a year, to pay the assayer, the deputy warden, rent, making the punches, &c. &c. There is likewise a treasurer and clerk, who receives 10 l. per annum and the Government allowance of one per cent.

The diet is said to be disposed of annually for the benefit of the company, but it ought to be kept to be produced when called for by the Government; no such call, however, has been made. This company receives plate for marking from Bath, Bristol, Plymouth, and Devonport.

The Government returns for gold and silver marked during the year ending January 1851, are, gold, 401 l. 1 s. 4 d.; silver, 3,594 l. 14 s. 7 d.

As to the assaying, your reporters beg to observe, that, from the insufficient apparatus and want of knowledge in the assayer, it is impossible that any certainty can be arrived at as to the quality of silver and gold sent to be assayed and marked. The balances and weights were dirty and out of order; the muffle consists of two pieces of iron plate, nearly burnt away; the fuel is common coal and cinders; the cupels are made of badly prepared bone-ash, and are used several times; the lead is bought anywhere, is not refined, is prepared by being beat out by the assayer, and is used in various quantities by hazard or guess for the same quantity of silver, thus necessarily varying the waste. On inquiry of the assayer as to whether check silver was used, the reply was, "No; I weigh in the assay at 12 oz., and, after refining it, I put 2 dwts. with the 12 oz., and 1 oz. of silver against it." Thus the assay piece should weigh 11 oz. 2 dwts., this being the legal standard; but as no allowance is made for waste on the test, which ought to be 3 dwts. in the pound, it follows that all silver assayed and passed by this system should be reported better 3 dwts. : it has been shown by the assays made in London of the silver marked in Exeter, that it is from 2 to 5 dwts. worse in some cases, and even in one case 6 dwts. worse. It follows, then, that the error in assaying at Exeter in such cases must have been from 5 to 8 dwts.

But little gold is assayed ; and from the imperfect apparatus, and ignorance of the assayer, it is quite impossible that a correct result could be arrived at.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The hall at Exeter is quite inefficient for its purpose, both from the ignorance of those employed in the art of assaying, the want of funds, and of persons capable of taking the management of it. It is believed that considerable quantities of silver worse than standard, manufactured into spoons and forks, have been marked at this hall.

Your reporters come to this conclusion, not only from general report, but from having had the sundry spoons and forks assayed as hereafter mentioned, and which bore the initials (w. r. s.), being one of the wardens of this company.

Mark : Castle.

ASSAYER'S REPORT.

REPORT of the examination of silver plate bearing the old standard marks of Exeter Hall.

This plate consisted of 12 table forks, 12 dessert forks, 12 tea spoons, and 1 pair of sugar tongs, and was assayed at the assay office, Goldsmiths' Hall, 14th April 1851, per order of the wardens.

The 12 table forks were made into four parcels, each parcel containing three forks, and being carefully assayed, the quality of each parcel was found to be as under :

No. 1	-	-	-	-	-	worse 3 dwts.
„ 2	-	-	-	-	-	„ 3 „ barely.
„ 3	-	-	-	-	-	„ 3 „
„ 4	-	-	-	-	-	„ 3 „

The 12 dessert forks were likewise made into four parcels, each parcel containing three forks, and the quality proved as under :

No. 1	-	-	-	-	-	worse $2\frac{1}{2}$ dwts.
„ 2	-	-	-	-	-	„ $\frac{1}{2}$ „
„ 3	-	-	-	-	-	„ $1\frac{1}{2}$ „
* „ 4	-	-	-	-	-	„ 5 „

* The report of this parcel being found so much worse than the others, in order to ascertain its accuracy, an assay was made of each fork contained therein, and the report was :

a	-	-	-	-	-	worse $4\frac{1}{2}$ dwts.
c	-	-	-	-	-	„ 6 „ barely.

So that the report as above proved to be correct, the average quality being about 5 dwts. worse.

The twelve teaspoons were made into two parcels, each containing six spoons, and were reported :

No. 1	-	-	-	-	-	worse 2 dwts. barely.
„ 2	-	-	-	-	-	„ 2 „ „

The sugar tongs proved to be worse 2 dwts. barely.

REPORT AS TO CHESTER HALL.

THIS company consists of four members only, viz., Mr. John Lowe, a working silversmith, who is prime warden, Mr. George Lowe, and Mr. John Garner, working silversmiths and wardens, and Mr. Thomas Lowe, not in business, assayer (brother to George Lowe). Mr. Green is assistant assayer, who does all the work; Mr. Edward Jones is clerk; there are also a scraper or drawer, and a marker.

SALARIES.

The prime warden has 5*l.* per annum; the wardens 5*l.* per annum each, and 3*s.* 6*d.* per day when in attendance; the clerk has 20*l.* per annum; the assay master has a fixed salary of 300*l.* per annum; he has likewise the proceeds of the scrapings of gold, and the diet silver, amounting to about 20*l.* a year more; thus he holds a perfect sinecure of 320*l.* per annum, the whole of the work being done by the assistant assayer, who receives 104*l.* per annum.

The company has no property but what arises from the assay office; the charges for marking are, for watch cases, whether single or double gold, 1*s.* 6*d.*; silver, 4*d.* each. Bows and pendants, 3*d.* for gold; 1*d.* each for silver. Silver plate, 1*d.* per ounce, each article; in gold, not watch cases, 3*d.*, making the revenue about 750*l.* per annum; but the accounts are so confused and so mixed up for salaries, &c. said to be in arrear, that it is impossible to go into them cursorily. Suffice it to say, that all balance in favour of the company is always credited to the assay master, as arrears due to him, but no debtor and creditor account of such arrears was produced. There are likewise charges for interest on money said to be borrowed, but which sums do not appear in a business-like form. The deputy assay master seems to understand his business.

The quantity of gold on which duty is paid, by Government Returns, is, for 1850-1851, 176*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*; on silver, 7*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*

N.B. The principal business of this office is in marking watch cases, on which no duty is paid. Watch cases are received from 12 different manufacturers at Liverpool, four at Chester, and one at Manchester; the diet is never sent up to London to be tested, such never having been called for by the Government, and it is not now kept beyond six months, when it is melted and taken by the assayer.

The marks of the manufacturers are not correctly entered in a book, as they ought to be by the Act of Parliament.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The business of this hall seems now to be carried on with some care as to the assaying, but the general management is defective. The office of head assayer is a sinecure, and he may, from interest, not exert that vigilance which is required. This hall has been in the habit of marking gold of inferior quality to that allowed by law, as was shown by general report, and proved by assays made of watch cases, at the Goldsmiths' Hall, London, in the years 1841, 1842, and 1845, the report of which assays follows:—

YORK.—11 October 1851.

THE Goldsmiths' Company of York consists of two persons, viz., James Barber, a manufacturing silversmith, who likewise makes wedding rings, and keeps the principal silversmith's and jeweller's shop in York. He is warden of the company, and a magistrate of the city of York. John Bell, who keeps a retail silversmith's shop, is a manufacturer of wedding rings and a small worker in silver. John Burrell is the assay master, and Mr. John Baker, a chemist, is the clerk. John Burrell, the assay master, was a worn-out spoon-maker in the employ of Mr. Barber, the warden, and evidently is, and always was, quite unfit for the employment of an assayer, being ignorant of the business, to which he was appointed 13 years since; he is paid 7*l.* a year by Mr. Barber, and 3*l.* a year by Mr. Bell, and he keeps a small public-house, which is also the nominal assay office. He has the charge of the punches, and marks what is sent him by Mr. Barber and Mr. Bell, but he has no apparatus for assaying, nor even any pretensions to making assays. As he makes no assays, of course he keeps no diet, nor any check of what he marks, as bound by law. He asserted, that after making the necessary drawings and scrapings, the same were sent, either by himself, Mr. Barber, or Mr. Bell, to London, to Messrs. Johnson, in Hatton Garden, to be assayed, and if found correct, the articles were duly marked; but this assertion, made to Mr. Johnson himself, having been shown to be false, he at length confessed his custom was to "rely on the correctness of the two wardens, who were the only manufacturers, and who had the silver from London, from Messrs. Collins & Furber, which silver came with an assay, showing it to be standard; it was then manufactured so long as it lasted, and no assay made, and that he marked it on the word of the manufacturer that it was correct."

"That with regard to wedding rings, he was assured they were made from sovereigns; he therefore marked them as of 22 carat gold, without making any assay."

GENERAL REMARKS.

It is quite clear that the Act of Parliament under which this hall was established is entirely disregarded, and that the punches, not only of the assay mark but of the duty mark, are left to be used at the discretion of the assay master (so called) as he pleases, and which it is evident he does use at the telling of the wardens, quite contrary to law, and regardless of the oath administered to him on his appointment. A minute book was produced, but no entry had been made therein since 1847. In this book the manufacturers' initials should be entered; but even the warden, Mr. Barber, has not his name so entered since his dissolution of partnership with Mr. North in 1847; consequently, if there were no other illegality, this would prove all his plate since 1847 to have been marked contrary to law, which subjects him and the assay master to the penalties according to the Act of the 12 Will. 3.

This hall is a sad example of the want of some controlling power over those who administer the laws.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.—22 October 1851.

THE Goldsmiths' Company here consists of 15 or 16 members, three of whom only are of the trade, viz., Thomas Sewell, and Messrs. Reid & Son. The wardens are chosen yearly, on the 3d of May. The officers are an assay master (Mr. Somervill), who on an average receives about 40*l.* per annum; and a drawer (Jas. Hobson), who receives 5*l.* per annum; and the secretary, which appears to be an honorary appointment.

The company have no funds but what arise from the assay office. The charges are a halfpenny per ounce for silver, and 6 d. per ounce for gold. The 1 per cent. allowed by Government on the duty is likewise placed to the credit of the assay office. The amount of duty for the year ending 1851 was 648 l. 6 s. 5 d. for silver, and 154 l. 10 s. 8 d. for gold.

The regulation as to diet, as directed by the Act of Parliament, is not attended to, and none is kept; neither are workmen's names entered in a book as they ought to be. The drawer is a journeyman who was a working silversmith, but he now works for an engineer, and says he has but little employment. When he comes to the assay office he brings the keys with him of the box in which the punches are kept. The keys are entrusted to him by the wardens; thus he may be said to have the charge of all the punches.

The assayer has the power of passing what silver and gold he pleases without check, as no diet is kept, and as the drawer has the command of the punches, either the assayer or drawer may commit any fraud, almost without the power of detection. Your reporters do not make any accusation of dishonesty, but they must make these observations, to show that there is no system of business by which dishonesty can be detected, and that all is placed at the mercy of two ill-paid servants. It should likewise be remarked, that the want of these checks is in contravention of the Act of Parliament under which this hall is established and worked.

The marks are three castles, a lion passant, a leopard's head, and the variable letter.

COPY of a LETTER addressed to the Board of Inland Revenue by the Goldsmiths' Company, dated the 9th day of December 1853.

To the Honourable the Commissioners of Inland Revenue.

Gentlemen,

Goldsmiths' Hall, 9 December 1853.

I AM directed by the wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company to bring to your notice the following facts, showing another gross case of malversation on the part of the officers who conducted the business of the hall and assay office at Exeter.

In the course of last month two wedding rings were brought to this hall by Mr. Chaplin, a London ring-maker, who had received them from a shopkeeper at Swansea, of the name of Joseph, with a request that he (Chaplin) would give him his opinion whether they were made of standard gold. These rings were marked with the marks denoting the 22 carat standard.

A careful assay of one of them was made, and it proved to be nearly four carats worse than that standard.

Mr. Joseph was communicated with, and he informed me that he purchased those rings of a manufacturer at Bristol, of the name of Gregory, whose private mark they bore. I therefore despatched Mr. Hough, one of the officers of this establishment, to Bristol, who ascertained from Gregory that the rings in question had been sent by him to the Exeter hall to be marked, and had, in fact, been marked there. Mr. Hough brought away two other rings, part of another parcel which had been very recently marked at Exeter; and on an assay of one of them, it turned out to be 1 carat and $\frac{1}{4}$ of a grain worse than the standard, the mark of which it bore.

Gregory is alarmed, and appears to be willing to give all the information in his power relative to the practices of the Exeter hall.

The wardens feel that they can do no more than bring these circumstances to your notice; but on the part of the trade, of which they are the guardians, they they desire me to express their hope that these malpractices, which have so long existed, and the existence of which is already so well known to you, may be effectually put a stop to.

I am, &c.

(signed) Walter Prideaux, Clerk.

COPY of the BOARD'S MINUTE on a LETTER addressed to the Board of Inland Revenue by the Goldsmiths' Company, dated the 9th day of December 1853.

LET a report to the Treasury be prepared, stating the circumstances mentioned in this letter, and annexing a copy of the report as to the Exeter assay office made by the Inspector-general to the Board. State that the Board think this is a suitable opportunity of submitting to their Lordships the report made to them by the same officer, with regard to the assay offices at Chester, York, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, and annex an extract from the report as to these offices. Send also a copy of the report of the officer of Goldsmiths' Hall, London, as to the before named offices. State the opinion of the Board that no adequate remedy for the circumstances mentioned is to be found in any other measure than the abolition of these offices; the constitution of the officers and the kind of persons employed not affording any security either to the public or the revenue, and the insignificant amount of the business transacted at the places in question, being such as to render the continuance of these offices unnecessary.

COPY REPORT from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, addressed to the Board of Treasury, dated the 18th day of February 1854, suggesting the ABOLITION of the ASSAY OFFICES at Exeter, Chester, York, and Newcastle.

May it please your Lordships,

Inland Revenue,
18 February 1854.

WE beg to bring under your Lordships' notice a communication which we have received from Mr. Walter Prideaux, clerk of the Goldsmiths' Company of London, relative to the improper manner in which the business of the hall and assay office at Exeter has been conducted.

It appears from that communication, that in November last two wedding rings were brought to the Goldsmiths' Hall in London by Mr. Chaplin, a London maker (who had received them from a shopkeeper at Swansea, with a request that he, Chaplin, would give the shopkeeper his opinion whether they were made of standard gold), and that, on a careful assay of one of them being made in London, it proved to be nearly four carats below the standard which was denoted by the mark upon it.

On communicating with the party at Swansea, it was found that the rings were purchased by him at Bristol; and thereupon the Goldsmiths' Company despatched one of their officers to Bristol, who ascertained that the rings had been marked at the hall at Exeter. The officer brought away with him two other rings, part of a parcel which had but very recently been marked at Exeter; and on an assay of one of them, it turned out to be one carat and a quarter of a grain lower than the standard, the mark of which it bore.

In the year 1851, it was deemed advisable by the then Chancellor of the Exchequer, in consequence of a representation from the wardens of the Goldsmiths' Company of London, that a general investigation should be made into the course of proceeding adopted by the several provincial assay offices in England, as well as those in Edinburgh and Glasgow; and we accordingly instructed the Inspector-general of this department to proceed to those offices, and to inquire fully into the mode in which the business is conducted at each.

We think it unnecessary to trouble your Lordships with a copy of the report which we received from that officer, who was assisted in his investigation by the prime warden and another member of the Goldsmiths' Company of London; but we annex an extract therefrom, showing the result of his inquiries into the Exeter assay office.

We think, however, that this is a suitable opportunity for considering the manner in which the business is now conducted at three other assay offices, namely, at Chester, York, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and we accordingly beg to submit extracts from the report above alluded to, relating to the inspection at those offices, as well as a copy of the report on the same subject made to the Goldsmiths' Company by the two members above referred to. Adverting to the laxity which has prevailed in conducting the business of these assay offices, and to the inadequacy of the funds of the companies for the maintenance of proper and official establishments, we are decidedly of opinion that no adequate remedy is to be found for the evil complained of, and that the abolition of these offices would be a great public benefit. Neither their constitution nor the kind of persons employed in them are such as to afford proper security either to the public or the revenue, and the amount of business transacted at each of them is so insignificant as to render their continuance unnecessary.

Should your Lordships concur in this view of the matter, we may observe that no material inconvenience will be experienced by the trade at any of these places in consequence of the abolition of the offices in question, as from the rapid transmission of goods by railway, and the hall in London being open daily to the public, while at each of the other places it is open but two days in each week, the work will be more expeditiously and correctly performed than it is at present. There is also no doubt that on an increase of business at the more important provincial offices at Birmingham and Sheffield, those companies will appoint additional hall days, which will afford greater convenience to the manufacturers at those towns, as well as facilitate the business which may be received from the places at which it is proposed to abolish the assay offices.

It is proper that we should state to your Lordships that we are aware that the subject of the assay of plate, and the various offices established for that purpose, is at present under the consideration of the Board of Trade, by whom a more comprehensive measure than that herein proposed is in contemplation.

We are, &c.

COPY of MINUTES and PAPERS relating to the ASSAY OFFICES at Exeter, Chester, York, and

*Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons,
dated 9 July 1855;—for,

A COPY (in continuation of a Return laid upon the Table of The House) “of the REPORT of the Inspector-General of Stamps and Taxes relating to the Assaying and Marking of GOLD and SILVER PLATE at York, Chester, Exeter, and Newcastle-on-Tyne; the same as applicable to Birmingham and Sheffield.”

JAMES WILSON.

SHEFFIELD.

THE Company at Sheffield was established under the Act 13 Geo. 3, c. 52, and is composed of about 30 persons, being partly noblemen and gentlemen of the county, and partly silversmiths or plateworkers, of whom there are at present nine.

A meeting is held annually on the first Monday in July, for the election of guardians and wardens, when four persons are chosen to act in the latter capacity. The present wardens are Mr. Thomas Howard, Mr. J. Buxton, Mr. Albert Buxton, and Mr. John Ashforth, of whom the last mentioned person only is in the trade.

The other officers are—

The assay master—Mr. John Sayles, a surgeon-dentist, who was instructed in the assay business by his father, the late assay master.

A law clerk and accountant—Mr. Henry Watson, a solicitor.

A porter, or marker.

Two of the wardens are paid officers, and attend daily; the others are called honorary or visiting wardens. The paid wardens receive 30*l.* per annum each. The assay master 120 guineas per annum. The law clerk and accountant 20 guineas per annum, and the 1 per cent. allowed by Government for receiving and accounting for the duty. He also derives some profit from the interest of deposits at the Bank on account of the duty, which sometimes amount to 1,000*l.*

The usual assay days are Monday and Thursday in each week.

The manufacturers send with the work a note in duplicate, containing their names and places of abode; the date; the number and species of the articles, and the gross weight. The assay master calculates the duty, allowing the deduction of one-sixth for waste, and inserts it in the notes, one of which is returned to the manufacturer on the re-delivery of the work, and the other is folded up with the duty received. The assay master makes an entry of the particulars of the notes in a book, for the inspection of the wardens, and hands over the duty with the notes to the accountant twice a week.

The accountant makes a memorandum of the tickets, as he receives them, in a private book, and an entry is afterwards made of the full particulars in another book. He makes out an account quarterly for the Stamp-office, containing the like particulars, and sends it with the duty to the distributor. A clerk from the Stamp-office attends to examine the account with the book kept by the accountant, to which he attaches his signature. The notes are not sent to the Stamp-office, but are open for inspection at the accountant's office, and the distributor's clerk examines the quarterly account with the assay master's book.

The plate is weighed in the presence of the acting wardens, who attend daily to superintend the proceedings. It is always examined by the wardens, and it is then marked; but if found worse than standard, the marks are obliterated.

The diet is deposited in a box, with three different locks, the keys of which are kept by the acting wardens and the assay master, agreeably to the Act. The punches are kept in a similar box, and both the boxes are carefully locked up at the close of each day's business by the wardens and assayer.

The diet is sent up to the Mint for trial annually, as directed by the Act, and the assays are generally reported as coming out about two dwts. better than standard.

The charges for marking are 1 s. 3 d. per pound troy when the work is charged by weight, and 6 d. per dozen when charged by number. For private assays, the charge is 2 s. 6 d. The fees are carried to the account of the company.

The expenses of the office are defrayed out of the charges for marking, and the proceeds of the scrapings. An account is made up quarterly of the quantity of plate assayed, the office expenses, &c., which is audited by the wardens. The receipts for the year ending the 24th June last amounted to rather less than 300 l.

The marks impressed on plate assayed at this office are,—

The Crown, being the peculiar mark of the company.

The Lion passant.

The variable Letter, which is changed annually at the election of guardians.

The Queen's Head.

With the exception of a few articles made at Manchester, the whole of the plate sent to this office to be assayed is manufactured at Sheffield. There are about 30 or 40 manufacturers altogether, and the average number from whom work is received daily is about 12. The names and places of abode of the manufacturers are registered, with their respective marks, at the Assay Office.

REMARKS.

The business of the Sheffield Assay-office appears to be conducted with due order and regularity; the assay master seems an intelligent person, and well acquainted with his duties.

The assay master states that the silversmiths complain much of the practice of the manufacturers of plated goods, and other imitations of silver, in impressing such goods with marks which bear so close a resemblance to those used for marking silver plate as to deceive persons, without minute examination, and that the trade, as well as the revenue, is greatly injured by the extensive use now made of such wares.

BIRMINGHAM.

THE Goldsmiths' Company at Birmingham was created by the Act 13 Geo. 3, c. 52; it consists of about 25 or 26 members, and is composed partly of gentlemen residing in or within 20 miles of that town, and partly of silversmiths or plateworkers, of whom there are usually from six to nine members.

Four wardens are elected annually, at a meeting held in the month of July; two of whom are acting wardens, and the others visiting or provisional wardens. The present wardens are, Mr. Wilmore, a retired silversmith; Mr. Bolton, manager of the provincial bank; and Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Aston, who are not in the trade. The last-named person has just been appointed as acting warden (with Mr. Wilmore), in the room of Mr. Robinson, lately deceased.

The

The other officers are,—

A head assay master, who also acts as accountant—Mr. Phipson, an independent gentleman.

An assistant assay master—Mr. Westwood, a refiner (whose son assists him in his duties).

A weigher and marker—Mr. Horner.

A fireman.

A woman, also, is employed, who takes care of the office, and assists occasionally in the work.

The present assay days are Monday and Thursday, the latter being the principal day of business. Formerly there was but one assay day in each week, but about two years since it was thought expedient, for the convenience of the trade, to appoint an extra day.

The officers have no fixed salaries, but are paid for each day's attendance at the following rates, a smaller allowance being made for the extra day (Monday) than for the principal day :—

The wardens, 1 l. for Thursday, and 10 s. for Monday.

The assay master and assistant, each 2 l. 2 s. for Thursday, and 1 l. 1 s. for Monday.

The markers, 4 s. or 5 s. a day.

The woman, 2 s. 6 d. a day.

The fireman, 5 s. for Thursday, and 2 s. 6 d. for Monday.

The head assay master receives, also, the proceeds of the charges for private assays, as well as the usual allowance of one per cent. for receiving and accounting for the duty.

Tickets are delivered with the plate brought to be assayed, containing the name and address of the worker, the date, the number and species of the articles, and the weight. The assay master calculates, and inserts the duty and the charges for marking, and fills up a receipt on the ticket for the work delivered, which is then detached and handed to the manufacturer. At the foot of the receipt is an order to be signed by the manufacturer for the delivery of the work when assayed.

Another ticket is made out, specifying, in addition to the above particulars, the ascertained weight, the allowance of one-sixth for waste, and the net duty.

The duty is paid on the delivery of the work after being marked, and is handed over to the assay master, who also acts as treasurer.

The assay master enters the particulars of the work in a book, and at the end of the quarter makes out an account therefrom for the Stamp-office, and sends it with the ticket and the duty to the distributor. The account is attested by the signatures of one of the wardens and the assay master, and is examined at the Stamp-office with the tickets, but is not compared with the assayer's book.

The weighing officer receives the work, and weighs it in the presence of the wardens in attendance, who examine it, and take notice of it, and it is then passed to the markers; but it is not scraped in their presence as directed by the Act. It is marked previous to being assayed, but if found worse than standard, the marks are obliterated.

The diet is deposited in a box with three different locks, the keys of which are kept by the acting wardens and the assay master. It is sent annually to the Mint, and it is stated that the trials generally come out $1\frac{1}{2}$ or 2 dwts. better.

A daily entry is made of the gold work assayed, containing the date, the name of the worker, and the weight at the respective standards. Also a similar entry for silver work, distinguishing the charges for marking at the several rates. These entries contain also a specification of any work cut or broken, with the assayer's report thereon.

The charges for assaying and marking are, 1 d. an ounce for silver, or $\frac{1}{2}$ d. an ounce, if heavy (i. e. 5 ounces or upwards), and 3 d. for small work (under 5 dwts.); for wedding rings, if above 18, 1 d. each; for watch cases 9 d. each, and for pendants, 2 d. each; for private assays, 1 s. a piece for gold, and 6 d. for silver. The money is applied towards the payment of the daily allowances to the officers, excepting the charges for private assays, which are the perquisite of the head assay master.

A book is kept, containing an account of the receipts and disbursements of the company, which is audited annually by the wardens. The average receipts barely cover the expenditure. It appears by the account for the year ending the 1st July 1851, that the receipts amounted to 649 l. 7 s., and the expenses to 670 l. 8 s. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., leaving a balance due to the treasurer of 21 l. 1 s. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. The scrapings and assay heads are weighed and entered daily in this book, and are sold at the end of the year, and the proceeds carried to account towards the expenses.

The marks used at Birmingham are,—

The Anchor, being the peculiar mark of the company.

The Lion passant.

The variable Letter, which is changed annually at the election of wardens.

The Queen's Head.

The punches are deposited in a box with three locks, but all the keys are kept by the assistant assay master, who brings them to the office on each Hall day.

Very little work is received from manufacturers out of Birmingham; articles are occasionally sent from Coventry, and some time since a large piece of plate was received from a manufacturer in Bristol, but it is very seldom that work is sent to this office from other towns. Assays are made for about 20 manufacturers on the average daily.

The names and marks of the manufacturers are duly registered in the office.

REMARKS.

The Assay-office at Birmingham is very commodious, and the apparatus for making the assays is of a superior description. The establishment is larger than that of any of the other provincial offices, the execution of the business appears to be properly superintended by the wardens, and the accounts are kept in a systematic manner. The only material objection to the practice of the office is, that the keys of the box in which the dies are kept, are intrusted to the sole custody of the assistant assay master, although the Act 13 Geo. 3, c. 52, under which the office was established, directs that the keys shall be kept by two of the wardens and the assayer respectively, and that they shall never be taken out of the box but in the presence of the wardens and the assayer, for the purpose of marking the plate which shall have been assayed.

LETTER from the Governor and Deputy Governor of the Bank of England to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Sir,

Bank of England, 14 March 1855.

ON the 12th October last we felt it to be our duty to call the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the departure from antecedent practice in paying the public dividends, which, first introduced by the Treasury in April 1854, had just then been repeated; and we expressed our reliance upon the intervention of Her Majesty's Government to protect the Bank from any injurious consequences which might result from proceedings in which we could not acquiesce.

The course against which we then remonstrated, of paying to the Bank part only of the dividends when due, and supplying from time to time such further portions as were expected to be asked for by the public, was however again resorted to in January last.

At your request, we beg now formally to place this subject before you as the Finance Minister of the Crown, and to submit for your consideration, with especial reference to the approaching April dividends,

That the Loan Acts, under which the whole of the existing debt was contracted, require that the entire annuities be paid on the days appointed to the Chief Cashier of the Bank, and that the said Cashier shall, without delay, pay the same accordingly.

In support of the views which we are now expressing on behalf of the Court of Directors, we beg to refer you to the copy of the case submitted to the Standing Counsel of the Bank, and Mr. Roundell Palmer, together with their opinion thereon.

We venture to hope that Her Majesty's Government may admit the validity of our objections to the recent change, by resuming in the provision of the April dividends, the practice which, until last year, had invariably prevailed.

We have, &c.

JAMES WILSON.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 6 April 1854.

IN connexion with some recent rumours and statements as to the large demands likely to be made upon the Bank by the Government, for accommodation in the shape of Deficiency Bills, at the commencement of this quarter, my attention has been drawn to the manner in which, first, the presumptive charge for such bills is usually raised on the account of income and charge of the Consolidated Fund for the past quarter; and, secondly, the actual issues of such bills are regulated, which bear interest against the public.

I find that the amount issued would, according to the practice which has been in force, be the entire charge of the debt for the quarter, with the deduction of the sum of 813,000*l.*, which the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt have ordered to be invested in Deficiency Bills.

It appears to me that this practice is open to objection on two grounds:

First, that it imposes on the public a charge for accommodation which they never receive.

Secondly, that it keeps back from Parliament and the public a true view of the amount and character of the demand actually made by the Government upon the Bank.

With respect to the first, it is not on this point that I desire to press. I do not dispute the right of the Bank either to charge interest upon any public account reduced below a certain minimum, in conformity with any rules it may observe in regard to its other customers, or to place upon Deficiency Bills such a rate of interest, by agreement with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as may yield them a fair remuneration for the money supplied.

But the present practice has no relation to either of these reasonable principles; on the contrary, it appears to be this,—that the State pays the dividends not to the public creditor, but to the Bank, and that the Bank subsequently disburses them to the public creditor as they are called for; inasmuch as all the money due for dividends in the interval between the quarter-day and the actual disbursement is not reckoned as part of the monies standing to the credit of the State with the Bank, but as a part of the monies of the Bank, while the void created by the withdrawal of this great sum from the Exchequer account is filled up by a loan from the Bank to the public, of which a considerable part may be and actually is imaginary and illusory, if I am right in the position which I lay down, and which I do not think will be contested, namely, that the public monies in the hands of the Bank continue to be public monies until the period when they are disbursed.

I therefore propose to conduct the issue of Deficiency Bills, on this and on all future occasions, upon the same principle which is regularly and beneficially applied applied to the issue of money for Supply services universally, and for all Consolidated Fund services except this, namely, the principle of making adequate and full provision for the wants of the Audit Roll Account from day to day, for the wants of each day, so long as the Government have occasion to avail themselves of the accommodation which the Bank may have agreed to afford.

I believe that former experience in the payment of the dividends has made it quite easy to reckon the issues which, on this principle, will be necessary from time to time; and indeed, on the present occasion, I do not apprehend that it will be requisite to make any addition on any future day to the amount of Deficiency Bills which we propose to issue to-morrow, except the trifling sum of 200,000*l.* on Saturday, which will be immediately purchased on account of the National Debt Commissioners.

The amounts issuable will stand in round numbers as follows:

To be issued to-morrow - - - - -	3,800,000
To be cancelled immediately by the Sinking Fund -	800,000
To be issued on Saturday - - - - -	200,000

These 200,000*l.* to be taken up on the same day.

Thus the amount which will bear interest against the public will probably be, in round numbers, 3,000,000*l.*

I have now only to add, that in case you should consider that the rate of interest at which money on Deficiency Bills is supplied by the Bank is in itself inadequate, and has only been agreed to by the Bank on the supposition that the bills would cover a larger area than the advances actually made upon them, you will not scruple to open that question afresh, notwithstanding the letters which have passed between us. In short, I have no wish to narrow the field of any discussion you may think fit to raise with respect to the profits of the Bank from transactions of this nature. My object, as I have stated, is of a different character; it is to regulate the issue of Deficiency Bills in such a manner that the amount issued shall really represent the amount of demand made upon the Bank, and shall bear a relation to the impending payments, with a reasonable margin to cover contingencies.

I do not in this letter enter on a consideration of the manner in which the presumptive charge is raised in the public accounts, as this is not a matter in which the Bank is concerned.

I have only further to request that you will kindly allow Mr. Anderson, of this department, to communicate with Mr. Marshall upon the accounts to be rendered daily by the Bank, in order to the due and regular conduct for the future of these transactions on the basis I have named.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 7 April 1854.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, in which it is proposed, instead of making the full issue, as heretofore, to the Bank of England, on the first day of the quarter, of the sum required to pay the dividend falling due on the National Debt, "to make provision from day to day, for the wants of each day."

I beg, however, to point out to you, that under the provisions of the Acts creating the public debt, this course cannot be legally followed.

Those now before me, the Act 54 Geo. 3, c. 76, and similar enactments, are contained in other Loan Acts. You will find that, annuities having been created payable on fixed days, it is enacted, sect. 12, that for the more easy and sure payment of such annuities the Bank should appoint a chief cashier, and that monies sufficient to answer the annuities and other payments directed to be made should, from time to time, on the respective days of payment in the Act provided, provided, be issued and paid to the first cashier of the Bank of England, upon whom the duty of paying the same to the public is imposed.

It will be perceived that the provision of funds for the public creditor does not stand on the same ground as the provision for other engagements of the public service, and it is not therefore necessary for me to enter upon the other topics contained in your letter.

I set aside, equally with yourself, any question of interest on the Bank's advances; but it appears to me that it is the duty of the Bank, imposed on it by Parliament, to ask that payment of the full sum required to meet the annuities now falling due may be made to them at the commencement of the quarter as heretofore.

I have, &c.
(signed) T. M. Weguelin.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 7 April 1854.

I HAVE received and considered your letter of this day; and I have to say, in reply, that I do not concur in the construction which you place upon the law applicable to the case.

I do not enter upon the question, whether the 12th section of the 54th of Geo. 3, c. 76, would apply in the sense for which you contend, so far as the monies actually in the Exchequer and at the credit of the Consolidated Fund are concerned. For the present purpose I may allow, to shorten the argument, that if there were ten millions of money in the Exchequer we should be bound to issue at once, in your words, "the full sum required to meet the annuities now falling due."

But inasmuch as the whole balance belonging to the Consolidated Fund is disposed of, the obligations of the section quoted have so far been fulfilled, and the question must be further considered not under this section, or this Act, which provides no means to replenish the Consolidated Fund, but under the provisions of the 57 Geo. 3, c. 48, sect. 6, which prescribes the rule for the issue of Deficiency Bills, whereby to provide means for replenishing the Consolidated Fund, in order to meet the charge of the dividends.

I pass by any inquiry on which I might enter, whether the terms "it shall be lawful," in this section, are enabling or compulsory; and I will assume, for argument's sake, that they are compulsory.

Further, I will for the present acquiesce in the consequence of this last assumption, namely, that the Treasury will be bound to issue, during this quarter, an amount of Deficiency Bills equal to the whole deficiency shown upon the account of income and charge of the Consolidated Fund.

But the section prescribes nothing whatever in regard to the time at which such Deficiency Bills are to be issued; and upon this point the provisions of the previous Act of 54 Geo. 3, when the system of Deficiency Bills did not exist, can have no bearing whatever.

Such is the view of the law which I take, and upon which I mean to act; a view, I may add, which is not in contrariety with the construction you put on the 54 Geo. 3, but rather with a consequence which you attach to that construction.

But my own knowledge of money bills, such as it is, and of the rules of construction applicable to them, leaves me no doubt whatever that such consequence does not legitimately attach to the section.

At the same time I would by no means be understood to deny, that a person entitled to any annuity under the 54 Geo. 3 might, under the 57 Geo. 3, apply for a mandamus to compel the Lords of the Treasury to issue Deficiency Bills, in order to provide funds for the Exchequer, if necessary. It is not needful for me either to deny, or to assert, anything upon this head.

Having said thus much upon bare law, I may venture to add, as respects the reason of the case, that the mode of proceeding which is quite rational when the funds of the Exchequer are ample, may be very irrational when it requires to be fed from an extraneous source.

What I therefore intend to do is, to make issues of Deficiency Bills to the full amount of the nominal charge (and in this point I wish thus far to correct my former letter), but to make them from time to time on the principle I described yesterday, commencing with the amounts I then named, and in the full expectation that all the subsequent issues will be nominal, and will be redeemed from day to day by the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund, without bearing any charge on account of interest against the public.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 8 April 1854.

I AM very sorry to receive your letter intimating your continued determination not now to issue to the Bank the full amount of the dividends due on the 5th instant.

I cannot doubt that the Acts of Parliament have imposed on the Exchequer the duty of issuing the whole amount of dividends on the quarter-day, and that practice has never been deviated from in times of extreme difficulty. The practice is stated to have been so established for the safety of the public; and if it is proper to alter the practice, I submit that it can only be done by the Legislature.

The Act 57 Geo. 3 enables the Treasury to provide the sum required, but does not otherwise affect the question. Your suggestion that a court of law might possibly grant a mandamus to compel the Lords of the Treasury to issue Deficiency Bills for the purpose, would seem to indicate a legal liability on the part of their Lordships so to do.

But the position of the Bank is independent of this Act. The Exchequer are bound to issue to the Bank the whole amount of dividends, and it is the duty of the Bank to call for them on the first day of the quarter. The deviation from the law and from the practice hitherto adopted is so serious in its nature and possible consequences, that I feel bound to lay the whole matter before the Court of Directors at their next meeting, which will probably lead to a formal representation on the subject.

I remain, &c.
(signed) T. M. Weguelin.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 8 April 1854.

I CANNOT in the slightest degree complain of your making any representation to the Court of Directors of the Bank with respect to the issue of Deficiency Bills which you may think fit. It is your duty, no doubt, to study the interests of the Bank, and upon them I do not give an opinion, having already stated in my first letter that I was prepared to entertain any question which you might think fit to raise with respect to its profits, as affected by the alteration I intended to make.

You did not, however, reply to me in the sense of appealing to the interests of the Bank, but gave me your view of my duties under the Loan Acts. I submit that I should not be justified in acting upon your view of those obligations, when it is contrary to that which I myself take, upon advice and consideration; and when the question is about the correction of a practice which, irrespective of any question of its costliness to the public, is, in my opinion, most impolitic, as fostering delusive impressions concerning the relative positions of the Bank and the Government.

With a view to illustrate the particular working of that practice, I beg you to be so good as to direct that I may be furnished, when it is convenient, with an account showing;

1. The amount standing to the credit of the Exchequer and Audit Roll Accounts, jointly; and

2. The

2. The amount of Deficiency Bills on which interest was charged to the public; on each day of the last quarter, from the 6th of January inclusive, to the latest day on which any Deficiency Bills remained unredeemed,

I remain, &c.

RESOLUTION of the Committee of Treasury, received from the Deputy-Governor's Hands on 10th April.

Committee of Treasury, 10 April 1854.

THE Deputy-Governor having laid before the committee the correspondence between Mr. Gladstone and himself, relative to the mode of providing money for the payment of the dividends connected with the issue of Deficiency Bills—

Resolved, That the Deputy-Governor be requested to suggest to Mr. Gladstone that the opinion of the law officers of the Crown should be taken upon a case to be prepared by Mr. Freshfield and the Solicitor of the Treasury jointly, as respects the legal obligations of the Bank and Government; and further, that he should inform Mr. Gladstone that the objections raised by the Bank to the course proposed by him have merely related to its legal obligations, and have had no relation to the pecuniary interests of the Bank—a matter which has not even been taken into consideration.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 12 April 1854.

I WAS so much occupied during the whole of yesterday as to be unable to write to you on the subject of the Resolution of the Committee of Treasury which you placed in my hands at the House of Commons on Monday evening.

That Resolution suggests to me that I should take the opinion of the law officers of the Crown upon a case to be prepared by the solicitors of the Bank and the Treasury jointly, "as respects the legal obligations of the Bank and Government."

There is a preliminary proceeding in my view quite essential, before I can entertain any question as to any further measures over and above what I have already taken, whether for ascertaining, or declaring, or altering the law upon the suggestion of the Bank. It is that I should have before me a statement to show, first, in what capacity and on what footing the Bank makes the suggestion—whether upon the ground that the Government are departing from any legal obligation which they have contracted with or towards the Bank; or upon the ground that they are disabling the Bank from the fulfilment of its legal obligations. I shall request that the statement might show, secondly, for what reasons it is that the Bank, thus made a party in the case, questions the construction placed by the Government upon the Act 57 Geo. 3, with respect to the issue of Deficiency Bills.

When favoured with a statement of the nature I have described, I will give my immediate attention to the suggestion of the Committee of Treasury.

(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 12 April 1854.

I BEG to reply to your letter of to-day, referring to the Minute of the Committee of Treasury handed you by me, and requiring that you should have before you a statement to show, first, in what capacity and on what footing the Bank makes the suggestion that measures should be taken for ascertaining, declaring, or altering the law; and secondly, for what reasons the Bank questions the construction placed by the Government upon the Act 57 Geo. 3, with respect to the issue of Deficiency Bills.

I have directed that a statement should be drawn up with especial view to the points you suggest. Meanwhile I may, without prejudice, state that the view which I individually took of the footing upon which the Bank rests in this question, and which induced me to take legal advice as to my competency to question the construction placed by the Government on the Loan Acts and the Act 57 Geo. 3 was this: that by the Loan Acts the Bank is made party to a contract between Parliament and the public, and has therefore the obligation laid upon it to represent any deviation from the terms of that contract, which prescribe that on the first day of the quarter the full sum due for the dividends should be paid to their chief cashier.

I had no intention, in my reply, to prescribe any course to you, or to give you my idea of your obligations under the Loan Acts, further than was necessary to elucidate the obligations under which I conceived the Bank to lie. The Act 57 Geo. 3 I looked upon as an Act to enable the Government, not to supersede, but to carry out, the provisions in question of the Loan Act; and with that view I presumed to question your construction of that Act.

I hope you will accept this as a personal explanation of the part which I have taken in this discussion.

I am, &c.
(signed) T. M. Weguelin.

P. S.—Of course I take no further steps in this matter, in bringing it, namely, before the Court of Directors, until you have considered the intended statement.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 12 April 1854.

I REGRET that you should have had the trouble of writing anything in the nature of a personal explanation, by way of reply to my letter of this day. It was on public and on general grounds alone that I felt it necessary to make the request it contained, before in any manner entertaining the suggestion which I thought, unless so preceded, might have led to some misapprehension of the nature and limits of my official responsibility. But I had not the smallest idea of calling in question anything that had been contained in your letters on any personal ground—letters which could only be more acceptable and useful to me in proportion as they were more frank.

On other grounds, indeed, I am now still more disposed to call in question your view and your statements, that is, on their merits, than I was when I wrote to you on the 7th. At that time I was not able to examine or to cause examination to be made of the whole case; but I would now beg to direct your particular attention to the following passage in your letter of the 7th:

“I have now before me the Act 54 Geo. 3, c. 76, and similar enactments are contained in other Loan Acts.”

Upon these words it may be useful that I should remark now, before the statement of the Bank is prepared, as follows: that if by “other Loan Acts” you mean some other Loan Acts, then the fact is in limine immaterial for the present purpose, until we have ascertained, by examination of the statutes, to what proportion of the now existing annuities the words apply; but if, on the other hand, you mean all other Loan Acts, then I shall, I believe, have to take issue with you on the fact itself, and to show, with reference to some of those Acts, embracing large portions of the public debt, that the words which you underline as material, and on which you rely, are not found in them at all, and, consequently, that the argument with respect to those portions of the dividends at once falls to the ground, irrespective of the entirely distinct question which I opened on Friday with respect to the powers and obligations created under the Act 57 Geo. 3, and upon which, as I understand, the Bank proposes to put a construction adverse to ours.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 13 April 1854.

I now beg to submit to you a statement I have caused to be prepared on the subject of the payment of the dividends on the National Debt, which shows the character in which the Bank has ventured to interfere, and the ground of its interference.

I have, &c.
(signed) T. M. Weguelin.

STATEMENT on Behalf of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England.

Paper (A.)

THE Loan Acts creating the public debt of this country contain provisions that the annuities thereby created shall be payable at the Bank of England on days therein named, viz., the 5th of April and 10th of October as to some annuities, and the 5th of January and 5th of July as to others; and that for the more easy and sure payment thereof, the Governor and Company of the Bank of England and their successors shall from time to time, until the said annuities shall be redeemed or determined, appoint and employ in their office in the city of London a chief or first cashier or cashiers, and an accountant-general, and that so much of the monies appropriated by Parliament to payment thereof as shall be sufficient from time to time to answer the said annuities shall, by order of the Commissioners of the Treasury, from time to time at the respective days of payment in the Act appointed for payment thereof, be issued and paid at the Exchequer to the chief cashier of the Bank, and that such cashier shall without delay pay the same accordingly, and render his accounts thereof according to the due course of the Exchequer; and that the accountant-general do inspect and examine the receipts and payments of the cashiers, and the vouchers for the same.

The Acts further provide that the Bank shall continue a corporation till the annuities thereby created are redeemed or determined.

The following clauses are taken from the first Loan Act of the last war, passed in the year 1794, and relate to annuities of 3 per cent., 4 per cent., and Long Annuities. They are substantially the same as the provisions contained in the earlier Acts, and are repeated in every Act for raising a loan during the last war. They are found in the Act 58 Geo. 3, c. 23, an Act passed in the year following that in which the Act arranging for the issue of Deficiency Bills was passed, and they are equally found in the Act 10 Vict. c. 9, the last Loan Act passed in this country:—

“ And be it enacted, by the King’s Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that every contributor towards raising the said sum of 11 millions shall, for every 100*l.* contributed and paid, be entitled to the principal sum of 100*l.* in annuities, after the rate of 3*l.* per centum per annum, and to a further principal sum of 25*l.* in annuities, after the rate of 4*l.* per centum per annum, redeemable by Parliament, the said annuity after the rate of 3*l.* per centum per annum to commence from the 5th day of January 1794, and the said annuity after the rate of 4*l.* per centum per annum to commence from the 10th day of October 1793; and shall also be entitled, in respect of every such 100*l.* so contributed, to a further annuity of 11*s.* 5*d.*, to continue for a certain term of 66 years and 3 months from the 10th day of October 1793, and then to cease; and that the said annuities after the rate of 3*l.* and of 4*l.* per centum, and of 11*s.* 5*d.*, in respect of each 100*l.* so to be contributed as aforesaid, shall be charged and chargeable upon, and are hereby charged upon and made payable out of, the Consolidated Fund, and shall be payable and transferable at the Bank of England; and the said annuity after the rate of 3*l.* per centum shall be paid half-yearly, on the 5th day of July and the 5th day of January in every year; and the said annuity after the rate of 4*l.* per centum shall be paid half-yearly on the 5th day of April and the 10th day of October in every year; and the said annuity of 11*s.* 5*d.*, to continue

"Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said Governor and Company of the Bank of England and their successors, notwithstanding the redemption of all or any of their own funds, in pursuance of the Acts for establishing the same, or any of them, shall continue a Corporation for the purposes of this Act, until all the annuities by this Act granted shall be redeemed by Parliament, or shall cease as aforesaid, and that the said Governor and Company of England, or any member thereof, shall not incur any disability for or by reason of their doing any matter or thing in pursuance of this Act."

In conformity with these Acts it has been the invariable practice to issue to the Bank of England from the Exchequer on the first day of each quarter the full amount required to pay the whole of the annuities constituting the public debt falling due that day, and the Bank have paid these to the public. Practically the payment of the dividends at the Bank occupies a considerable time, and the Bank do not pay away the whole of the money on the first day. The Bank give the first two days to bankers, who receive largely under powers of attorney, and in this manner nearly two-thirds of the whole is paid. The further payment varies according to the state of the weather and other circumstances.

31 Geo. 3, c. 33.
48 Geo. 3, c. 4.
56 Geo. 3, c. 97.

Provision is made by a series of Acts of Parliament for appropriating dividends unclaimed after a certain period to the public service. It is not necessary more particularly particularly to refer to these, but in fact the dividend remains in the hands of the Bank till paid to the stockholder, or appropriated under the authority of Parliament.

Upon the present quarterly payment the Chancellor of the Exchequer, instead of sending down the whole amount of dividends, has sent an amount which he considers sufficient to answer the demand he thinks likely to be made at the Bank. The Bank, however, apprehend that this is not a compliance with the provisions of the Loan Acts; and that, under those Acts, it is obligatory on the Government to provide and issue, and on the Bank to call for the whole amount of dividends on the day by the Acts of Parliament appointed for payment. In insisting on this view, the Bank are not looking to any consideration of pecuniary benefit, but simply to the discharge of what they consider to be their duty, as public agents appointed by Parliament, for the discharge of this particular service, and so appointed expressly with a view to give facility and confidence to the public, the words being, "for the more easy and sure payment of the annuities." The Bank of England understand that the Loan Acts constitute a contract between the Parliament and the public creditor, and that it is part of this contract, and expressly enacted for the security of the public creditor, that the dividends shall be payable and be paid at the Bank; and that to secure this payment being punctually made, the whole amount shall be in the hands of the officer of the Bank appointed in pursuance of the Act of Parliament on the days appointed for that purpose by the Legislature; and the Bank are continued a corporation till final redemption of the loan, that there may be no failure of that punctuality while the contract subsists. The Bank conceive, therefore, that it is not competent to the Government or the Bank to make any arrangement in derogation of these provisions, which are established for the benefit of the public creditor.

The Directors of the Bank apprehend that, under the provisions and for the purposes of the Loan Acts, the Bank is not a mere agent of the Government of the day to disburse such funds as are placed at its disposal for that purpose, but is constituted a public officer for the distribution of the dividends; and that a public duty is cast on the Bank to require from the Government the whole amount of dividends on the day named for payment of them in the Loan Acts.

The Bank understand the view of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as expressed in the correspondence, to be, that Parliament has so appropriated the funds in the Exchequer, that he has not the means of making the payment without resorting to the creation of Deficiency Bills, under the Act 57 Geo. 3, c. 48; that it is optional with the Treasury to issue Deficiency Bills; and that he considers it is not for the public service to issue them until the money is required for payment of the dividends to the public.

The Bank do not presume to interfere with the duties of the Treasury under the Act quoted.

Their duty is confined to pointing attention to the contract between the Government and the public, contained in the Loan Acts; and they submit that while those Acts continue, it is the duty of the Government to see that the funds are provided to fulfil the contract. If it is desired to alter the practice that has hitherto been observed, the Bank submit that that should be done by Parliament.

The Bank, however, would not be understood as thinking such an alteration would be desirable. They are of opinion that where a payment of this character is to be made to the public, the whole amount should be provided, and in the hands of the banker before the payment commences.

If provision is to be made for the payment upon an estimate of what will be required, it is quite possible that an error may, on some occasion, cause a suspension of payment, which would, to say the least, be discreditable; and it must be borne in mind that the Bank is prohibited by the Legislature from making advances to Government, except in a certain form; so that if the provision for the dividends made by the Exchequer happens to be deficient, they could not be paid. Whether such a case be likely to happen or not, must be matter of opinion, but there ought to be no risk of it; and at present the law does not leave any such hazard, because it requires the whole fund to be provided on the first day. Any suspicion of such a risk would be most injurious to public credit.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 13 April 1854.

I HAVE just received your letter, enclosing a legal statement on the part of the Bank.

Having read the first paragraph, I perceive that it appears to have been drawn up in ignorance of the facts to which I adverted in my letter of last night; and I shall therefore postpone probably even perusing it further until by your acknowledgment of my letter of last night I am made aware that it has been under your notice.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

P.S.—Before sending off this note, I have, for fear of causing you trouble, so far looked at or over the rest of the statement as to see that I have not misapprehended it in that particular point.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 17 April 1854.

WITH reference to your letter of the 12th instant, upon the subject of the payment of dividends on the National Debt, I directed a supplemental note to be drawn up to the statement which I had previously handed you. I have now the honour to enclose it.

I remain, &c.

Paper (B.)

Supplemental Note to the Statement of the Bank of England respecting the Payment of Dividends on the National Debt.

IN reference to the objection of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the statement is based upon a portion of the Loan Acts only, it is submitted that the fact that the practice, now for the first time deviated from, has existed from the earliest period, and that it is in conformity with the general course of legislation of the last 60 years, would alone render it proper that it should not be altered without authority of Parliament. Technically, it might suffice to state, that the Acts referred to embrace stocks of all the different denominations; and as each of these constitutes one joint stock, it is impossible to apply one rule to one part of the joint stock, and another to the residue. But the question does not really appear to be open to the objection stated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

In so numerous a body of Acts of Parliament, extending over so long a period, it is possible that many may have escaped observation; but generally, a further examination tends to show that the uniformity is greater than might have been anticipated.

In the statement submitted to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, it was not thought necessary to begin before the commencement of the last war. In point of fact the full amount of Three per Cent. Consolidated Annuities, and Reduced Three per Cent. Annuities then existing, has been redeemed by the Sinking Fund, so that the Acts referred to embrace the whole of those funds now subsisting a charge on the public.

The 3*l.* 5*s.* per Cent. Annuities were created on the reduction of the Annuities of 3*l.* 10*s.* per Cent. Annuities, originally Five per Cent. and Consolidated Four per Cent. Annuities.

The Acts creating these new annuities do not contain all the stock provisions in extenso; but they enact that "the dividends in respect of the new funds shall shall be charged and chargeable upon, and shall be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund in the same manner as the interest and dividends on the original stock then stood charged on the fund ;" so that the result is to place these new stocks in the same position as the old funds. Carrying back these enactments, it will be found that the whole of the funds of Navy Five per Cents. and Four per Cents. were created by Acts passed in and subsequent to the reign of George 3, and that these Acts almost uniformly contain the provisions in question. The same may be said of the Long Annuities. The first creation of these was in the year 1761, and all the Acts contain the provisions in question.

These funds substantially embrace the whole of the National Debt.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 18 April 1854.

I REGRET that after the reference which was made in my letter of the 13th to the error of fact contained in the opening paragraph of the statement which you on that day forwarded to me on the part of the Bank, you should have felt it your duty still to press, by your letter of the 17th, the challenge of the legality of the recent Order of the Treasury regulating the issue of Deficiency Bills. It is now, however, my duty to answer the communication placed in my hands by you on the 10th, and supported by the statement of the 13th.

In dealing with this matter, besides the one inviolable condition of strict legality in every proceeding, there are two considerations which I am especially bounden to bear in mind: firstly, the public advantage, so far as it is connected with the management of the public monies, in respect to which I am the responsible adviser of the Crown; and, secondly, the question to whom it is that I am thus responsible.

Adverting first to the latter of these considerations, I may remind you, that on the 12th of this month I admitted by implication the title of the Bank to call in question the legality of my proceedings on the part of the Treasury, if it could be shown that the Government were either departing from any compact into which they had entered with the Bank, or disabling the Bank from the discharge of any duties imposed upon it by the law.

In the statement before me it is not shown—indeed I must add it is not attempted to be shown—that either the one or the other of these cases has arisen. No compact with the Bank is alleged, so that this head may be summarily dismissed. Nor, I apprehend, will it be asserted that the fulfilment of any legal obligation of the Bank has been defeated. The only supposable statement of the case in that form that occurs to me is, that the Audit Roll was not supplied with a credit which would have defrayed on the first day of payment the whole charge of the dividends; but not only has this obligation never been recognised by the Bank, but, as I understand you (and on this point I am desirous of further information, both as to the course of proceeding and as to the grounds and warrant for it), no private individual can, according to the rules in force, receive his dividend from the Bank until several days after it has become due.

Neither, then, of the suppositions to which I referred having been made good, I cannot admit that the Bank is a party in the case; nor, therefore, can I act upon its official suggestion which I have received, to the effect that the legality of the Treasury Warrant of last week should, upon a case to be prepared by the solicitor of the Bank jointly with the solicitor of the Treasury, be submitted to the confirmation of legal authority.

I may say in passing, that I admit the doctrine that the Bank is, in the case before us, a public officer; but I limit it by the rule that its duties terminate at the point where its obligations, under statute, stand fully discharged.

But though I have thus stated my conclusions on the official part of the case, I cannot forget the importance any more than the delicacy of the informal relations between the Bank and the Government; and I fully and freely grant that as on the one hand the Finance Minister is accustomed to seek the confidential advice and opinions of the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank, and such other advice and opinions as they may kindly procure for him from their colleagues, so he, on his part, ought to welcome their unofficial and friendly warnings in regard to any steps which he may take with the view of promoting the public interest, but which they think illegal or (for I do not care to draw with jealousy the limits of a system of communication so beneficial) inexpedient.

I proceed therefore, on this footing, to touch upon some further points of the question.

I must entirely decline to admit the proposition of the supplemental note which you sent me on the 17th, that the practice in this case, and the conformity of that practice with the legislation of the last 60 years, "made it proper that it should not be altered without the authority of Parliament." For first, I cannot think it is here meant that the circumstances alleged render a resort to Parliament legally obligatory; yet that was the description of propriety with which I conceive the supplemental note had to do. Secondly, as to conformity with the legislation of the last 60 years, the expressions are ambiguous; they can hardly be intended to convey that the Bank is legally advised that if the Acts establishing nine loans out of ten direct monies to be issued from the Exchequer to the cashier of the Bank on certain days, therefore monies must be issued on the same days under the tenth Act, although that Act contains no such direction.

But the memorandum goes on to contend that the new stocks, or, to narrow the issue, let us say the stocks of 1844, are placed "in the same position as the old funds;" that is to say, are brought within the scope of the enactment cited in the "statement" from the 34th of Geo. 3, to the effect that the dividends due upon them shall be issued and paid to the cashier of the Bank "from time to time at the respective days of payment in this Act appointed for payment thereof."

I must observe, however, in passing, that the provision of the particular Act in question has never, if the view of the Bank be correct, been complied with at all. For the Act declares distinctly that the annuities shall be paid "on the 5th of April." But the practice for which the Bank contended last week was, that the money for the payment should be provided only on the 6th of April; while it began to pay such part of the annuities as were receivable through bankers on the 8th, and, as I understand, it did not pay any private individuals until the 11th.

But I must dwell more particularly on the manner in which the supplemental note deals with the case of the Acts of 1844.

Now on this case, if for argument's sake I admit the general doctrine of the Bank, the legality of the proceeding of last week entirely turns; for there is no doubt that monies amply sufficient to cover the whole of the dividends except those under the Acts of 1844, were issued on the usual day to the cashier.

Let us see then what the case is.

The supplemental note cites the section which stands No. 5 in cap. 4, and No. 2 in cap. 5, of the Acts of 1844. This section provides in general words that the new dividends "shall be charged and chargeable upon, and shall be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund in the same manner as the old dividends stand charged on the said fund."

I conceive no one who is conversant in any degree with the language of our Loan Acts can for a moment hesitate to say what is the scope and purport of this section. It is to create the charge upon the Consolidated Fund; without which technical but indispensable form the strongest words in an Act, though defining time, place, persons, and everything else, would not entitle a creditor to receive or the Government to pay one farthing.

This purpose of the section is shown by the limited, and on any other supposition not easily explicable, reach of the concluding words, "in the same manner as the stand charged on the said fund."

How little it has to do with the time at which money is to be issued to the cashier of the Bank by the Government, is plain from the fact that it evidently is not meant even to fix the time at which the annuity shall become payable at all; for in both the Acts this is fixed by other sections not under view.

Will any one assert that the obligation of the Government to issue money to the cashier at all for the payment of the dividends, considered as apart from their obligation to pay the annuitant, under these Acts, depends on this particular section? I think not. For while their words are thus general, and are obviously directed to making good the title of the annuitant, and not to the machinery of antecedent provision, the statutes contain other words, to which, I must observe, the supplemental note makes no reference, words quite as much in extenso as those in the ordinary Loan Acts, which do deal, and deal minutely and completely, with the machinery of issue. These, therefore, I submit, and not the words of a section which is rational and satisfactory for its own very clear purpose, but utterly vague and void of meaning, and out of harmony with the whole structure of our Loan Acts, if this foreign purpose be thrust upon it,—must, upon every principle, and beyond all doubt, indicate and govern the manner of such issue.

These enactments, contained in sect. 11 of cap. 4, and sect. 9 of cap. 5, provide with the usual care and particularity for the issuing of the money “necessary from time to time for the payment of the said annuities:” and this section is the one corresponding in its general form and function with the section on which, as cited from other Acts, the statement you have forwarded to me relies; but this section does not contain one word about the days on which the issues to the cashier are to be made.

I do not raise the question whether, supposing our Loan Acts did not contain such a section as this, a creditor might not require and enforce payment of his annuities at a given day, perhaps upon a day on which, according to the existing practice, as I understand the statement, it would be refused him. But I apprehend he would do it under section 1, which prescribes the time of paying these dividends, and not under the section which I have been discussing.

If, however, more evidence still is wanting that this section does not refer to time, I beg you to take notice that it would have been nothing less than absurd to pass such an enactment for the purpose of fixing the times of payment, under the vague word “manner,” to be the same with those of the old stocks, when as to a portion of those stocks the times were absolutely altered by one of the Acts (cap. 5, sect. 7), from January and July to April and October.

I cannot close this part of my statement without expressing a pretty confident belief that it is fairly open to objection as being labour thrown away in refuting a construction which even the supplemental note avoids stating, and which I am, therefore, justified in saying has not yet been before me as seriously maintained.

So far, therefore, as regards the proceeding of last week, inasmuch as the arguments you have raised rest upon matters of fact which do not exist in the particular case, I do not find in it those presumptions on which alone I could reasonably, for my own satisfaction, found a reference to legal authority.

These considerations, however, do not apply to the July dividends. The subject is complicated, and I am willing to take the facts upon any statement of them to which you will pledge yourself. And here it appears to me that if you assure me all, or nearly all, the Loan Acts applicable to that period require the issue to the cashier on the particular day, it would be well to examine into what I think are points of law that cannot be subjected, considering the subject matter, to too rigid a scrutiny. These are (but, I beg you to understand, that if any of them have already been settled by competent authority, then I have no wish further to stir them):

1. Whether when the unappropriated monies in the Exchequer have been paid over to the cashier under the Acts, and, to make up the whole amount of the dividends, a further sum remains as yet unprovided, the Treasury is bound by law to borrow such further sum under the Deficiency Bills Act, and to issue it on the same day to the cashier.

2. What is the day on which by law such issue should be made.

3. What authority is possessed by the Bank or by the Government to lay down any rules as to any particular days on which the dividends shall be paid to particular persons or classes, to the exclusion of every other public creditor or class of public creditors who might apply.

I take it to be your wish, on the footing to which I have above referred, that these matters should be examined; and though I have no doubt in my own mind as to the nature of my duty under the Deficiency Bills Act, and have seen no reason to doubt the advice I have received, I will cause a case to be prepared for submission to the law officers of the Crown, and our solicitor will be very glad of any aid or suggestions upon it which you can allow the solicitor of the Bank to afford him.

But as the statement touches upon the policy of the old and unaltered practice, I must express my decided opinion, that so far as the Government and Parliament are concerned, the former usage is one that has only escaped change because it has very much escaped notice. It is in my view most unjust to the public, first, because it propagates delusion as to the amount of accommodation really received on any given occasion from the Bank, not less than as to the price paid for it; and secondly, because I must confess I do not think it affords a guarantee that that price shall be a reasonable one. As to the security of the public creditor, I regard that security as resting on the inviolability of the public faith, and the punctual payment of his dividends; the first of these being supported, so far as human foresight can ensure it, by a surplus of revenue over expenditure, and the second by a balance adequate to the most liberal estimate of demand. But as to any connexion between that security and the creation of a credit by loan upon one public account very far beyond all possible occasion for it, and a debit on another in great part unreal, but yet creating by its nominal amount very real alarms, I confess that I regard this as one of the yet remaining financial fictions, of which I conceive that the sooner they are dispelled the better.

I must add, that I have seen with satisfaction that a partial effort to dispel this particular fiction has been attended with some public advantage.

I remain, &c.

The Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Sir,

Bank of England, 22 April 1854.

YOUR letter of the 18th instant has had my anxious consideration, for I was desirous of deriving from it suggestions as to the best means of settling the question of the obligations of the Bank under the Loan Acts, consistent with the avoidance of unnecessary publicity, and the strong objection, which you will do me the favour to believe, I have always felt to interfere with your just position as Chancellor of the Exchequer. It was with this object that my representations were made in the first instance in the informal and unofficial manner to which you refer; and with the same view, the proposition of the Committee of Treasury to obtain the opinion of the law officers of the Crown was communicated to you on the 10th instant.

It appears, from your letter of the 18th, that you are willing to accede to this request, in so far as the January and July dividends are concerned, but that you demur to this course as regards the legality of the Treasury Warrants lately issued, the legality of which, as they were issued under your official responsibility, you do not consider it competent in the Bank to call in question.

Did I not consider the subject one of deep importance in a public point of view, the settlement of which is indispensable for the future guidance of the Bank, I should be content to leave it in your hands, feeling that, if the question rested upon the permission the Governors of the Bank have always received to submit to yourself and your predecessors their confidential advice and opinions on financial matters, my duty had been fulfilled, and that it would be, after the strong expression of your opinion on the case, indelicate and improper to continue the discussion.

Excuse me then if I press upon you the reasons which impel me to request you will not persist in limiting the reference to the subject of the July and January dividends, but will allow it to include the whole subject.

I am informed that the words in the Act 54 Geo. 3, requiring the dividends to be paid to the cashiers of the Bank on the half-yearly days of payment, are contained in all the Acts creating the Consolidated Three per Cents. and Long Annuities, which are the funds payable in January and July; and also in all the Acts creating the Reduced Three per Cents.

If

If Parliament has altered the law in regard to the Three-and-a-Quarter per Cent. Stock, the Bank will be relieved from further consideration of the dividends on that fund; but this is a question of law in the construction of the Acts of Parliament, and on which the Bank considers advice more peculiarly necessary. It seems to me that no such alteration has been intentionally made. The form of words originally adopted has been used in creation of stock by the subsequent Loan Act of 1847, and the practice contemplated by the old law has been maintained since the passing of the Act of 1844. Assuming that there was no intention to alter the law, that construction of the Act of Parliament would seem to be most proper which leaves the law intact; and I am advised that the words of the Act of 1844, by which the dividends on the new stock are made chargeable upon the Consolidated Fund, and directed to be issued and paid out of it, in the same manner as the dividends on the old fund were charged on it, may properly be read as carrying on the obligation to pay those dividends to the Bank on the days on which, by the Act of Parliament, they become due. That it may also be insisted, that the concluding words of the clause do not restrain the effect of it to charging the dividends on the Consolidated Fund; but that the words "issued and paid," in the clause, should have effect given to them; and that if the dividends are "to be paid" in the same manner "as the former dividends stood charged," they are to be paid to the cashiers of the Bank on the half-yearly days of payment; and that this charge is not necessarily affected by the alteration of the days of payment appointed by the Act.

This, however, is a question of the legal construction of an Act of Parliament, upon which the Bank desire the best legal advice; and it is due to myself and to the Bank, that I should point out to you, that we are not now discussing an official remonstrance and complaint offered by the Bank, but a suggestion by the Bank, that a legal question, appearing to them of great importance in their relations with the Government, should be submitted to the responsible law officers of the Crown. I must however add, that, if under such advice, the dividends are to be provided for, not as hitherto, by a full payment, but on an estimate of the probable calls of the public, the case of a possible mistake must be contemplated, and the Bank must be relieved from the disability they would now be under, to make advances to pay such dividends.

On two of the three subjects of inquiry mentioned in your letter, considered as legal questions, I think it is not in the province of the Bank to give an opinion. The third relates to the practice of the Bank, with reference to the payment of the dividends. This is, if I may so call it, entirely a police regulation for the purpose of keeping order. Bankers and others, who have large lists of dividends to receive upon powers of attorney, &c., failing such regulation would, during the first few days, entirely occupy the counter, to the exclusion of the general public. This would cause great dissatisfaction and possible disorder. The first two days are, therefore, devoted to the issuing of the warrants to those persons who have lists; but, in order to avoid any imputation of unfairness, these warrants are not paid until the day when the public generally is paid. I cannot state, of my own knowledge, why the Exchequer Warrants are not issued until the day after the dividends are due; but I understand the reason to be, that the accounts of income and expenditure are only made up on the quarter-day, and consequently the warrants can only be issued on the day following.

I have hitherto endeavoured to restrict my observations to the legal view of the question, but, if I may be permitted, without prejudice to that restricted view, and upon the confidential footing upon which you permit me to address you, to notice the remarks you make on the policy of this change, leading, as they do, to the inference that the public has been misled, and that the Bank has profited in an unusual manner by what you are pleased to call a financial fiction, I beg to say that I cannot think the advantages of the change in either sense to be very great.

I must own my preference for the policy of maintaining a custom which has been sanctioned by so many Acts of Parliament and the practice of so many years—a policy which undertakes to provide, in the hands of its bankers, the full sum of money due by the State on the day when it falls due—and which I may confidently aver to be the practice not only of every other solvent State, but of every solvent company or individual. A practice so universally understood could hardly lead to misapprehension or alarm on the part of the public, apart from the state of the Banking Reserve; but an alteration renders an estimate of the probable effect on the Reserve more difficult, as the means of comparison will be gone.

I have, in the course of this discussion, always set aside the pecuniary interests of the Bank, and judging from the experiment in the course of trial, I should say they are in a very trifling degree affected. But in a banking point of view, I must say I think the profit made, whatever it is, perfectly legitimate, and strictly in conformity with usage.

(signed) T. M. Weguelin.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

My dear Sir,

Downing-street, 27 April 1854.

COMMENCING with the remarks contained in the latter portion of your letter of the 22d, I really had hoped that by repeated declarations, as explicit as I was able to make them, I had shown that the various propositions maintained by me in this correspondence, and likewise in the parallel correspondence between us respecting the augmented balances of the public money with the Bank since 1844, were urged without the slightest imputation upon the Bank, either of any breach of duty towards the public, or of any gains which the Bank was not most fully justified in appropriating.

If, indeed, I thought, as it appears to me you think, that it belongs to the Bank, as a public officer, to question at least certain proceedings of the Treasury which they think disadvantageous to the public, or at variance with law, upon the ground of such assumed variance or disadvantage, although such proceedings do not in the smallest degree incapacitate the Bank for the discharge of the duties imposed by statute upon it or its officers, then, with my views, I should be compelled to maintain that the Bank was to blame for not having suggested the modification of arrangements which have imposed unnecessary charges on the public, and which have propagated and sustained impressions respecting the state of the Exchequer and the public credit, both incorrect in themselves and injurious to the public interests. If, in this matter, the Bank were responsible at all, it would, no doubt, be peculiarly responsible, because the arrangements in question are such as lie more immediately within its view.

But, in my opinion, no blame whatever can attach to the Bank, because I think it has no such responsibility and no such duty. You, I am aware, would vindicate the Bank upon a different ground, namely, this, that the arrangements do not correspond with the character I give them; but you could not more completely exempt it from blame than I do.

At the same time you will perceive that my duty requires of me that I should apply the rule dictated by my own view of the position of the Bank, considerately and respectfully I admit, but yet with consistency and with firmness.

The case between us now stands thus: first, you have considered that, though there may be no money in the Exchequer to meet those words of the Loan Acts which require a payment to be made on certain days to your cashiers, the Treasury is bound to borrow, under the 57th Geo. 3, for the purpose of putting such money into the Exchequer on those days, in order to carry it over to the Audit Roll Account. I, after such consideration and consultation as I think belongs to my office, differ from you; but, nevertheless, not being prepared to say that the argument raised upon those words is frivolous, or that the case is wholly free from at least colourable doubt, and having also had my attention called in the discussion to some other points on which I am myself doubtful whether the present practice of the Bank and of the Government is strictly legal, I propose to prepare a case for the law officers of the Crown.

In

In the course of the discussion, however, I called your attention to the fact of which I apprehend you were till then unaware, and which indeed was wholly at variance with the terms of the legal statement you had sent me on the part of the Bank; namely, this, that certain Acts, on which it happens that for the April and October dividends the whole question turns, did not contain the words on which you had founded your case. You then found a similar argument upon another section in those Acts; with respect to which section it appears to me, proceeding as before, that it does not raise any fair colourable doubt with respect to the obligations of the Government. But you state "that this is a question of law on which the Bank considers advice more peculiarly necessary." I am obliged to reply, that the Bank, in my judgment, as a body, has no concern whatever in the matter (except on the ground of its pecuniary interest, which may be more or less involved, and which I wish to leave entirely open for discussion); and that as respects your own suggestion, I really think I have not been indifferent to it, or indisposed to give it due weight when, in consequence of it, I am about to take an opinion of the law officers (whom you call the responsible persons in this matter, but I apprehend in error, for, beyond doubt, I am the person responsible to Parliament), which but for your suggestion I should not have taken.

That opinion, when obtained, may throw further light upon the question; and if such should be the case, I shall of course hold it my duty to profit by them, whatever may be their bearing upon any act of mine; but as matters now stand, I think you will perceive that I must abide by the conclusions and intentions announced in my letter of the 18th.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Right Honourable W. E. Gladstone to the Governor of the Bank.

My dear Hubbard,

Downing-street, 15 June 1854.

I MUST not much longer delay my formal note to you, respecting Deficiency Bills for the next quarter; and as yet I do not know when I shall have the opinion of the law officers upon the points which I have submitted to them. Should I not receive it before the close of the quarter, I shall follow the usual practice as to the issue.

I would, however, suggest at once for your consideration, that whether the usual course is followed or not, there ought to be at once, and pending any more comprehensive consideration of the relations between the Government and the Bank, some change as to the mode and amount of charge of interest upon Deficiency Bills. I apprehend that 12 months ago none of us knew as much as we now know of the state of the case. But with the knowledge we now possess, and after the discussions, very incomplete as they have been, which have taken place, I do not believe it is for the interest of any party that the basis of the charge of interest on these bills should be measured by an issue nominal in its character. I call it nominal, founding myself upon the principle, that for this purpose the public balances are in truth one balance.

I am not now so much making a claim on behalf of the public, as suggesting a topic which deserves your consideration, I think, on prudential grounds. If, indeed, I make the issue in the usual manner, I have no power whatever in the case. If the law gives me a discretion, then I have the same limited power which was exercised in April; but I then exercised it subject to the admission that there might be room to discuss the matter in reference to the pecuniary interests of the Bank. I look forward, no doubt, to an early and careful revision of the relations between the Bank and the State, as employed and employer, and to a clear and full recognition of the principle, that in paying the dividends the Bank acts for the State, as it does in other matters of disbursement, and not as a trustee for the holders of stock. But it is the last thing that I should desire, even had I the power, which it is pretty clear that I can only have in a very limited degree, to anticipate the results of such a revision by any sudden measure, or by pressing any extreme or disputable claim.

I have no intention, therefore, of doing more at the present time with respect to the charge of interest on Deficiency Bills, than leaving to your free consideration the suggestion which this letter contains.

I am, &c.

My dear Gladstone,

Bank, 16 June 1854.

I WILL bring before the Commissioners of Treasury the considerations on which your letter of yesterday suggests we might enter, with a view "to some change in the mode and amount of charge of interest upon Deficiency Bills;" and I will lose no time in communicating to you the result of their deliberations.

Your decision that the usual practice is to be followed in the issue of the Deficiency Bills for the July dividends, makes the delay, in the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown, less important; yet even as bearing upon the considerations you now present to the Bank, the early settlement of the question submitted to them is desirable.

(signed) J. G. Hubbard.

My dear Gladstone,

Bank, 29 June 1854.

I AGAIN mentioned your letter of the 15th instant to the Commissioners of Treasury yesterday, but all the members present united in opinion that it would be impracticable and useless to entertain any question connected with the "mode and amount of charge on Deficiency Bills," until the Law Officers had delivered their opinion.

It is quite true that a confirmation of our office as "trustees for the public creditor in the receipt of the dividends," will simplify the consideration of the subject very materially; but it seems evident to me, that even a contrary decision would leave the course pursued last April open to objection "as not conducive" to the interest of the state.

I enclose a statement, from which you will perceive that the interest (at 2 d. per cent. per diem) on the amount of the Deficiency Bills, which we should have held on the usual mode of issue, would have been 10,104 l. 8 s. 4 d., and that had we charged the amount issued upon the plan of feeding the Audit Roll, in proportion to the demands of the dividend holders, with interest at the current rate of five per cent., the sum would have been 14,505 l. 6 s. 10 d.

The fact is, that conscious of the difference between the cash advance and the amount of Deficiency Bills, the Bank have habitually charged upon these last less than the actual value of money on loan, by adopting the Exchequer Bill interest. And I do not doubt that the Bank would readily agree that it shall always be so, and that the sum charged shall not exceed what might result result from the application of the actual rate of interest upon the Deficiency Bills, reduced under the operation which has this last quarter been introduced.

But then à quoi bon these changes? Cannot a popular misapprehension of the question be removed by other means? I have always understood Deficiency Bills to be issuable at the last day of the quarter, for the amount required (in addition to the balances in the Exchequer) to discharge the obligations incurred up to that same day; and to be issued at the last day of the quarter for that same amount, short of the Civil List, Pensions, and Salaries, for which provision was gradually made.

The amount of Deficiency Bills, chargeable upon any quarter, has therefore represented the actual deficiency existing at the close of the preceding quarter; and I do not see how misapprehension can arise from continuing to call by the same name that which continues to represent the same fact. The concurrent facts may be so stated as to effectually prevent any mistake. Thus :

“ On the 5th of April 1854, the actual deficiency chargeable was 5,852,000 l. But of the bills thus created, 812,000 l. would be immediately redeemed out of the surplus revenue in the hands of the Commissioners, and the issue immediately required in provision for the dividends would be only 4,831,000 l. The charge of a low rate of interest upon these Deficiency Bills (pending their gradual extinction) would not imply that the Bank had no Government balances in its hands, but those balances would be the source of the gain to the Bank, which compensate it for the trouble of keeping the Government accounts, and to make them available they must be maintained up to a certain level.”

Such a statement would be plain enough to any one familiar with the custom of banking, and would not be difficult to any one.

Practically, all that can be requisite as between the Government and the Bank, is that the amount of deposits should be so regulated as to afford to the Bank a fair, and not extravagant, remuneration for the service it renders to the Government in acting as its banker. Upon this subject I am instituting a close inquiry, and you shall have its results as soon as it is completed.

I remain, &c.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Governor of the Bank.

My dear Hubbard,

Downing-street, 30 June 1854.

I NEED not trouble you with any detailed reply to your letter, except to say that I do not think there is any chance of the "confirmation of your office" as trustees for the public creditor in the receipt of the dividends.

I accept your reply with regard to present arrangements about interest on Deficiency Bills, and I shall wait contentedly for your promised statement and estimate of the sum which ought to be paid by the public to its banker.

I remain, &c.

CASE as to Deficiency Bills.

THE Attorney and Solicitor-general are requested to advise the Chancellor of the Exchequer as to the times and amounts at which Deficiency Bills are to be made out and are to be issued in reference to the statutes hereinafter mentioned.

A number of what are called Loan Acts have, from time to time, been passed, and by way of illustration attention may at present be directed to statute 54 Geo. 3, c. 76.

That is an Act for raising 24 millions by way of annuities, 28 June 1814.

The contributors are to be entitled in respect of every 100 l. subscribed, to certain annuities at the rates of 5 l. per cent. and 3 l. per cent., the first payable on the 5th of January and 5th July in every year, the last on the 10th October and 5th April in every year.

54 Geo. 3, c. 76,
s. 1.
Sec. 5.
Sec. 6.

They are transferable at the Bank of England; and the Governor and Company are required, as soon as conveniently may be after the passing of the Act, to prepare books for the names of the contributors, and to cause credit to be given for the amounts contributed, and such sums shall carry the respective annuities before mentioned, and shall be taken and deemed to be stock transferable under the Act until redemption.

"All the annuities aforesaid shall be payable and paid and be transferable at the Bank of England.

Sec. 9.

"So much money shall, from time to time, be set apart and issued, at the receipt of the Exchequer in England, out of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain, to the cashier or cashiers of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, as shall be sufficient to satisfy and pay the respective annuities to be created in respect of the said sum of 24 millions, together with the charges attending the same.

Sec. 10.

"All the said annuities, interest, and dividends, which shall become payable in respect of the said sum of 24 millions, shall be charged and chargeable upon, and are hereby charged upon and made payable out of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain.

Sec. 11.

"And for the more easy and sure payment of all the annuities established by this Act, be it further enacted, that the said Governor and Company of the Bank of England, and their successors, shall from time to time, until all the said annuities shall be redeemed or shall cease, appoint and employ one or more sufficient person or persons within their office in the city of London to be their chief or first cashier or cashiers, and one other sufficient person within the same office to be their accountant-general, and that so much of monies by this Act appropriated for the purpose as shall be sufficient from time to time to answer the said annuities and other payments herein directed to be made out of the said moneys in respect of the said sum of 24 millions shall, by order of the Commissioners of the Treasury of Great Britain, or any three or more of them, or the High Treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, without any further warrant to be sued for, had, or obtained in that behalf, from time to time, at the respective days of payment in this Act appointed for payment thereof, be issued and paid, at the receipt of the Exchequer of Great Britain, to the said first or chief cashier or cashiers of the said Governor and Company of the Bank of England, and their successors for the time being, by way of imprest and upon account for the payment of the annuities in respect of the said sum of 24 millions, payable by virtue of this Act, and that such cashier or cashiers to whom the said money shall from time to time be issued, shall from time to time, without delay, pay the same accordingly, and render his or their accounts thereof according to the due course of the Exchequer in Great Britain, and that the said accountant-general for the time being shall from time to time inspect and examine all receipts and payments of the said cashier or cashiers, and the vouchers relating thereto, in order to prevent any fraud, negligence, or delay."

Sec. 12.

The cashiers are to give receipts to the contributors, and to give security to the Treasury for paying the amounts into the receipt of Her Majesty's Exchequer quer in Great Britain, and for performance of the trust hereby reposed in them.

Sec. 13.

Sec. 15. The contributors shall have and be entitled to the said annuities out of the monies granted and appropriated in this Session of Parliament for payment thereof, and shall have good and sure interests therein according to the provisions in the Act contained free from all taxes, &c.

Sec. 21. The Treasury is to defray from the contributions all incidental charges.

Sec. 22. The Bank is to retain 800 l. out of every million, as an allowance for the service, pains, and labour of the said cashiers employed in receiving, paying, and accounting for the same, and of the said accountant-general for performing the trusts reposed in him by this Act, which allowance shall be for the use of the Governor and Company, and their disposal only.

Sec. 23. These Five per Cent. Stocks and Three per Cent. Stocks are to be added to the Sec. 24. Five per Cent. Stocks and Three per Cent. Stocks already created by previous enumerated Acts.

Sec. 27. "The Bank, notwithstanding the redemption of all or any of their own funds, in pursuance of the Acts for establishing them, shall continue a corporation for the purposes of this Act, until the annuities shall cease or be redeemed."

It will be observed that in section 12 so much of the monies appropriated by this Act as shall be sufficient from time to time to answer the said annuities, are directed from time to time, at the respective days of payment by this Act appointed for payment thereof, to be issued and paid at the receipt of the Exchequer to the said first or chief cashier, &c.

In 1817 the Act passed for issuing Deficiency Bills for making good any occasional deficiency in the Consolidated Fund.

57 Geo. 3, c. 48,
s. 6.

The 6th section is as follows :

"And whereas it may happen that the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom may at certain times be deficient in amount to answer the several charges thereupon arising in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, and it is expedient that provision should be made for making good such deficiency, in case the same should arise :

"Be it therefore enacted, that if upon making up the accounts of the income and charge of the said Consolidated Fund in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, for the quarters ending on the 5th day of April, the 5th day of July, the 10th day of October, and the 5th day of January, in any year, it shall appear to the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury that the produce of the said Fund is not sufficient to defray the charges thereupon in Great Britain or in Ireland respectively, then and in such case it shall and may be lawful for the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them for the time being, from time to time, by warrant under their hands, to cause or direct any number of Exchequer Bills to be made out at the receipt of His Majesty's Exchequer in Great Britain, for such sum or sums of money as shall be sufficient to make up such deficiency in Great Britain or Ireland respectively ; and such Exchequer Bills shall be made out in the same or like manner, form, and order, and according to the same or like rules and directions as are directed and prescribed in and by an Act made in the 48th year of the reign of His present Majesty, intituled 'An Act for regulating the issuing and paying off of Exchequer Bills.'"

These bills, it will be observed, are to make good the deficiency in amount to answer the several charges upon the Consolidated Fund, not the annuities, interest, or dividends only charged on it by Loan Acts, but all the charges, viz., salaries, pensions, civil list, &c.

And it may be right to remark that these Deficiency Bills are substituted for the provisions of statute 27 Geo. 3, c. 13 (imperfectly recited in 57 Geo. 3, c. 48), enacted for the same purposes, and which are as follows (in full) :

27 Geo. 3, c. 13,
s. 58.

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if at any future day or time at which any annuity or annuities shall become due and payable, the produce of the several duties composing the said fund, called the Consolidation Fund, established by this Act, shall not be sufficient to answer and pay all the annuities and other charges that shall become due and payable on any quarterly or other day of payment, the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury now being, or any three or more of them, or the High Treasurer, or any three or more of the Commissioners of the Treasury for the time being, shall and in every such case are hereby authorised, empowered, and required, out of any money which shall then be remaining in the receipt of the Exchequer of aids or supplies that shall have been granted to His Majesty for the service of the year in which such deficiency shall happen, to apply such sum and sums of money as shall be sufficient fully and completely to answer and make good such deficiency, so that the public creditor may by no means whatever be disappointed of receiving his whole annuity or demand on the public, and all such sum and sums of money so issued out of any of the said aids or supplies for the purposes aforesaid, shall be replaced to the service or services to which the same may have been appropriated by Parliament out of the next or any future quarter's surplus of the income, of the duties and revenues composing the said Consolidated Fund; any Act or Acts of Parliament, or any clause or clauses contained in any Act or Acts of Parliament for the application of the surplus of such funds to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding; and the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury now being, or any three or more of them, or the High Treasurer, or any three or more of the Commissioners of the Treasury for the time being, are hereby directed, authorised, and required to cause the same to be issued and applied accordingly; and the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury now being, or the High Treasurer or Commissioners of the Treasury for the time being, without any further or other warrant to be sued for, had, or obtained in that behalf, shall and may from time to time cause to be issued at the receipt of His Majesty's Exchequer, the several and respective annuities and other sums payable out of the taxes, duties, and revenues composing the said fund, or out of the monies applicable to the supplies of the year, in the manner and at the times by this Act authorised."

The Deficiency Bills thus created and issued under this statute of 57 Geo. 3, ^{57 Geo. 3, c. 48,} c. 48, are to bear interest not exceeding $3\frac{1}{2}$ d. per cent. per diem. ^{s.}

And it is further enacted, "That it shall and may be lawful for the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, and for the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland, and they are hereby respectively empowered to take, accept, and receive the Exchequer Bills as authorised to be made out in pursuance of this Act, and to advance or lend to His Majesty, at the receipt of the Exchequer in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, upon the credit of such Exchequer Bills, any sum or sums of money not exceeding in the whole the sum necessary to make good such deficiency of the Consolidated Fund in Great Britain or Ireland respectively."

Sec. 9.

The Commissioners of the Treasury are "authorised and empowered to cause such Exchequer Bills to be placed as so much cash in the respective offices of the tellers of the receipt of His Majesty's Exchequer in Great Britain: each and every of which tellers shall be severally charged with the proportion of the said bills which shall be so placed in his office respectively as so much cash."

Sec. 10.

The said Exchequer Bills in the hands of the tellers shall be locked up and secured as cash according to the course of the receipt of the Exchequer in Great Britain, and shall be taken and esteemed as so much in part of the remains in real money wherewith each of the said tellers shall from time to time stand charged in common with other the monies in the said receipt of the Exchequer, and it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Treasury to issue and apply the same to defraying the charges upon the Consolidated Fund remaining unpaid in Great Britain by reason of such deficiency.

Sec. 11.

The principal sums of money contained in such Exchequer Bills, with the interest due thereon, shall be and are made chargeable and charged upon the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund in the next succeeding quarter; and the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are authorised from time to time, by warrant under their hands, to direct the Auditor of the receipt of the Exchequer to issue to such persons as shall be named in the warrants, out of the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund of the next succeeding quarter, any sums not exceeding a sum sufficient to discharge and pay off the principal sums contained in such Exchequer Bills then outstanding, with all interest then due.

Thus it seems these Deficiency Bills are to be directed by the Treasury from time to time to be made out, the Treasury is to cause them to be placed as so much cash in the offices of tellers, the tellers are to lock them up and secure them as cash, and the Treasury are to issue and apply the same to defraying the charges on the Consolidated Fund, and the Bank are empowered to take and receive the bills, and advance and lend to His Majesty on the credit of such bills a sum not exceeding in the whole the sum necessary to make good the deficiency in the Consolidated Fund.

In 1834 the office of the tellers of the Exchequer was abolished by statute 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 15, s. 1.

Sec. 8. All monies, bills, notes, and securities for money belonging to the Crown in the chests, or in the keeping, or at the disposal of the tellers of His Majesty's Exchequer, were to be paid into the Bank of England to the credit of His Majesty's Exchequer, and an account was to be thereupon opened by the Governor and Company, to be called "The account of His Majesty's Exchequer."

Sec. 9. All public monies which, previous to the commencement of that Act, shall have been payable into His Majesty's Exchequer at Westminster, shall be paid into the Bank of England to the credit of the Exchequer.

Sec. 10. All monies paid into the Bank on account of the Exchequer shall be treated by the Bank as forming one fund in their book.

Sec. 26. All Exchequer Bills made out under the authority of any Act of Parliament shall be prepared, made out, and numbered in the office of the Comptroller-general (whose office is created by this Act) at such times and in such forms as the Commissioners of the Treasury should from time to time direct, and the several regulations for the making out, issuing, and paying off Exchequer Bills, established by statute 48 Geo. 3, c. 1, or by any other Act with respect to the issue and application of Exchequer Bills under the authority of such Acts, shall continue in force, except as altered by this Act, and such bills shall all be signed by the Comptroller, and shall be issued and applied to the public service at such times and in such manner as shall be directed by the Commissioners of the Treasury, or in such manner and upon such authorities as shall have been specially directed with respect thereto by any Act or Acts, such Comptroller taking care that such bills are made and issued according to law.

There has been one practice as to the issue of such an amount of Deficiency Bills as is necessary to meet the interest and dividends upon the loans, and another practice as to the issue of such an amount as is necessary to meet the other charges on the Consolidated Fund.

As to the other charges, Deficiency Bills (when there is a deficiency) are issued to the Paymaster-general at such times as are convenient for the public service; but as to dividends, an amount equal to the whole deficiency has in practice been issued to the Bank, and in their hands on the first day of the quarter, that is to say, on the first day after that on which the interest and dividends are, by the several Loan Acts, made payable; for example, on the 6th of January and 6th of July.

Upon this amount of Deficiency Bills the public would pay interest to the Bank, though in truth no advance should be made by the Bank; and the apparent accommodation afforded by the Bank to the public would be, in great part (more often wholly), imaginary and illusory.

For in practice it is often found, that long before the public have come in to ask for the full amount of the quarter's dividends, the growing produce of the ensuing quarter has become sufficient to pay off some or all of the Deficiency Bills, though in the meantime the interest upon such bills has been payable to the Bank.

This produce of the ensuing quarter, it will be remarked, is not directly applicable to the payment of the dividends or other charges on the Consolidated Fund of the bygone quarter, though it is applicable to the redemption of the Deficiency Bills that have been issued to meet such dividends or other charges.

And

And practically it occurs, that Deficiency Bills are issued to meet other charges (than dividends) upon the Consolidated Fund, at a time when there is already an equal or greater amount in hand of the growing produce of the quarter, and this amount in hand is immediately applied in redemption of the Deficiency Bills, so that they are issued and redeemed at the same time and no interest is incurred for them. And if a similar practice were pursued as to all Deficiency Bills, as well those intended to make good the interest and dividends on loans, as the other charges on the Consolidated Fund, there would occasionally be a very great saving of interest to the public, and a great apparent advance by the Bank to the public (which has been much misunderstood and misrepresented) would be avoided.

It is, with something like precision, known from long experience, what amount of dividends will not be asked for by the public for some days or weeks; and, at all events, a large margin can be left in the issue of Deficiency Bills, making it practically impossible that any public creditor will be delayed, that is to say, Deficiency Bills may be issued in such amounts as to ensure with all human certainty, "that the public creditor may by no means whatever be disappointed of receiving his whole annuity or demand on the public." Supposing it possible, which it hardly is, that all the demands could be made the first day, nothing would be easier than to provide for them by fresh issues of Deficiency Bills on that day. They can be supplied in sums of 50,000 l. each faster than the Bank can pay 5 l. notes, sovereigns, silver, and copper over the counter.

A question therefore arises, whether any legal obligation on the Treasury exists to borrow money, by issuing to the Bank, on the first day of each quarter, Deficiency Bills to make up the whole amount of the dividends then directed to be paid.

The Bank disclaim all right of insisting upon it, with a view to the interest on such bills, or for any other pecuniary motive. Their pecuniary interests, in relation to these transactions with Government, have been provided for in various ways which it is unnecessary to particularise: for example, they are entitled to retain in their hands, out of unclaimed dividends (or to charge interest upon), an amount equal to 100,000 l. (stat. 56 Geo. 3, c. 97); they are entitled to retain rateable sums out of each loan, or fixed salaries, provided for in the different Loan Acts for the services rendered by their cashiers and accountants; and they have been allowed, from time to time, various gross sums per annum for the management of the National Debt, fixed by the last Act at l. per annum. But though the Bank disclaim any pecuniary interest or motive in pressing for a continuance of this practice, of nominally borrowing money from them by the issue of Deficiency Bills, at the beginning of every quarter, to the full amount of the deficiency in the amount of cash applicable to the payment of dividends (when such deficiency exists), yet they insist that they are in the nature of public officers, having public duties to perform between the Government and the public creditors, and that it is their duty, imposed on them by Parliament, to require from Government the whole amount of dividends on the day on which the dividends are directed to be paid in the several Acts, and they point to the words which have been used in the Loan Acts (see ante, sect. 12, 54 Geo. 3, c. 76), that the full amount is to be paid to the cashiers, at the respective days of payment in the Act appointed for payment thereof.

These words, however, do not occur in the Act for issuing Deficiency Bills (see ante, sect. 6, 57 Geo. 3, c. 48); and it is to be considered whether it follows, because the full amount of monies in the Exchequer then due to the public creditor is directed by the Loan Acts to be issued out of the Exchequer to the cashiers for payment of dividends, that therefore Deficiency Bills, for which the public must pay interest to the Bank, are to be issued on that very day, in order to create money to put into the Exchequer, and to bring it within the scope of the words of these Loan Acts, without plain imperative words in the statute; that is to say, that money shall be borrowed which is sure (to every practical intent) not to be wanted, and that interest shall be paid as upon an advance which is, in fact, never made; and that Deficiency Bills shall be issued only to be redeemed, except that interest will have to be paid for the number of days during which they have thus been uselessly in existence.

It has been stated that the Loan Acts have directed the money in the Exchequer (not the Deficiency Bills) to be paid to the cashier "at the respective days of payment appointed in the Act;" and much stress is laid by the Bank on these words.

7 & 8 Vict., c. 4
and 5.

Yet it may be remarked, that in 1844, in the Acts creating the New Three-and-a-quarter and Three per Cent. stock (250 millions), on which the dividends are payable in April and October, these words are omitted, the direction only being, that sufficient sums shall be paid to the cashiers from time to time (without adding the words used in the corresponding section of the Loan Acts "at the respective days," &c.)

It has been suggested in reply by the Bank, that the same provision is, in effect, made by these last Acts (of 1844) which direct (see, for example, statute 7 & 8 Vict. c. 4, s. 5) that the interest and dividends shall be charged on and issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund, in the same manner (which are the words now relied on by the Bank) as the interest and dividends of the Three-and-a-half per Cent. of 1818 now stand charged on the same fund. But since the days on which these new annuities and dividends are to commence and be thereafter payable are exactly defined in section 2 of the Act, it is apprehended that these general words, "in the same manner," cannot be construed as intending to incorporate, by implication, the particular directions in other Acts to pay monies to the cashier on the respective days therein named. This may not be a very material discussion, nor may it be very easy to conjecture why these words, said to be very important, have been omitted from these Acts of 1844 (as well as the other Acts for reducing the rate of interest, A.D. 1822, 1830, 1834). But even assuming that they existed in all, either expressly or by implication, and that the full monies ought to be paid to the cashier on the very days named in the Act, say the 5th day of January, 5th day of April, 5th day of July, and 10th day of October, yet it is remarkable that a practice exists at the Bank apparently at variance with the reasons which they urge for the formal rules which they call on the Government to observe.

There is stated by the Bank to exist what they call "a police regulation," for the purpose of keeping order. They say that bankers and others who have large lists of dividends to receive upon powers of attorney would, without such regulation, during the first few days entirely occupy the counter to the exclusion of the general public; that this would cause great dissatisfaction and possible disorder; that the first two days are therefore devoted to the issuing of the warrants to those persons who have lists, but that in order to avoid any imputation of unfairness, these warrants are not paid until the day when the public generally is paid. Thus while the banks are always put in funds on the first day of the quarter (if there are sufficient funds in the Exchequer), and while (if there is a deficiency) they insist on having Deficiency Bills on that day, which are to bear interest immediately, the public are not allowed to ask for their dividends until the lapse of several days (by which time it is quite possible that the growing produce of the quarter would be sufficient to redeem the Deficiency Bills; the effect of which would be that if the Government were at liberty, consistently with law, to issue the bills as and when occasion required, and not on the very first day of the quarter, the bills would be issued with one hand and redeemed with the other, and so no interest charged to the public).

The Attorney and Solicitor-General are therefore requested to advise on the following questions:

1. When the unappropriated monies in the Exchequer have been paid over to the cashier under the Acts, and a further sum to make up the whole amount of dividends remains as yet unprovided, at what time or times is the Treasury bound by law to cause or direct Deficiency Bills to be made out, with reference to dividends due upon loans raised under Acts having the usual terms "at the respective days appointed," &c.?
2. At what time or times is the Treasury bound to issue and apply such Deficiency Bills, in borrowing money from the Bank of England for the payment of the dividends or the defraying of other charges upon the Consolidated Fund, and to pay such money to the cashiers?

3. Is the Bank or Government entitled to lay down any rules (such as the police regulations above mentioned) as to particular days on which particular persons or classes may claim their dividends (i. e. ask for and receive their warrants) to the exclusion of the rest of the public from a similar right?
4. Is the Bank entitled to delay payment to the public creditors during the three days on which it would appear that they have been hitherto in practice excluded?
5. Is the Government justified in making provision on the 6th of April (and not before), according to the practice detailed in the accompanying statement, for payment of the dividends directed by the Loan Acts to be paid on the 5th?

STATEMENT on behalf of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England.

IN consequence of an alteration on the part of the Exchequer in the month of April 1854, in the practice hitherto adopted in payment of the dividends on the National Debt, the Bank of England submitted to the Chancellor of the Exchequer that according to the provisions of the Acts creating the Public Debt, it is the duty of the Government to pay to the Bank of England, and it is the duty of the Bank to apply for and receive of the Government, on the 1st day of the quarter, the whole amount of the dividend then falling due to the public. It is upon this question that the Bank of England have desired for their guidance to have the opinion of the law officers of the Crown. Whether the Act for creating Deficiency Bills gives power to the Treasury to supply these funds, or whether under the provisions of that Act it is obligatory on the Treasury to issue Deficiency Bills for the purpose, the Bank have never discussed. They confine themselves to what they conceive to be their own legal position, and they will refer to the Deficiency Bill Act only to show that it does not really affect the question.

As they understand the Acts of Parliament creating the public debt, they consider that a compact has been made between Parliament and the fundholder, by which, for the security of the creditor, the Bank are appointed public agents, and entrusted with the payment of the dividends, and it is, as they conceive, a material part of this compact for ensuring the punctual payment of the dividends that the whole amount of each quarter's payment should be paid to the Bank on the first day. If this be the compact, the Bank consider that it rests with the Government to make good the obligations created by the Loan Acts, but that it is the duty of the Bank respectfully to call attention to any failure on the part of Government to fulfil the obligation imposed on it.

With the exception of some small funds not material to the question, the National Debt consists of Consolidated Three per Cent. Annuities and Long Annuities, the dividends of which are due on the 5th January and 5th July, and the Reduced Three per Cents. and Three-and-a-quarter per Cents., the dividends of which are due on the 5th April and 10th October in each year.

The Three per Cent. Consols and Three per Cent. reduced were constituted by an Act of the 25 Geo. 2, c. 27. The other funds were all created subsequently.

It is not necessary to go through the provisions of the Acts constituting these funds. The clauses of the Act set out in the statement of the Solicitor of the Treasury are in substance contained in all the Acts creating the public debt. Certain Acts for reducing the interest on part of the debt vary slightly; but those will be hereafter referred to more particularly.

In all cases of the creation of stock, the annuities are declared to be payable at the Bank of England on half-yearly days of payment specified in each Act; and for the facility and security of payment it is provided "that the Bank shall appoint cashiers, and that so much money as shall be sufficient to answer the dividends of the annuities created by the Act shall be paid to such cashiers at the respective days of payment in the Act appointed for payment thereof." The Acts further declare that the Bank "shall continue a Corporation until the annuities are redeemed." These provisions were introduced to give confidence to the public creditor. It may be that they were unnecessary, or if then necessary have from the altered state of circumstances become now unnecessary. These are considerations into which the Bank do not now enter.

The Three-and-a-quarter per Cent. Annuities above referred to, as payable in April and October, were in their creation partly annuities of five per cent. called Navy Five per Cent. Annuities, partly annuities of four per cent., called Four per Cents. 1780. These stocks were created by Acts containing the clauses in the form above referred to. Indeed, the Act 54 Geo. 3, c. 76, the clauses of which are set forth in the statement of the Solicitor of the Treasury, is one of the Acts creating Navy Five per Cent. Annuities. In the year 1822, the Navy Five per Cents. were reduced into annuities of four per cent., and in 1824 the Four per Cents. 1780 were reduced to annuities of 3*l.* 10*s.* Both these funds have been further reduced by subsequent Acts, and the last Act affecting them is that reducing them to annuities of 3*l.* 5*s.* per cent., 7 & 8 Vict. c. 5. These Acts vary in form from the previous Acts creating the original annuities, and it is urged that they created new annuities, and did not merely reduce the rate of interest on those previously existing, and that the new annuities are subject only to the provisions of the last Acts, and are not affected by the Acts constituting the original stocks from which they were reduced.

In form it is no doubt true that the Acts reducing the Navy Five per Cents. and Four per Cents. created new stocks; but this was only in a certain sense. Each of the Acts is called "An Act for transferring certain Annuities of per Cent. into Annuities of per Cent.;" and the substance of the Acts is only the reduction of interest on a debt already created, and it was not intended to alter the position of the creditor in other respects. Indeed, the alteration in the phraseology of the Acts does not appear to the Bank very material as bearing on the present question.

The difference relied on by the Chancellor of the Exchequer is this. In each of the Acts creating new stocks, when provision is made that the whole amount of the dividends shall be paid to the cashiers of the Bank, the words are added, "on the days by this Act appointed for payment of the annuities hereby created." In the Acts for reducing the rate of interest, these words, "on the days of payment by this Act appointed for payment thereof" are omitted. On behalf of the Bank it is submitted that the omission of the words would have been scarcely material had the Acts even created new loans. The whole provisions remain, that the annuities shall be payable at the Bank of England on the days then fixed, and that the Bank shall appoint cashiers to receive them, and that the Treasury shall cause the amount to be paid to such cashiers, and that such cashiers shall distribute the dividends to the public. These provisions alone would seem to the Bank of England to have imposed on the Treasury the obligation to pay the dividends to the Bank on the days by the Act appointed for payment thereof; but the Acts for reducing the interest do, in fact, contain a clause which removes any doubt, supposing any could exist on the question. In each of these Acts, and particularly in the 7 & 8 Vict., c. 5, constituting the 3*l.* 5*s.* per Cents. Fund, it is enacted that the interest of the reduced stock "shall be charged and chargeable, and shall be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund, in the same manner as the interest of the 3*l.* 10*s.* per Cent. Annuities then stood charged on the said Fund."

In reference to this clause, it has been alleged by the Treasury, that it only charges the dividend on the Consolidated Fund; but the Bank submit that it charges it in manner and form as the former dividends were charged, and that part of the obligation and charge on the Consolidated Fund was to pay the dividends to the Bank on the days appointed for payment thereof. If the words were only intended to charge the dividends on the Consolidated Fund, the further provision quoted would be unnecessary: but it was intended to charge them, and make them payable in the same manner as the former dividends were charged. That it was not the intention of Parliament or of the Government to alter the law or practice, is evident by the fact that the words in question were omitted from the Acts for reducing the interest as early as 1822; the whole amount of dividend has been punctually paid on the day appointed by Parliament, from 1822 to January 1854, without intermission; and further, in the Acts creating new stock, passed since 1822, the provisions introduced in the old Acts are repeated in terms, and this as late as the Act 10 Vict., c. 9 (the last Loan Act), in which the Treasury, as in every preceding Act, are required to pay the whole amount of dividends to the cashiers of the Bank, "on the days by the Acts appointed for payment thereof." If the clause charging the Three-and-a-quarter per Cents. on the Consolidated Fund were open to doubt, it is submitted that that construction should be given which is consistent with the clear intention shown by the practice from the year 1822 till 1844, when the reduction took place, and that the clause should be read as conveying all the obligations to which the former stock was liable. It has been further suggested, that the alteration of the days of payment of part of the dividends from January and July to April and October, affects the question; but it is submitted by the Bank, that the new days of payment are substituted for the old, with all their incidents. If a distinction is to be made in the provision for the Annuities of Three-and-a-quarter per Cent., arrangements will have to be made to meet that distinction. The dividends on the Three per Cent. Reduced Stock will have to be paid in their integrity, and such a sum from time to time as shall be equal to the expected requirements of the public, on account of dividends on the Three-and-a-quarter per Cent. Stock.

By official rule, established by Parliament, the financial quarters end on the 5th of January, 5th of April, 5th of July, and 10th October, and the Revenue Accounts are made up to those days, and the payment to the Bank on account of the dividends on the public debt has therefore only been made on the following days; but subject to this variation, it has been the practice for a period beyond living memory to issue to the Bank of England from the Exchequer on the first day of each quarter the full amount required to pay the whole of the annuities constituting the public debt, falling due on the preceding day, and the Bank have paid these to the public. Practically the payment of the dividends at the Bank occupies a considerable time. The Bank receiving the money on the 6th of January, give that and the following day to bankers who, having to receive largely under powers of attorney, would monopolise the dividend to the exclusion of all others if admitted, and in this manner more than half of the whole is paid, and so in the other quarters. The stockholders who receive dividends in person attend on the third and following days, and the payment to them is of uncertain amount, varying according to the state of the weather and other circumstances.

Upon the quarterly payment falling due on the 6th of April 1854, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, instead of sending down the whole amount of dividends, sent an amount which he considered sufficient to answer the demand he thought likely to be made at the Bank, and it was then that the Bank represented that this was not a compliance with the provisions of the Loan Acts, and that under those Acts it is obligatory on the Government to provide and issue, and on the Bank to call for, the whole amount of dividends when due.

In insisting on this view, the Bank are not looking to any consideration of pecuniary benefit, but simply to the discharge of what they consider to be their duty as public agents, appointed by Parliament for the discharge of this particular service, and so appointed expressly with a view to give facility and confidence to the public, the words of the Acts being "for the more easy and sure payment of the annuities." The Bank of England, as before stated, understand that the Loan Acts constitute a contract between the Parliament and the public creditor, and that it is part of this contract, and expressly enacted for the security of the public creditor, that the dividends shall be payable and be paid at the Bank, and that to secure this payment being punctually made the whole amount shall be in the hands of the officer of the Bank appointed, in pursuance of the Act of Parliament, on the days appointed for that purpose by the Legislature; and the Bank are continued a corporation till final redemption of the loan, that there may be no failure of that punctuality while the contract subsists. The Bank conceive, therefore, that it is not competent to the Government or the Bank to make any arrangement in derogation of these provisions, which are established for the benefit of the public creditor.

Besides the inference arising in favour of the Bank's view by the unvaried practice hitherto pursued of paying the dividends on the day appointed by Parliament, and that in times of great pressure, Parliament has to some extent put an interpretation of these Acts, the provision requiring the whole amount of the dividends to be paid, stands on the same footing as the provision fixing the time of payment. If the Government were not bound to pay the whole amount at once, but were entitled to find the amount from time to time, they might so arrange that there never would be a considerable surplus in the Bank of England; but there are a series of Acts providing for the return by the Bank to the Government of unclaimed dividends. In the first instance, the Legislature having come to the conclusion that the Bank held a large amount of unclaimed dividends not likely to be called for, simply required the Bank to advance a portion of these for the public service. Now, if the Chancellor of the Exchequer's view is correct, these Acts were wholly unnecessary, as the minister had only in the next quarter to issue so much less money to the Bank for the dividends; but the Legislature thought differently, and special Acts were passed. The last of these which makes a permanent arrangement, is the 56 Geo. 3, c. 97, and by this Act it is provided that within 30 days after the end of every quarter an account shall be taken of the lowest sum held by the Bank during the preceding quarter unapplied, and the whole of this sum, excepting 100,000*l.*, is to be paid by the Bank to the Exchequer on the next quarter day. If the balance is at any time reduced below 100,000*l.* the Exchequer are to make up that sum forthwith; and the Bank submit that while it appears from these Acts that Parliament deals with the fund of unclaimed dividends, the Government has at no time done so without the authority of Parliament.

It was suggested by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the correspondence between him and the Bank, that Parliament has so appropriated the funds in the Exchequer that he has not the means of making the payment without resorting to the creation of Deficiency Bills under the Act 57 Geo. 3, c. 48; that it is optional with the Treasury to issue Deficiency Bills; and that he considers it is not for the advantage of the public to issue them until the money is required for payment of the dividends to the public. The Bank do not presume to interfere with the duties of the Treasury under the Act quoted. Their duty is confined to pointing attention to the contract between the Government and the public contained in the Loan Acts; and they submit that, while these Acts continue, it is the duty of the Government to see that the funds are provided to fulfil the contract.

It would appear, however, by the statement of the Solicitor to the Treasury, that it is considered that the Act 57 Geo. 3 has, in some degree, altered the obligations of the Government under the Loan Acts. It is submitted that this is not the case, and a short explanation will clearly show this.

The early loans were charged specially on particular funds, and the form of words used in several of the Loan Acts applies to this state of things; but the punctual payment of the dividends was always in view of the Legislature, and, as early as the year 1759, it was thought necessary to provide for a possible deficiency, by enacting that in such case the balance should be paid out of the Sinking Fund.

Secs. 10, 11.

In 1787 all the annuities then subsisting were charged on the Consolidated Fund, and all annuities thenceforth created have been charged on this fund; but here, again, Parliament provided for the possibility of a deficiency of the fund, by enacting that, should it happen, the annuity should be paid out of the aids and supplies granted by Parliament, the great object being the security of the public creditor not only from loss but from delay. In 1817 the Act passed establishing the present system of the issue of Deficiency Bills. By that Act it is provided, that if, on making up the accounts of the income and charge of the quarter, it shall appear to the Commissioners of the Treasury that the produce of the fund is not sufficient to meet the charges thereon, the Commissioners of the Treasury are, from time to time, to make out Deficiency Bills for such sums as shall be sufficient to make up the deficiency. These Bills are to be lodged in the Exchequer as cash, and to be applied by the Commissioners of the Treasury in defraying the charges on the Consolidated Fund remaining unpaid. Now, this Act does not in any degree derogate from any charge on the Consolidated Fund. On the contrary, it contemplates that an account will be made upon each quarter-day, as, in fact, is done, of the charge on the Consolidated Fund, and of the cash in hand (that is, the produce of the fund) available to meet those charges. This leaves quite untouched, the question whether the dividends of the Public Debt were charges on the Consolidated Fund? That they are a charge on that fund is unquestionable, and they always so appear. If the produce of the fund is not sufficient to meet the whole charge, including the dividends, the Treasury are required to cause Exchequer Bills to be made for such sums as shall be sufficient to make up the deficiency. It is argued, that these bills may be made from time to time; but it is submitted, this is from quarter to quarter, and not from time to time in the same quarter. For in each quarter the Treasury, as soon as a deficiency appears by the making up the account, are to cause Exchequer Bills to be made for such sums as shall be sufficient to make up that deficiency. This can only be done once, for when the deficiency is made up the power is exhausted. These bills, however, being made, are to remain in the Exchequer as cash, and it is obvious that Parliament meant to take care that the Exchequer always had cash in hand to meet all the charges on the Consolidated Fund, and for this purpose required the Treasury, on the first day of the quarter, to make out bills to supply the deficiency, which bills are called cash. But the issue of these bills depends on different provisions (sect. 11): the Act having provided that the Exchequer shall have, on the first day of the quarter, cash to meet all the engagements of the Consolidated Fund, proceeds (sect. 11) to enact that this cash (the Exchequer Bills being treated as cash) is to be issued as required. Under the previous clause the Exchequer will have in hand cash and bills sufficient to meet all charges, including the dividends on the Public Debt; and the question then arises, whether, under the Loan Acts, the dividends of the Public Debt are by law required to be paid on the first day of the quarter. In any case the Treasury have in hand cash and Exchequer Bills to meet them.

It has been necessary to state the interpretation put by the Bank on the Deficiency Bill Act; but they insist on it only to the extent of maintaining that that Act does not take away or diminish any obligation laid on the Government by the Loan Acts, to pay to the Bank the whole amount of the dividends on the Public Debt on the first day of payment.

It has been stated that this question has been discussed by the Bank without reference to pecuniary considerations; the Bank, however, do not acknowledge the accuracy of the representations in the statement of the solicitor of the Treasury, as to their remuneration for the services in question. They do not enter into any detail on this subject, because the statement is wholly irrelevant.

As a practical question, the Bank do not regard this as a matter of indifference; they are of opinion that, where a payment of this character is to be made to the public, the whole amount should be provided, and in the hands of the banker, before the payment commences. If provision is to be made for the payment upon an estimate of what will be required, it is quite possible that an error may, on some occasion, cause a suspension of payment which would, to say the least, be inconvenient; and it must be borne in mind, that the Bank is prohibited by the Legislature, 5 & 6 Will. 3, c. 20, from making advances to Government, except in a certain form, so that if the provision for the dividends made by the Exchequer happened to be deficient they could not be paid.

Under such circumstances the Bank desire to be advised:

Whether it is the duty of the Government to pay to the Cashiers of the Bank the whole amount of the dividends on the Public Debt on the days appointed by the Acts of Parliament for payment thereof, and whether there is any difference in their position in respect of the Three-and-a-Quarter per Cent. Stock.

STATEMENT as to the Practice of the Bank in paying Dividends to the Public.

This was appended to the preceding
Bank.

A QUESTION being raised on the practice adopted in paying dividends first to bankers, it is necessary to explain the facts more particularly.

The transfer-books of the National Debt are closed for a certain period before the payment of the dividends. The account of each stockholder is made up, and the whole are cast up, to see that the aggregate agrees with the total of the fund. The accounts of the stockholders are then entered into dividend-books in alphabetical divisions, and contain the names, the amount of stock held by each, and the amount of dividend. These are classed in order, to admit of the easiest possible reference. These books are signed by the stockholders, and remain in the Bank as the discharge by the stockholder. A separate warrant is prepared for each dividend, which is the voucher for payment, and is also used as the discharge between the Bank and the Audit Office in passing the public accounts; but these warrants are not kept beyond a limited period. These dividend-warrants are also arranged in order, so as to be accessible with the least delay.

When bankers having to receive dividends by powers of attorney, come to the Bank, they probably have to refer to each separate division of the alphabet, and have to receive many sums in each division. This labour is shortened by their previously sending in a list of the dividends they seek to receive, which is carefully checked at the Bank, so that when the bankers come there, they have only to sign; but as each warrant is in the charge of the clerk till signed, and requires to be witnessed, it is obvious that each banker engages the attention of perhaps each clerk in the office for a considerable time. The sums dealt with are not only numerous, but large; and it is of the greatest importance to avoid confusion, or persons would receive wrong dividends. The effect of the system as now carried on is, that above one-half of the whole amount of dividends is thus signed for in two days. If this facility were not afforded to bankers, there would be a scramble on their part to get to the books; and if the public were present, there would be the greatest dissatisfaction when a banker got to the book, because he would exclude every one else for hours.

Again, the class who come to the books to receive dividends in person, are the least intelligent class of stockholders; and many of them give great trouble by mistakes in the amount of their stock, by questions as to supposed variances, and other matters; and with such an assemblage, and the pressure of the bankers at the same time, there would be such confusion as to greatly hinder the business, and afford a great opportunity for fraud and pillage. But this is not all. The London bankers are agents for establishments in all parts of the country, and receive dividends for the customers of country banks. The system adopted ensures uniformity, and were it now put an end to, it would occasion great dissatisfaction that the people in one town would get their dividends on the first day, while the people in a neighbouring town would not. The same distinction would arise between the customers of different bankers in the same town.

It is submitted that the Bank necessarily possess the right to make reasonable regulations as to the time and order of payment of dividends; and the regulations in question have not improperly been called "Regulations of Police."

But the delay is in reality insignificant. The dividends are sent to the Bank on the day after the quarter-day, the 6th of April, for instance, and the public would have no right to expect payment before the next day, viz., the 7th of April. The 6th and 7th are appropriated to the bankers, and the payment to others commences on the 8th, which is a delay of only one day. To avoid dissatisfaction, the bankers do not receive payment of their warrants till the 8th.

At present no complaint is made, all parties being satisfied that the arrangements made are for their convenience; any opinion on an abstract question of right, which should throw doubts on the practice, would be simply mischievous.

OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY AND SOLICITOR GENERAL.

It appears to us that the sole purpose of the various provisions to which we are referred was simply to insure the punctual payment of the dividends to the public creditor at the period of their becoming due. To effect this object the Legislature has invested the Treasury, in case of any deficiency in the Public Exchequer, with power to raise money by bills to be discounted by the Bank of England. Having these means at their disposal, we think the Lords of the Treasury are bound to take care that the public creditor is not delayed; but if, on the other hand, experience shows that an interval invariably takes place between the time at which the dividends become due, and that at which a considerable portion of them is applied for, we think the Treasury is fully justified in adapting the issue of Deficiency Bills so as only to meet the exigency of the demand, demand, and that they are not bound to issue them at the precise day on which the dividends are payable, at the sacrifice of the interest for the intermediate time.

The Bank would not be justified in making any regulations as to the course and order of payment, with a view to delay any class or body of creditors; but inasmuch as the payment of the whole of the creditors at the same time is necessarily impracticable, we think it is competent to the Bank to make such regulations as to the course of payment as are calculated to insure order, and promote the general convenience. We think, therefore, that the practice which has hitherto prevailed, being, as we understand, established with a view to general convenience and thereby to further the purposes of the statute, is a proper one.

According to the strict language of the Act 54 Geo. 3, c. 76, the Government is bound to pay over the balance in the Exchequer, remaining at the end of the respective days of payment, into the hands of the Bank, to meet the demands of the public creditor, but practically such balance and the consequent deficiency cannot be finally ascertained till the closing of the accounts to the Exchequer on such days; we are therefore of opinion that these provisions must be treated as directory, and that a reasonable interpretation should be given to them, and that the payment of the balance on the following day, as has hitherto been the practice, is a sufficient compliance with the directions of the statute.

My dear Sir,

Broadstairs, 8 September 1854.

HAVE the goodness to transmit officially, and to mark as "most pressing," the opinion of Sir F. Kelly and Mr. R. Palmer, together with a statement which I received yesterday from the Governor of the Bank, and which I now enclose for the consideration of the law officers of the Crown, and to request that they will, at the earliest possible moment, report whether they see cause to recede from or modify, in consequence of anything contained in these papers, the opinion they have already given upon the subject to which they refer.

I remain, &c.

P. S.—I send a private letter to accompany the papers; when the answer comes, please let it be sent at once to Lord Aberdeen as well as to me.

FURTHER CASE as to DEFICIENCY BILLS, submitted to the Attorney and Solicitor General, pursuant to the above Letter.

THE former case, with accompanying papers, and the opinion of the law officers thereon, is left herewith.

A copy of the law officers' opinion, by directions from the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was sent to Mr. Freshfield, for the information of the Governor and Deputy-governor of the Bank.

OPINION of Sir F. Kelly and Mr. Roundell Palmer.

WE think that under each of the several Acts creating the different public funds now in existence, the State has contracted an absolute engagement with the public creditor for the punctual payment of the whole amount of the dividend on each class of annuities upon the appointed day to the Bank of England, for the purpose of being distributed by the Bank to the fundholders. We have considered the differences pointed out between the language of the Conversion Acts and that of the Loan Acts, and we have satisfied ourselves that these differences are immaterial.

The position of the Bank of England under the Acts in question is that of a stakeholder or trustee for the fundholders; and the intervention of the Bank as such stakeholder or trustee constitutes a material part of the contract between the State and the public creditor, and of the security given by the former to the latter, inasmuch as it is very beneficial and convenient to each fundholder to have a legal remedy, by civil action against the Bank of England, in the event of his dividend being withheld, or delayed, or paid to any wrong party, as sometimes happens, in cases of forgery and the like; the receipt of a sufficient sum of money for the payment of the whole dividend by the Bank of England, at the time and in the manner appointed by the Acts of Parliament, and the duty imposed upon the Bank by the same Acts to distribute and pay the money so received to the parties legally entitled, constitute the foundation of this remedy, and any departure from the statutable course, as to the time or the amount of the half-yearly payment to the Bank, must operate either to delay the receipt of the dividend by the fundholder, and deprive him in the meantime of his legal right to sue for it, or else to involve the Bank in responsibilities beyond the law, which the Bank cannot reasonably or justly be called upon to undertake.

To introduce the practice of issuing and paying to the Bank of England the amount of the half-yearly dividend, not on one day and in one sum (as appointed by the Acts of Parliament creating the stock), but at different times after the appointed day, and in such sums from time to time as the Commissioners of the Treasury may judge sufficient to keep the Bank of England in cash against the probable demands of fundholders when they actually apply for their dividends, would be in our opinion more than a mere formal departure from the course authorised and prescribed by the statutes; it would be to derogate in a substantial point from the security given by the Legislature to the fundholders for punctuality in the payment of their dividends; and it would be to place the Bank in a position of great embarrassment between the public interests entrusted to them on the one hand, and their own private responsibilities on the other. Neither the Government nor the Bank have, under the existing statutes, any legal right or power to give one fundholder (in the same stock) any preference or priority whatever above another, and the Bank are under no legal obligation to pay any dividend to anybody, until they have received from the Government a sufficient sum to enable them to pay all the dividends to everybody entitled. Money not sufficient for the payment of the whole dividend is not legally applicable, in the hands of the Bank, to the payment of any part of it; the law does not suppose or provide for the case of a partial payment on account of the dividend, either to the Bank, or by the Bank. If the Bank, therefore, should decline to make any payment to the fundholders applying from day to day until they have received the whole money due from the Government, the fundholders would be delayed and would have no remedy against the Bank; and if, on the other hand, the Bank not having received the whole money, should nevertheless proceed to pay the dividends to all fundholders applying in the usual course, they would be furnishing evidence, which would be available against them in an action by any other fundholder, that they had received enough to pay the entire dividend. The result is, that by accepting a partial payment from the Government, and proceeding to distribute it, the Bank would make themselves liable to all the fundholders for the balance of the dividends before they received it. Whatever reliance might justly be felt in the good faith of the persons administering the Government from time to time, or in the prudence of their calculations, it seems to us obvious that the Bank cannot properly acquiesce in or be consenting parties to any new practice which might be attended with such consequences as these, except under the authority and indemnity of an Act of Parliament.

Further illustration of the grounds of our opinion might be derived from the Acts on the subject of unclaimed dividends; but we think it sufficient to rest the case upon the terms of the Loan Acts which constitute the contracts between the State and the public creditor.

The question of ways and means is not one into which, as it appears to us, it concerns either the Bank or the public creditor to enter. The duty of making provision for the due and punctual fulfilment of the public obligations of the State rests with the Government, subject to the control of the Legislature. We do not, therefore, perceive the materiality of any reference to the Act 57 Geo. 3, cap. 48, unless it be for the purpose of showing that the Legislature has placed in the hands of the Executive Government the means of raising money sufficient for the regular fulfilment of those obligations at all times, notwithstanding any temporary deficiency of the Consolidated Fund on any of the half-yearly days for the payment of dividends; and these means it must be presumed they will use, in case of necessity, rather than suffer the public engagements to be broken.

Under these circumstances, we can give the Bank of England no other advice than that, in case the Commissioners of the Treasury should fail in making the payment of the whole amount of any half-yearly dividend in one payment, as heretofore, it will be the duty of the Bank, having regard to the position in which they will be placed, to make a representation to the head of Her Majesty's Government, with a view to the attention of Parliament being called to the failure so made in providing for the dividends on the public debt in the manner required by the Loan Acts.

Roundell Palmer.

Temple, 29 August 1854.

THE following statement has been sent by the Governor of the Bank to the Chancellor of the Exchequer:—

STATEMENT as to the Payment of Dividends on the National Debt.

A QUESTION having been raised by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, touching the obligations of the Government and of the Bank in the manner of paying the dividends of the public funds, the Governors of the Bank have instituted an inquiry into the practice and legal enactments which ought to guide their action.

The dividends of the public funds are payable upon one portion of the debt for the half-years ending on the 5th January and the 5th July; upon the other, for the half-years ending on the 5th April and 10th October; the financial quarters end with those same days; at the close of those days is ascertained the position of the Consolidated Fund; and at those same days (in the event of a deficiency) are charged upon the succeeding quarter the Exchequer Bills required to make good that deficiency.

The sum requisite for the payment of the dividends is, immediately upon the conclusion of each quarter, paid to the Bank of England, by a transfer of the amount to the Dividend Audit Roll from the Exchequer Account; and if the Exchequer Account be insufficiently provided, Exchequer (commonly called Deficiency) Bills for the difference are issued to the Bank, who advance the necessary sum to the Exchequer Account.

This takes place on the 6th January, 6th April, 6th July, and 11th October; the 6th and 7th January, April, and July, and the 11th and 12th October, the Bank appropriate to the signature of receipts by and the issue of warrants to bankers; and on the 8th January, April, and July, and the 13th October, payment is made of the warrants previously issued to the bankers, and of the dividends due to the public at large. This arrangement is productive of general convenience, and is, in fact, indispensable to avoid serious confusion.

The warrants received by the bankers amount to about three millions at each quarter (the entire dividends being 6,000,000 l. at January and July, and 6,500,000 l. at April and October); and were the public admitted indiscriminately, the dividend-books being once in a banker's hands, would be detained many hours, to the great annoyance of individual applicants; and as the Bank (upon the universal custom of bankers) must be possessed of the dividends before it could disburse them, and could not pay out earlier than the morning of the 7th the monies provided the previous day, and does pay them on the 8th, it follows that one day only is lost by the public in the realization of their dividends, which, due for the quarter ending, for example, on the 5th January, are paid by the Government to the Bank on the 6th.

The existing National Debt may be said practically to have originated in the year 1752, when, by the Act 25 Geo. 2, c. 27, various 3 per Cent. Annuities were consolidated, and their aggregate amount, 9,137,821 l., formed the first capital of the present Consols. By the same Act, various 3*l.* 10*s.* per Cent. Annuities were, to the extent of 17,701,323*l.*, blended into the first capital of the present 3 per Cent. Reduced.

With the exception of these sums in Consols and Reduced, and of 11,686,000*l.* due to the Bank, the whole of the public debt existing at 1752 has been subsequently redeemed; so that, in commencing the investigation at 1752, we include in it every portion of the existing debt.

The Consolidated Act (adopting the new style, in conformity with the legislative correction of the calendar in 1751) fixed the 5th January and the 5th July for the payment of the interest on the Consolidated Three per Cent. Annuities, and the 5th April and 10th October for payment of the interest on the Reduced Three per Cent. Annuities; and after charging the Sinking Fund with the several annuities, it enacted, that "the Treasury should from time to time issue the same at the respective days of payment to the Chief Cashier of the Bank, and that the said Cashier should, from time to time, without delay, apply and pay the same accordingly."

The next Act touching the public debt was passed in 1755, for raising 900,000*l.*; it added that sum to the existing Three per Cent. Consols; recapitulated the provisions for charging the annuities then created upon the Sinking Fund, for paying out of the Exchequer sufficient monies at the respective days of payment in the Act appointed for payment thereof to the Chief Cashier of the Bank; and, by a particular section, enacted that the Bank should continue a corporation until the redemption of the annuities granted by the Act.

In 1759 the Act 32 Geo. 2, c. was passed for raising 6,600,000 l.; and it contained the same provision for the payment out of the Exchequer to the Cashier of the Bank of the several annuities at the respective days of payment; but as these annuities were chargeable on certain funds granted by that Act, it contains, besides, a clause enacting that if at any time, through insufficiency in the produce of "the several subsidies, rates, &c., there shall happen to be a want of money in the Exchequer for paying the several annuities actually incurred and grown due at any of the half-yearly days of payment, then and in every such case the money so wanted shall and may be supplied out of the monies of the Sinking Fund, and be issued accordingly."

The Act for raising eight millions, passed in the following year, contains the same provisions; and, with slight verbal variations, those provisions are renewed in every subsequent Loan Act.

In 1787, by Act 27 Geo. 3, c. 13, s. 55, the payment of the annuities previously charged upon the Sinking Fund was charged upon the Consolidated Fund; and the 58th section enacts, that whenever the Consolidated Fund shall be insufficient to pay "the annuities, the Treasury shall be authorised and required, out of any money remaining in the Exchequer of Aids and Supplies granted to His Majesty, sufficiently, fully, and completely to answer and make good such deficiency, so that the public creditor may by no means whatsoever be disappointed of receiving his whole annuity."

In 1793 commenced the loans which (levied for the support of the great war) added, in 20 years, 370 millions to the National Debt.

Throughout this period the language of the Loan Acts was uniform upon the question at issue. A reference to a single Act will therefore suffice for the purpose of defining the obligations which rest upon the Bank in the matter of the dividends.

The following extract gives the substance of the 8th clause of the 34 Geo. 3, c. 1, intituled, "An Act for raising the Sum of Eleven Millions by way of Annuities, and for the more easy and sure Payment of the Annuities established by this Act":—"The Bank shall from time to time appoint a Chief Cashier and Accountant-general; and that so much of the monies by this Act appropriated for the purpose as shall be sufficient from time to time to answer the said annuities, shall, at the respective days of payment in this Act appointed, be issued and paid to the Chief Cashier, and that such Cashier shall from time to time, without any delay, pay the same accordingly."

Nothing can be more explicit than this language. For securing the punctual payment of the public creditor, the Cashier of the Bank is made the receiver of the entire annuity as soon as due, with the obligation of paying the same forthwith on the application of the dividend holders.

The 22d section, enacting "that the Bank is to continue a corporation until the the annuities thereby granted cease," evinces the great importance which is connected with the function of the Bank as stakeholder for the public creditor; a function for which it is well qualified in its character of a "body politic," but which it would be incapable of discharging as a "governmental office."

The sections referred to are repeated in every Act passed with the same object of raising money by way of annuities: not only between 1793 and 1803, but again from that last period until the present day, portions of the funds raised under those Acts were subsequently dealt with in 1822 by the statute 3 Geo. 4, c. 9, intituled, "An Act for transferring several Annuities of Five Pounds per Centum into Annuities of Four Pounds per Centum;" in 1824, by "An Act for transferring several Annuities of Four Pounds per Centum into Annuities of Three Pounds Ten Shillings per Centum;" in 1830, by 11 Geo. 4, c. 13, intituled, "An Act for transferring certain Annuities of Four Pounds per Centum per Annum into Annuities of Three Pounds Ten Shillings, or Five Pounds per Centum per Annum;" in 1844, by the 7 Vict. c. 4, "An Act for transferring Three Pounds Ten Shillings per Centum per Annum Annuities, 1818, into Annuities of Three Pounds Five Shillings per Centum per Annum, and new Three Pounds per Centum per Annum Annuities;" and by the 7 Vict. c. 5, "An Act for transferring certain Annuities of Three Pounds Ten Shillings per Centum per Annum and Government Debentures into Annuities of Three Pounds Five Shillings per Centum per Annum and New Three Pounds per Centum per Annum Annuities."

This last Act recites that every person entitled to 100*l.* in an annuity of 3*l.* 10*s.*, shall in lieu thereof receive the sum of 100*l.* in a new stock, the dividend whereof shall be payable at the Bank of England on the 5th April and 10th October. A subsequent section (9) enacts that the monies from time to time necessary for the payment of the said annuities shall be issued and paid to the Chief Cashier of the Bank, who shall without delay apply and pay the same accordingly.

It is contended by the Bank that these "Transferring Acts" in no way affect their right on behalf of the public creditor to claim the entire amount of interest when due. The title to any security resting on the original Loan Acts cannot be impaired by Acts passed with a view only to the reduction of the interest, and the change of three months in the time of paying it, even were these last silent on the point in question. But they are not silent; they enact in the first section that the interest shall be payable on the 5th April and 10th October, and in the 9th section, that interest shall be payable to the cashier of the Bank; and lest it should be surmised that any of the original security the public creditor possessed is to be taken from him, together with part of the interest, the second section, enacting that "interest be charged on the Consolidated Fund," recites "that the interest shall be charged and chargeable, and shall be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund in the same manner as the interest of the Three Pounds Ten Shillings Annuities now stand charged on the said fund."

Any apprehension, however, that it was intended to change the system as to the time and manner of paying the public creditor is dispelled by the last Loan Act in the Statute Book; the 10th Vict. c. 9, "An Act for raising Eight Millions by way of Annuities," dated 18th March 1847, recites verbatim the 8th section of the 34th Geo. 3, c. 1, as well as the 22d section, enacting the continuance of the Bank as a corporation.

It will have been noticed that in 1759 the Legislature, not satisfied with imposing upon the State an obligation to pay the dividends out of the special fund on the day of their maturity, provided against a possible failure by enacting that the Exchequer should be supplied, if needful, from the Sinking Fund; and that in 1787, when the interest of the debt was charged upon the Consolidated Fund, it enacted that a possible deficiency in the Consolidated Fund was to be supplied by an appropriation of the aids and supplies (setting forth the punctual satisfaction of the public creditor as an object of solicitude superior to every other). The union of the public revenues of Great Britain and Ireland in 1816, led in 1817 to the passing of the 57th Geo. 3, c. 48, known as the "Deficiency Bill Act."

This Act in its 5th section repeals the provision of the 27th Geo. 3, c. 13, for payment of deficiencies, and substitutes, in section 5, a regulation for making good deficiencies by issuing Exchequer Bills, in the following terms:

"That whereas the Consolidated Fund may at certain times be deficient in amount to answer the charges thereupon arising, be it enacted, that if on making up the accounts for the quarters ending 5th April, 5th July, 10th October, 5th January, it shall appear that the produce of the said fund is not sufficient to defray the charges thereupon, it shall be lawful for the Treasury from time to time to cause Exchequer Bills to be made out sufficient to make up such deficiency."

And the 9th section enacts, "that it shall be lawful for the Bank to take these Exchequer Bills, and advance any sum necessary to make good such deficiency in the Consolidated Fund."

Thus the Deficiency Bill Act excels all previous statutes in the safeguard which it affords to the public creditor; previous statutes had sanctioned recourse from a deficient Exchequer, first to the Sinking Fund, and then to the balances at the credit of the Government for whatever purpose they may have been raised; but the Deficiency Bill Act enables the Government to borrow even—to raise money on Exchequer Bills, in order that they may fulfil the obligations of the Loan Acts.

The last evidence to be adduced is the 56 Geo. 3, c. 97, under the provisions of which the Bank, at the commencement of every quarter, ascertains the amount remaining unpaid out of the dividends of the previous quarter, and reserving 100,000 l., pays the residue into the Exchequer.

It is hardly possible to find more conclusive indirect proof that the Bank are entitled to receive the dividends in full when due, than the existence of a law which directs that they shall refund to the Exchequer, at the expiration of four months, the uncalled-for balance.

Through the whole of this investigation, embracing the entire period within which the present National Debt has been contracted, not a doubtful feature presented itself, and the evidence adduced justifies the conviction of the Governors that, by a long series of Legislative Acts, the Bank are, as a "body politic," made party to a contract wherein the State engages to pay on the stipulated days, to the cashier of the Bank, the full amount of interest then due to the public creditor; and the Bank engage, without delay, to pay the same to the public creditor on demand.

The Governors submit, that a legal obligation can be removed only by an alteration of the law; and that, in the absence of any counter-legislation, it is the duty of the Bank to reclaim, on the part of the public creditor, the provision of the entire dividends on the day when they become due, and to guard their own responsibility, by protesting against a departure from a practice dictated by the uniform language of the law, and confirmed by the unvarying custom of 100 years.

The Attorney and Solicitor-general are requested to advise:

Whether they see cause to recede from, or modify, in consequence of anything contained in the above papers, the opinion they have given upon the former case in this matter.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General.

My dear Sir,

Broadstairs, 8 September 1854.

TOGETHER with this letter you will receive another official reference to you and your colleague of two papers; one of them a statement of Mr. Freshfield, respecting the Loan Acts, and the second an opinion signed by Sir F. Kelly and Mr. R. Palmer, to the effect that the Government are bound to supply the Bank, i. e. the Audit Roll Account at the Bank, on the first day of each quarter, with the whole amount of the dividends then falling due; and even going to the length of asserting that unless the Bank are so supplied with the entire amount, they are not bound to pay any of the dividends to the parties entitled to them.

I am not sure whether it is strictly in form to refer to the law officers of the Crown officially an adverse opinion of this kind; if not, the reference can be cancelled. But as the Bank, or rather their advisers, now speak of the head of the the Government and of Parliament, I think it due to my colleagues, as well as to the public interest, that I should give you the opportunity of seeing these papers, and of apprising me, in whatever form you may think best, whether you abide by the judgment you have given.

On one point I am obliged to be very pressing. Lord Aberdeen will have to decide whether or not to call a Cabinet before October 10. Upon this subject he will probably require to be in possession of your answer to this letter before he can come to this decision, which it would require some time to act upon at this season of the year; and it is therefore most important that, so far as is compatible with your convenience, not a day should be lost in the transmission of that answer.

Should you desire any further information, you will, perhaps, have the goodness to communicate with me, or with Mr. Anderson of the Treasury.

(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Earl of Aberdeen.

My dear Lord Aberdeen,

Broadstairs, 8 September 1854.

I AM sorry to have to trouble you on a question which I fear will require you to decide whether or not you should call a Cabinet before October 10, the last day of the present quarter.

In the spring, acting in accordance with the judgment of the legal advisers of the department, I altered, with a view to the public advantage, the mode in use of issuing Deficiency Bills. The practice had been to issue, on the first day of the quarter, so many of these bills as would, together with the money actually in the Exchequer, cover the entire amount of the dividends then falling due and payable at the Bank, without any reference to the rate at which they are shown by a long experience to be called for. I issued, on the first day of the quarter, so many bills only as would cover the maximum demand that would be made, together with a considerable margin to boot.

The Bank challenged the legality of this proceeding, and urged that I was bound to pay into the hands of their cashier the entire amount on the first day of the quarter.

They pressed me to take the opinion of the law officers of the Crown upon the subject—a demand which I, of course, interpreted as an implicit declaration on their part that if the opinion were taken, they would be bound by it.

As I held that the Bank was not, properly speaking, a party in the matter (beyond the degree in which its pecuniary interests were involved—a point which they proposed to waive), I felt some difficulty in admitting their right to press me to go before the law officers. But as I was still more impressed with the importance of leaving nothing doubtful or questionable in my proceedings on a matter of so much importance, I did make the reference to the law officers, under the name of compliance with a friendly suggestion of the Governor and Deputy Governor, with whom the Chancellor of the Exchequer is of necessity and constantly in confidential communication upon matters beyond the limit of their formal and legal relations.

The case for the law officers was prepared at the Treasury; but the Bank sent in a case prepared by their own solicitor, Mr. Freshfield, which I took care to place before the law officers.

The law officers gave an opinion, unequivocally, in favour of the legality of the course I had pursued. I may almost say they declared me bound to pursue it.

I sent their opinion to the solicitor of the Bank, for the information of the Governors, and regarded the matter of contest at an end.

Last Friday the Governor of the Bank called upon me, and asked me whether I intended to act upon the opinion of the law officers; to which I answered, "Certainly;" and he expressed his regret.

Yesterday morning, to my utter astonishment, I learned from him that the Bank, after having referred me to the law officers—whose judgment would of course bind me if adverse—have very recently taken the opinion of Sir F. Kelly, their counsel, and Mr. R. Palmer, their solicitor's relation; which is strongly adverse to the view of the law officers.

These gentlemen advise the Bank, in case I act on the opinion—which, as I have already said, is that of the law officers—to make a representation to you, as head of the Government, with a view to the attention of Parliament being drawn to the case as a failure of compliance with the Loan Acts.

This is rather an extraordinary recommendation on the part of two counsel; but I have directed their opinion to be sent by our solicitor to the law officers, and have requested them to report, at the earliest practicable moment, whether they see any occasion to recede from or to modify the judgment they have given.

The upshot of this long statement, which, however, is as short as I could make it, and which I write from my bed, is, that if the Bank should think fit to act upon the advice of Kelly and Palmer, the affair will be one for the whole Government, as an appeal will in that case go directly to you on its way to Parliament.

On the 11th of October the one course or the other must be taken; hence if the Cabinet is to meet, it must not be later than the 10th.

As the law officers had Freshfield's case before them in the first instance, and as they gave, I imagine, much consideration to the case, I do not presume it to be likely they will recede from the ground they have taken. Unless they do recede, I apprehend it would be poltroonery of the first water not to act upon the judgment of those, who are our own proper advisers, and to whom the Bank itself referred us. But I have been anxious to avoid committing the Government to anything further in the present state of affairs, without sending you such an explanation as this letter contains.

Should you be of opinion, either now or when we hear from the law officers, that there is no occasion for a Cabinet, I shall still endeavour to obtain the advice of some of our colleagues.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The following is a Copy of the FURTHER OPINION of the Attorney and Solicitor-General.

WE have considered these additional papers, but find no reason to alter the opinion we have already given.

The directions contained in the Acts of Parliament, touching the payment or money by the Government to the Bank, are merely machinery for enabling the Government to fulfil its contract with the fundholder.

The Bank is the paid agent of the public for the purpose of carrying out this contract.

The relation between the Government and the Bank is subordinate to the relation between the Government and the fundholder, and it seems absurd to hold (as is in effect done by the opinion before us), that the statutes have created a greater obligation, or liability, on the part of the Government to the Bank, than exists between the Government and the public creditor.

But this would be the consequence, if, as the Bank insists, the Government is bound to borrow money of the Bank before that money can be required for the public creditor.

The obligation of the Government is to pay the fundholders as, and when, they apply to the Bank for such payment; and it is sufficient if it provides the Bank, in due time, with the means of making such payment.

The Bank, in like manner, is not bound (as a literal interpretation of the statutes would import) to find out, and pay the fundholder on the appointed day, but to wait until he comes for his dividend.

That all the fundholders should apply for, and receive, their dividends on the day on which they become due, is a practical impossibility.

The construction contended for by the Bank is one not suggested by any public convenience, but directed solely to its own individual advantage. The Bank has stipulated for, and receives, a specific remuneration for the service it performs.

But it is now seeking, in addition to this proper payment, to obtain, by means of of a literal interpretation of the Acts of Parliament, the indirect advantage of compelling the Government to borrow money of itself, under the guise of enabling it to pay the public creditor before such money can by possibility be required for that purpose.

The whole question therefore is one, not between the Government and the public creditor, or between the Bank and the public creditor, but between the public and the Bank, whether the former shall save or the latter obtain that amount of money which, under the existing system, is received by the Bank as interest, or money prematurely and unnecessarily borrowed.

We think that to justify a construction entailing this public loss and inconvenience, the words must be such as will not admit of a more natural and reasonable interpretation.

It is said that the Bank is a trustee for the fundholders, but it is a trustee only of the monies it receives. Its only duty to the fundholders is to apply the money it receives in payment of dividends, and this duty is the measure of the trust it has to perform.

Independently of its receipt of money, the Bank is under no contract or liability to the fundholders, and can have no right of intervention as between them and the Government.

Such being, in our opinion, the true position of the Bank, it is, we think, a mere mistake in point of law to assume, as is done in the opinion before us, that if the Bank pays some of the fundholders their dividends before it has received the entire amount of all the dividends, it will become personally liable to pay the whole.

The payment of some fundholders might perhaps afford ground for presuming that the Bank had money for payment of all, but the presumption would admit of being rebutted, and the liability of the Bank would end with the application of the money it received.

These are a few only of the observations, which if we had time we might enlarge, that have occurred to us upon the opinion of the learned counsel for the Bank.

We retain our own opinion, that the course which has been hitherto pursued is at variance with the duty of the Government to the public, and cannot be sanctioned by any usage; and that the statutes in question ought to be construed, not for the interest of the Bank, but for the benefit of the community.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone to the Lord Chancellor.

My dear Lord Chancellor,

Downing-street, 21 Sept. 1854.

I AM very sorry to bring upon you any cares connected with my department. But I had occasion, a fortnight ago, to write the enclosed letter* to Lord Aberdeen, which tells its own story; and in reply he says to me, that as the question has become one of legal authority it would, in his opinion, be wise to consult you, as the highest law adviser of the Crown.

* See page 39.

The law officers met here to-day, and they are entirely satisfied of the correctness of their former opinion. They will send up here by Saturday morning (when, I understand, you are expected in town,) the papers in the case; and they will be prepared to wait upon you, if you should desire to see them. Mr. Greenwood, of the Treasury, can supply you with any references or information; and I beg you will not scruple to call me to London if you see occasion. I am not, however, so presumptuous as to suppose I can add anything to your means of judgment in a matter of law, and one to which I think the Attorney and Solicitor General have paid particular attention on account of its public importance.

I remain, &c.
(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

P. S.—I may perhaps add, that it is important that this matter should be closed as early as possible; and that my best address is here.

The Lord Chancellor to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

My dear Mr. Gladstone,

Holwood, 25 September 1854.

I HAVE read all the papers relative to the dividend question, and I am clearly of opinion you are right. I agree with the law officers, that the provision as to paying the amount of the annuities to the Bank on the day, must be considered as being merely directory; and that the non-compliance with its literal terms is unimportant, so long as the security of the public creditor is effectually maintained, by leaving the Bank always in funds to meet his calls. I place no reliance on the altered language of the Act of 1844, and of the previous Acts, under which the rate of interest has been reduced. If the original Acts warranted the construction put on them by the Bank, I do not think that the reducing Acts would have made any difference. But, I think, that neither in the one case, nor in the other, has the Bank any right to be heard on the subject. The Bank is not in any ordinary sense a stakeholder, or trustee. It is merely an agent to receive and pay.

On one point, indeed, it struck me at first that the Bank made something of a case; I allude to the right of action which the creditor, under the present system, has against the Bank for his dividends, and which, if the whole annuity is not paid to the Bank, he might find it impossible to enforce. The right of the public creditor to maintain an action against the Bank for his dividend, arises from the fact of his having, either expressly or impliedly, authorised the Bank to open an account with him, and of the Bank having received and carried to his account the dividends received from the Government. If the Bank has not so received the dividend that it could be appropriated to the particular account, the creditor could not make out that the Bank had received money on his account, which is essential to enable him to maintain his action. But, in the first place, the right of action of the creditor against the Bank is not (so far as appears from any portions of the Acts before me) the result of any express stipulation, and if the proposed alteration deprives him of this right (very rarely indeed called into action), and it is thought reasonable to secure it to him, that may be done by express enactment, so as to relieve him from the necessity of going by petition of right, or otherwise, against the Crown or the Treasury. Indeed, I see no reason why, when the payments are made to the Bank, the Bank might not be treated as appropriating them to the first claimants. This is, however, matter of detail, into which I do not think it necessary to go. My decided opinion is, that so long as you keep the Bank well in funds, to meet the demands in fact made on them by the creditor, they have no right to be heard in the matter; and it appears to me you are quite right not to continue a system involving a most unnecessary payment of interest.

I remain, &c.

(signed) Cranworth.

The Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Sir,

Bank of England, 12 October 1854.

WE are desired by the Court of Directors formally to submit to you, as the representative of Her Majesty's Government on financial matters, that the requirements of the law touching the payment of the public dividends have not, in their opinion, been fulfilled by the course adopted yesterday.

The Loan Acts under which the whole of the existing debt was contracted, appear to the Court to require that the entire annuities be paid on the days appointed to the chief cashier of the Bank, and that the said cashier shall, without delay, pay the same accordingly.

The annuities payable for the half year ending the 10th instant amount to 6,540,312 l.

The

The credit granted to the chief cashier of the Bank by the Treasury Warrant of the Comptroller-general on the 11th instant is only 4,717,971 l.

On the occasion of a similar proceeding in April last becoming a subject of inquiry, we presented to the Court of Directors a statement, in which, assuming the provisions of the Loan Acts to be obligatory, we expressed to the Court our belief that the legal obligations to which the Bank were made a party could be removed only by an alteration of the law.

This statement obtained the concurrence of the Court.

That we might not rely solely on our own judgment under the possible recurrence of a deviation from former practice, similar to that which took place in April, we instructed the Bank solicitor early in August to submit a case to the standing counsel of the Bank, and to Mr. Roundell Palmer. Their opinion, dated the 29th August, agrees with the view taken by the Court of Directors.

This opinion, together with the case, was communicated to the Solicitor of the Treasury, from whom a few days earlier we had received a copy of the opinion of the law officers of the Crown on a "case submitted to them as to Deficiency Bills."

This document, to which we gave the most careful consideration, left our previous persuasion unchanged; for we observed, that the queries submitted to the Crown officers have not induced them to advise upon the obligations arising to the Government and the Bank from the "Loan Acts," and that the costliness of the olden practice is alleged as an element in the formation of their decision; whereas the Bank have been always anxious to disconnect pecuniary considerations from a question which appears to them to depend not on a computation of gain or loss, but on the construction of the statutes.

Amidst the complicated embarrassment of the position in which the Bank have unwillingly been placed, they rely upon the intervention of Her Majesty's Government to protect them from any injurious consequences which on this or any future occasion may result from the infringement of a rule confirmed by all previous practice, and, as they are advised, dictated by the law.

We sincerely regret that it should be our office to express the non-concurrence of the Bank of England in any step taken by the administrators of the public finances.

And have, &c.

(signed) J. G. Hubbard, Governor.
T. M. Weguelin, Deputy-Governor.

The Right Honourable W. E. Gladstone to the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank.

Gentlemen,

Downing-street, 18 October 1854.

I HAVE had the honour to receive your letter of the 12th October, and have submitted it to my colleagues.

In that letter you observe, that "the queries submitted to the Crown officers have not induced them to advise upon the obligations arising to the Government and the Bank from the Loan Acts;" but it appears to me that in making this statement you have omitted to advert to the fact, not only that the original statement transmitted by you on the part of the Bank was placed before the Attorney and Solicitor-general, but that, as was set forth in the letter which Mr. Greenwood addressed to the solicitor to the Bank on the 29th of September, "the opinions given by Sir F. Kelly and Mr. Palmer upon the office of the Bank, in relation to the payment of the public dividends, had been submitted" by me "to the legal advisers of the Crown;" and "that they differed from the view taken by Sir F. Kelly and Mr. Palmer in respect to the office of the Bank, and to the rights and obligations of the Government."

You will therefore perceive that the entire subject, especially as it was raised in the opinion of Sir F. Kelly and Mr. Palmer, has had full legal consideration on the part of the Government, and that we are advised, as respecting the office of the Government in this matter, so also respecting the office of the Bank, in a sense entirely opposite to that of the opinion for which the Bank has been pleased to call. The advice which the Government has received is, that the Bank has no trust, except in respect to the monies it receives; that it is the agent of the State, to receive and pay, and that it has no right of intervention as between the fundholder and the State.

Under these circumstances, while entirely participating in your regret that there should be a variance of judgment between the Government and the Bank on any matter touching the relations between them, I nevertheless have pleasure in assuring you that the Government will hold itself responsible to the utmost for shielding the Bank from any injurious consequences which may result to the Bank in its office of disbursing of the dividends from the judgment which the Government has formed, if, which they by no means anticipate, such consequences should arise.

I have, &c.

(signed) W. E. Gladstone.

The Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank to the Right Honourable the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Sir,

Bank of England, 14 March 1855.

ON the 12th October last we felt it to be our duty to call the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the departure from antecedent practice in paying the public dividends which, first introduced by the Treasury in April 1854, had just then been repeated; and we expressed our reliance upon the intervention of Her Majesty's Government to protect the Bank from any injurious consequences which might result from proceedings in which we could not acquiesce.

The course against which we then remonstrated—of paying to the Bank part only of the dividends when due, and supplying from time to time such further portions as were expected to be asked for by the public—was, however, again resorted to in January last.

At your request, we now beg formally to place this subject before you, as the Finance Minister of the Crown, and to submit, for your consideration, with especial reference to the approaching April dividends,—

“That the Loan Acts under which the whole of the existing debt was contracted require that the entire annuities be paid on the days appointed to the chief cashier of the Bank, and that the said cashier shall, without delay, pay the same accordingly.”

In support of the views which we are now expressing on behalf of the Court of Directors, we beg to refer you to the copy of a case submitted to the standing counsel of the Bank and to Mr. Roundell Palmer, together with their opinion thereon.

We venture to hope that Her Majesty's Government may admit the validity of our objections to the recent change, by resuming, in the provision of the April dividends, the practice which until last year had invariably prevailed.

We have, &c.

(signed) J. G. Hubbard, Governor.
T. M. Weguelin, Deputy-Governor.

Sir G. Cornwall Lewis, Bart., to the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England.

Gentlemen,

Downing-street, 3 April 1855.

I BEG leave to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th ultimo, on the subject of the practice pursued in issuing from the Exchequer the sums required, from time to time, for the payment of the public dividends.

Since I came into office, I have not failed to give to this subject my careful consideration. I find that under the present practice, ample funds are transferred from the Exchequer account to the Dividend account at the Bank, from day to day, to satisfy every claim which there is any probability of the Bank being called upon to pay; and that a surplus advance beyond the expected claims is made to cover a possible increase beyond former demands. I find, moreover, that the legality of this course has been affirmed by the opinion of the law officers of the Crown, and that the arrangement is productive of advantage to the public service, by lessening the advances made to the Government by the Bank on Deficiency Bills. For these reasons, it appears to me that I should not be justified in departing from the present practice.

I am, &c.

Principal Librarian.

VIII.—PROGRESS made in the CATALOGUING and ARRANGEMENT of the COLLECTIONS and Account of OBJECTS ADDED, in the Year ending 25th December 1854.

DEPARTMENT OF PRINTED BOOKS.

I. Works added to the Collection during the year have been placed on the shelves of the Library as soon as catalogued. The press-marks, indicating their respective localities, have been affixed to each volume, title, and entry in the Catalogue. The total number of these items amounts to 136,153.

II. Cataloguing.—(a.) New General Catalogue.—The number of titles written for this Catalogue amounts to 41,052; of these 6,224 have been transcribed fourfold, 1,157 titles have been inserted in one copy of the Catalogue of King's Pamphlets, and in each of two copies of the same Catalogue, 12,297.

(b.) Supplementary Catalogue.—1. The number of titles written for this Catalogue amounts to 26,041, besides 91 Chinese; in all, 26,132.

2. The number of titles transcribed fourfold for the Supplementary Catalogue is 23,595; besides 882 index slips. The number of title slips inserted is 79,340; viz., 75,012 in three copies of the Supplementary Catalogue and 4,328 index slips in four copies of indexes to various long headings. This insertion has rendered it necessary, in order to preserve the alphabetical order of the names and headings, to take up and re-insert 19,339 titles in each of the three copies of the Supplementary Catalogue, and 1,154 slips in each of four copies of the indexes; and to add to each copy of the Supplementary Catalogue 39 leaves. All the indexes to the long headings in the Catalogue have been kept up.

3. The number of entries made in the Hand Catalogue of the periodical publications is 275.

(c.) Maps.—1. The new titles and cross-references for maps amount to 6,381.

2. The number of titles for the Map Catalogue transcribed fourfold is 5,896.

The number of titles inserted in each of two copies of the Map Catalogue is 6,158. This insertion has rendered it necessary (for the purpose of maintaining the strict alphabetical arrangement) to take up and re-insert in each of the two copies of the Catalogue 3,494.

(d.) Music.—1. The titles and cross-references written for this collection are 4,238.

2. 3,888 titles have been transcribed fourfold. The number of titles inserted in each of three copies of this Catalogue is 3,725. This insertion has rendered it necessary to take up and re-insert 2,119 titles in each copy, and to add 173 leaves to each copy.

III. Interleaved General Catalogue.—1. All the damaged leaves of the Library copy of this Catalogue, and those of 46 volumes of the Reading Room copy, have been repaired. This reparation has rendered it necessary to re-transcribe in the Library copy 4,416 titles; and in the Reading Room copy 14,103.

2. A complete copy of the Catalogue of titles of the Pamphlets, originally unbound and uncatalogued, forming part of the Royal Collection, has been placed in the Reading Room, and those Pamphlets have been thus made available to the public, like the rest of the Collection.

IV. Binding.—The number of volumes bound is 27,467 in 24,727, including 11,114 Pamphlets. The number of volumes repaired is 1,473. 638 Maps have been mounted.

V. Reading Room Service.—1. The number of books returned to the shelves of the General Library from the Reading Rooms is 98,981; to those of the Royal Library, 10,434; to those of the Grenville Library, 419; to the Closets in which books are kept from day to day for the use of the Readers, 121,526; making a total of 231,360, or 800 per diem. Adding the number of volumes returned to the shelves of the Reading Rooms, about 163,000, the whole amounts to 394,360, or 1,364 per diem.

2. The number of Readers has been 56,132; on an average, 194 per diem, the Reading Rooms having been kept open 289 days; each Reader has therefore consulted, on an average, seven volumes per diem.

VI. Additions.—1. The number of volumes added to the Library, comprising 110 received under the International Copyright Act, amounts to 13,055 (including Music, Maps, and Newspapers), of which 976 were presented, 6,182 purchased, and 5,897 acquired by copyright.

2. The number of parts of volumes, comprising 98 received under the International Copyright Act, is 19,021 (including Maps and Music), of which 115 were presented, 9,659 purchased, and 9,247 acquired by copyright. The total number of Newspapers acquired is 477, which have been bound in 386 volumes. Of these, 407 (viz., 201 published in London, and 206 in the country) have been received from the Inland Revenue Office, and the remainder (being Scotch Newspapers) from the branch of that Office at Edinburgh.

3. The Maps and Charts (including two Maps in two sheets, received under the International Copyright Act) amount to 542, in 2,349 sheets; the Atlases to 16 complete, and 32 parts of Atlases in course of publication. Of the Maps and Charts, 103 were presented, 117 purchased, and 320 acquired by copyright. The complete Atlases, and also the parts of Atlases, were acquired under the Copyright Act.

4. The number of pieces of Music, each comprising a complete work (including 234 received under the international Copyright Act), is 2,632, of which 1 was purchased, 5 presented, and 2,626 were acquired by copyright. 1,341 parts and numbers of works in progress (including 93 received under the International Copyright Act) have been acquired by copyright.

5. The total number of articles received (including 444 received under the International Copyright Act) is 37,434, of which 13,420 (comprising 323 received under the International Copyright Act) are complete works. Of the complete works 470 were presented, 4,253 purchased, and 8,697 were acquired under the Copyright Acts.

The enforcement of the delivery of books due under the Copyright Act has been steadily carried out during the year. In 1851, the year preceding that in which active proceedings were taken, the number of articles received was 9,871. During the past year the number has been 19,578, a result which fully justifies the course adopted to obtain books which had been withheld, and to secure regularity in the delivery of current publications. In the Report for the year 1853 it is said, in allusion to the fact that many arrears had been collected during that year, "it cannot be expected, therefore, that the numbers should be so high in future." The experience of the past year, however, justifies the conclusion, that in future, by the exercise of due care, the tendency will rather be towards an increase than a decrease on the number of articles then received.

6. Each article acquired has been stamped. The number of stamps impressed is 137,919.

DEPARTMENT OF MANUSCRIPTS.

1. The sheets of the Catalogue of Additions for 1846 have been printed off, from K to S inclusive, and the remainder is in a state of forwardness. The Additions also for the years 1848, 1849, 1850, 1851, and part of 1852, have been completed in copy.

2. The sheets from 3 D to 4 E, inclusive, of the Catalogue of Maps and Topographical Drawings, have been printed off, and the volume will be shortly ready for publication.

3. The brief Catalogue or Register of the Additional Manuscripts placed in the Reading Room has been continued from January 1853 to July 1854.

4. The Additional Charters and Rolls have been described, with an index of names and places, from No. 2,323 to No. 2,689.

5. Seven volumes in Arabic, and 156 in Turkish, have been described in detail for the General Catalogues of these classes of Manuscripts; and an Index to the Turkish class is in progress.

6. Two hundred and twenty-two volumes in Persian and Hindustani have been catalogued in detail (making in all 1,115 described for the General Catalogue of this class). This Catalogue is now completed up to January 1854, and an alphabetical Index of the Persian Titles of works has been compiled as far as the letter ج.

7. Sixty-eight volumes in Syriac have been described in detail for the General Catalogue of this class, and 13 other volumes have been re-collated and re-arranged.

8. One hundred and thirty-one Chinese and Manchu, and 10 Sanscrit Manuscripts, have been described.

9. The General Catalogue of the Hebrew Manuscripts is still in progress.

10. The general classed Inventory of the Oriental Manuscripts has been kept up to the present time.

11. An Index has been made to the Register of the Additional Manuscripts, from the year 1846 to 1853, inclusive.

Among the Acquisitions more worthy of notice may be mentioned:—

The Official and Private Correspondence and Papers, originals or copies, of the late Lieutenant-General Sir Hudson Lowe, from 1799 to 1828, embracing the whole of the transactions during the period he was Governor of St. Helena, 1816-1821. It is calculated that these Papers, when bound, will form about 120 volumes.

A large Collection of Papers purchased of the Marquis Gualterio of Florence, estimated to form about 400 volumes. These Papers include the original Official Correspondence of the Cardinal Filippo Antonio Gualterio, when Nuncio in France, 1700-1706, Legate a Latere in the Romagna, 1706, and Cardinal Protector of the English at the Papal Court, 1717-1728; as also of his nephew, Cardinal Luigi Gualterio, while Inquisitor of Malta, and Nuncio at Naples, 1750-1757.

A Collection of 60 original Court Rolls and above 350 Charters, relating to the Counties of Sussex, Surrey, Suffolk, and Norfolk, extending from the reign of Henry III. to the 17th century, presented by C. W. Dilke, Esq.

An interesting Collection of Drawings and Sketches by various artists, illustrative of New Zealand, the Loyalty Islands, &c., presented by Sir George Grey, K.C.B., late Governor of New Zealand.

The Cartulary of the Priory of St. Nicholas, Exeter, on vellum, of the 13th century, with a short Chronicle prefixed, to the year 1328. This is the Cottonian MS. marked Vitellius D. IX., which was missing from the Collection when Dr. Smith published his Catalogue in 1696, and it is now at length restored to its place in the Cottonian Library.

A very fine copy of the Historia Miscella, comprising Eutropius, Paulus Diaconus, and Landulphus; together with the Historia Ecclesiastica of Cassiodorus; on vellum, of the 12th century, folio.

An extremely fine copy of the French translation of Crescentius, executed for Charles V. of France in 1373, with 13 miniatures; on vellum, 15th century, large folio, from the MacCarthy and De Bure Libraries.

Several early Greek Manuscripts on vellum, among which is one containing the Books of Judges and Ruth, of the 10th century; and another, containing the Acts of the Apostles, written A.D. 1054.

Eight Armenian Manuscripts, including a copy of the Gospels, on cotton paper, written A.D. 1254; also several scarce works in Hebrew, Samaritan, Arabic, Turkish, Persian, and Hindustani.

A beautiful copy of the Persian Poem entitled Khawar Nama, composed by Ibn Hassam, at the commencement of the 15th century, in praise of the exploits of Ali, son-in-law of Mohammed, illustrated with 157 well-executed miniatures. This copy was written at Moultan, A. H. 1097=A. D. 1686.

Five folio volumes of the valuable Collections for the History of Essex, made by Thomas Jekyll, Secondary of the King's Bench, in the reign of Charles I.

A considerable number of volumes relating to the History and Literature of Ireland, from the Library of the late Sir William Betham, including the original Entry-Books of Recognizances in Chancery and Statutes Staple, from the reign of Elizabeth to 1678.

The original Account Book of the Privy Purse Expenses of King Henry VIII. from November 1529 to December 1532, signed throughout with his own hand.

The Autograph Deed of Agreement of Edmund Spenser, the Poet, of Kilcolman, County Cork, with a person named McHenry, signed and sealed; 17 Autograph Poems and Letters of Robert Burns; and 15 original Letters of Fénelon, Archbishop of Cambray, 1703-1714.

An Original Charter of Eudes, King of France, executed in the year 888 or 889, with the Seal en placard, finely preserved; also another Original Charter of Peter, Bishop of Beauvais, granted in 1123, with the Seal en placard.

26. The number of deliveries of Manuscripts to Readers in the Reading Rooms, during the twelvemonth, amounts to 18,899, and to Artists and others, in the rooms of the Department, to 3,378, exclusive of the numerous volumes examined by visitors.

DEPARTMENT OF ANTIQUITIES.

In the course of the last year, the alteration in the mode of lighting the South Side-Gallery has been completed.

The Koyunjik Basreliefs have been arranged in the North Side-Gallery, and the room opened for exhibition.

Many of the Egyptian Sculptures have been placed upon granite pedestals, and the remainder will be similarly mounted as rapidly as the material can be supplied.

The new Gallery for Græco-Roman Sculptures has been completed, and the larger portion of the Mythological Series arranged in it upon the most generally received archæological system.

The Basement-room beneath this Gallery is also completed, and the miscellaneous Sculptures of the Græco-Roman Collection are in process of arrangement.

Rooms in the basement story for the exhibition of Roman and Etruscan Sepulchral Sculptures are in preparation.

The Egyptian framed Papyri are in process of arrangement on the walls of the North-West Staircase, being thus for the first time exhibited to the public.

In the Greek series the following may be specified as among the most important acquisitions:—A Gold Stater of Seleucus I., of high rarity, not previously existing in the Museum Collection; a rare and fine Copper Coin of Colone in the Troad; many new types of Copper and Silver Coins of towns in Lesbos, Ionia, and Caria, particularly a new and very remarkable Silver Coin of Termera, a town in the province last mentioned; a fine Tetradrachm of Rhodes, and one of the Island of Cos. Several new and fine specimens have been added to the series of Sub-Parthian Coins, especially a Tetradrachm of an unascertained King.

To the Oriental series have been added several Gold Coins of the Mamluk Sultans of Egypt, a large number of those of the Kings of Saurastrân, and a considerable collection of the Money of various dynasties, including some Coins previously unknown.

In the Modern series, the Saxon and English Collections have received extensive and highly important additions from the sale of the late Mr. Cuff's Collection. Among these may be particularized the celebrated Pattern Crown of Henry VIII. A fine Collection of early Hungarian Coins has also been acquired, as well as three rare specimens of the Money of the Vandal Kings of Carthage, namely, a Quinarius of Huneric, and another of Thrasamund, with a Denarius of Gunthamund.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL HISTORY.

Zoological Branch.

The Collections of Shells have been re-arranged, so as to place them in accordance with the present state of our knowledge of the animals which form them. The specimens in the Northern Zoological Galleries have been re-arranged since the alteration of the skylights and the re-painting of those rooms.

The arrangement, naming and cataloguing of the Zoological Collections have been regularly proceeded with, and several foreign and British zoologists have been employed in describing the hitherto unrecorded species which the Collection contains.

The extent to which the description of the Museum Collection has been carried on has rendered it the great storehouse of the Typical specimens, from which very large numbers of species of animals of all classes have been described, so that the consultation of the Collection has now become absolutely necessary to the naturalists of all parts of the world, who may be desirous of extending the domains of their science, and fairly knowing what has been before recorded or described.

To render the Department even more worthy of attention in this respect, several Collections of English and foreign authors, containing the typical examples described and figured in their works, have been added to the Museum during the year.

During the year 1854, there have been added to the several parts of the Zoological Collection 24,413 specimens of different Classes of Animals; viz.:

Vertebrated Animals	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	903
Annulose Animals	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	9,663
Molluscous and Radiated Animals	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	13,847
								24,413

The 24,413 specimens of various Classes of Animals, which have been acquired during the year, have all been regularly marked and described in the Manuscript Register of accessions, and have all been arranged in their systematic places in the General Collection, and properly labelled.

The following Catalogues have been published during the year 1854:

1. Catalogue of Gronow's Collection of Fish.
2. Catalogue of Neuropterous Insects, Odonata.
3. Catalogue of Lepidopterous Insects; I. Heterocera.
4. Catalogue of British Lepidoptera—Part 4, Tineina.
5. Catalogue of Diptera—Parts 5, 6.
6. Catalogue of Hymenopterous Insects—Part 2, Apidæ.
7. Catalogue of the Shells of South America.
8. Catalogue of the Shells of Cuba.
9. Catalogue of the Shells of the Canaries.
10. Catalogue of Marine Polyzoa—Part 2.

Beside several thousand Fish, Reptiles, Mollusca, Insects, and other smaller Animals, which are prepared in the Museum, there have been set up, and re-set by the Animal Preserver—

Vertebrated Animals	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	278
Skeletons and Skulls	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	92

The additions to the Collections have been purchased on account of their being the types of the species described. The specimens added have been selected from large Collections from different countries, as most required to complete the series, most tending to illustrate the scientific arrangement, and as most useful in showing the economic uses of the Animal Kingdom.

The following may be specially mentioned :—

The Collection of Shells made by M. D'Orbigny, and described in his "Voyage dans l'Amérique Méridionale."

The Collection of Shells of the Canaries, made by MM. Webb and Berthelot, and described by M. D'Orbigny in the work on these islands by MM. Webb and Berthelot.

The Collection of Shells of Cuba, formed by M. Ramon de la Sagra, and described by M. D'Orbigny in Sagra's work on the Natural History of Cuba.

The Collection of Shells made by M.M. Eydoux and Souleyet, and described by them in the "Voyage de la Bonite." All these works were published under the patronage of the French Government.

Collections of the Land Shells of Jamaica, described by the late Professor Adams and Mr. Chitty; presented by the Honourable Edward Chitty.

Extensive Collections of Insects from Northern China, Northern India, Banks of the Amazon, &c.

Mammalia, Birds, Insects, Crustacea, and Radiata, collected during the voyage of H. M. S. "Herald;" presented by the Admiralty.

The Cocoon of the Goliathus Drurii, presented by Captain F. S. Parry, F.R.S.

Mineralogical and Geological Branch.

The principal acquisitions to the Department during the past year are—

By Donation.

The extensive Collection of upwards of 800 British Silurian Fossils, now arranged in two Table-cases in Room V.; a series of Polish Tertiary Fossils; a series of Russian Silurian Fossils, and some specimens of Hippurites, and allied genera from the Austrian Alps, all of which are presented by Sir Roderick I. Murchison. A series of about 50 specimens of Hippuritidæ, presented by S. P. Pratt, Esq.; a small Collection, comprising 31 species, of Eocene Tertiary Fossils, presented by J. D'Urban, Esq.; and a Collection of Fossil Cirripedes, presented by Charles Darwin, Esq.

To the Mineralogical Collection have been added, by donation, 6 specimens of Serpentine from the Lizard, Cornwall, presented by Messrs. Colt and Brace; a fine specimen of Rose Fluor, from Tacul, Valley of Chamouni, presented by John Ruskin, Esq.; a group of Crystals of Parisite, and several detached Crystals, from the Emerald Mines of Muzo, New Granada, presented by E. W. Mark, Esq.: this is a very valuable addition. A fine suite of Crystals of Cobalt Glance, from Scutterud, Norway, with several fine Crystals of Garnet, Apatite, and Arsenical Cobalt, also from Norway, presented by James Reeves, Esq.; a Slab of Flexible Sandstone, from India, presented by Sir Roderick I. Murchison; and a series of specimens of Stalagmitical Quartz, from the hot-springs of Roturna, New Zealand, some masses of Talc, and specimens of Prehnite, also from New Zealand, presented by Sir George Grey.

By Purchase.

A Collection of upwards of 700 specimens of Mammalian Remains, from the neighbourhood of Buenos Ayres; a very extensive suite of upwards of 3,000 Silurian Fossils from Bohemia, being the specimens described in M. Barrande's great work upon these Fossils; these are temporarily arranged in Table-cases in the New Room. About 400 species of the Miocene Fossil Shells of Bordeaux, collected by M. Deshayes; many very fine and choice cretaceous fossils, chiefly star-fishes, sea-urchins, crustacea, and fishes, from the late Mr. Taylor's Collection; an extensive series of Orthocerata, from the late Mr. Stokes's Collection, and containing the type specimens figured and described by Mr. Stokes in the Geological Society's "Transactions;" about 40 species of British Silurian Fossils; upwards of 100 species from the English Oolitic formations; a series of Fossils from the Carboniferous Rocks of Belgium; and a small but choice collection of Devonian Fossils from Germany.

Among the specimens of Minerals, procured by purchase, the following are the most important :—

A remarkably large and fine specimen of Limpid Topaz, from Ceylon; a mass of Native Silver, with Ores of the same—Sulphuret, Chloride, &c., from Mexico; a large group of Crystals of the Blue Carbonate of Copper, from Chessy; some large Crystals of Zircon, from Siberia; a very fine white Heulandite, from Iceland; Ruby Copper, crystallized crystallized in cubes and octohedrons, from the Burra Burra Mines, Australia; besides which, the Collection has been enriched by several fine Minerals from Cornwall, Cumberland, and Scotland.

With regard to the progress made in the arrangement, it may be observed, that of the foregoing Collections, upwards of 3,500 specimens having been carefully examined, have been registered, mounted on tablets, or otherwise prepared for exhibition, and for the most part incorporated in the general Collection. The additions to the Mineralogical Collection have all been registered and arranged. The Collection of Fossil Saurian and Chelonian Reptiles, having been much augmented during the last two years, has been re-arranged; and an additional Case has been added to the Collection of Fossil Fishes, and its arrangement completed.

Botanical Branch.

The Keeper has added to the arranged Herbarium specimens from the Collections of—

Mr. Geyer, from the Oregon and Missouri;
Mr. Wright, from New Mexico;
Mr. Welwitsch, from Portugal;
Mr. Thwaites, from Ceylon;
And from several smaller Collections.

He has prepared for arrangement the Myrtaceæ of New Holland, especially from the South-West Coast.

He has partly arranged the Family of Algæ, according to the "Species, Genera et Ordines Algarum" of Professor Agardh, and has prepared and arranged specimens for the Botanical Exhibition.

Since the Keeper's last Annual Report, he has received as presents, or by purchase,— 316 species of Dalmatian Plants, collected by Mr. Botteri.

309 species, collected in Kurdistan and Loristan, by Mr. Olguin.

550 species collected in Armenia by M. Huet de Pavillon.

433 species collected in Ceylon by Mr. Thwaites.

225 (two sets) collected in the vicinity of Swan River, by Mr. Drummond.

439 species collected in New Zealand by Dr. J. Hooker.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

dated 16 July 1855;—for,

“COPIES of the QUEEN’S LETTER or TREASURY MINUTE in 1853, nominating and appointing a Commission to Inquire into the Organization of the Permanent Civil Service:”

“Of any INSTRUCTIONS given for the guidance of such Commission:”

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, }
20 July 1855.

JAMES WILSON.

No. 1.

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 12th April 1853, appointing Committee of Inquiry.

THE Chancellor of the Exchequer states to the Board, that his attention has been called to the inquiries which are in progress under the superintendence of the Treasury into the establishment of various public departments, for the purpose of considering applications for increase of salary, abolishing or consolidating redundant offices, supplying additional assistance where it is required, getting rid of obsolete processes, and introducing more simple and compendious modes of transacting business, establishing a proper distinction between intellectual and mechanical labour, and, generally, so revising and readjusting the public establishments as to place them on the footing best calculated for the efficient discharge of their important functions, according to the actual circumstances of the present time.

In connexion with these inquiries into each particular establishment, it is highly necessary that the conditions which are common to all the public offices, such as the preliminary testimonials of character and bodily health to be required from candidates for public employment, the examination into their intellectual attainments, and the regulation of the promotions, should be carefully considered, so as to attain every practicable security for the public that none but qualified persons will be appointed, and that they will afterwards have every practicable inducement to the active discharge of their duties.

The general result of these inquiries and of the proceedings which will be taken upon them, will, undoubtedly, be that the public service will be conducted in a more efficient manner by a smaller number of persons than is the case at present. The gain in point of economy will probably be important. Five thousand pounds a year was saved by the recent revision of the Chief Secretary’s Office, and the offices connected with it in London and in Dublin; and the ultimate reduction of expenditure in consequence of the arrangements in progress at the Board of Trade will amount to upwards of five thousand pounds. But the gain in point of efficiency will be far greater. The object is, that the business of the public should be done in the best and most economical manner; and that arrangement of the public establishments which most conduces to this result will, in almost every case, be the most economical.

2 RETURN RELATING TO THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

Their Lordships' Assistant Secretary has of late years taken an active part in the Committees of Inquiry which have been appointed for this object, and it is desirable that the experience which he has acquired both as a member of these Committees and in the ordinary discharge of his duty at the Treasury, which is the central office for the revision of the public establishments, should be turned to the best account.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer proposes that Sir Stafford Northcote, who acquired an extensive acquaintance with the public departments during his employment at the Board of Trade, and has proved on many occasions his superior fitness for administrative functions, should be joined with Sir Charles Trevelyan in this important duty, and that he should give up his whole time to it. Sir Stafford Northcote has been already actively employed for some weeks, under their Lordships' appointment, as a member of the Committee for inquiring into the contracts for the conveyance of the mails, and of the Committee for inquiring into the establishments of the Privy Council Office and the Board of Trade, and the departments of Practical Art and Science, and the other offices dependent upon the Board of Trade.

My Lords entirely concur in the view which has been taken of this subject by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and they are pleased to determine that Sir Stafford Northcote shall be paid at the rate of one thousand pounds a year for this service from the date of his first employment upon it, which salary will be paid from Civil Contingencies until further arrangements are made.

Direct the Paymaster-General to pay to Sir Stafford Northcote, in remuneration of his services as member of committees for inquiring into various public establishments with a view to a more efficient and economical performance of the public business, a salary of one thousand pounds a year until further orders, commencing on the 15th February last inclusively, and to charge the payments made by him under this direction to the account of Civil Contingencies.

No. 2.

RETURN of all EXPENSES incurred by the Committee appointed by the Treasury Minute of 12th April 1853, to Inquire into the various Public Establishments, with a view to a more efficient and economical performance of the Public Business.

JAMES WILSON.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed, 5 June 1855.

COPY of LETTER to the late CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, dated the 7th day of December 1853, from the Members of a General Committee of Civil Servants of the Crown, relative to the Establishment of a CIVIL SERVICE PROVIDENT FUND.

Sir,

Audit Office, 7 December 1853.

As Members of a General Committee of Civil Servants of the Crown who have been acting in concert since the year 1846, we take the liberty of addressing you on the present occasion, although we have reason to believe that the object we have in view is now under your deliberate consideration.

In the year 1846 a desire was expressed throughout the service that a fund might be established for the benefit of the widows and orphans of civil servants.

The cases of destitution were so numerous, and the calls upon the members of the service for assistance were so often repeated, that it was felt to be a severe tax upon the limited means of public officers.

Upon careful inquiry it was found that the deduction made from salaries on account of the Superannuation Tax was so oppressive that it prevented the great majority of public servants from insuring their lives. It was also found that the amount abated from the salaries of officers was far more than sufficient or the object contemplated by the Superannuation Act.

Having obtained returns from officers in the public service, we were assisted by Dr. Farr in preparing Life and other valuable Tables, which enabled us to submit a scheme of Life Assurance for the consideration of Her Majesty's Government.

In March 1848 we memorialized Lord John Russell, then First Lord of the Treasury, for the conversion of the assessments levied upon the salaries of civil servants into a "Provident Fund."

In December 1852 a petition was presented to the House of Commons by Mr. Fitzroy,* a copy of which we have the honour to annex.

The prayer of that petition is, that Parliament will be pleased to take into consideration the 27th section of Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, and sanction the assessments therein directed to be made being applied to the purpose of forming a "Civil Service Provident Fund," for the relief of our widows, orphans and other relatives, upon the principle of Life Assurance, without detriment to our own superannuation allowances, when worn out and no longer able to perform our public official duties.

To that prayer we still adhere, firmly believing that a compliance with it would prove of the utmost advantage to the public service, while it would be an inestimable boon conferred upon the civil servants of the Crown, whose small means do not generally enable them to make provision for their families.

In support of this petition we have considered it our duty to take the sense of the contributors to the Superannuation Tax employed in the several offices in London and Dublin.

And we have the honour to submit for your consideration the signatures we have received, amounting to 3,196 in number.

Upon an analysis of the returns it appears that of the 23 principal Public Departments in London, and of the same number in Dublin, returns have been received from 42. The other four departments have either declined to affix their signatures, or omitted to make returns.

The number of persons who contribute to the Superannuation Fund in those four offices, are 116; the number of signatures obtained in the other 42 offices, amount to 3,196.

The signatures are, those of the single (1,238), as well as of married officers, (1,958); and we have much satisfaction in stating that only 60 officers of the number included in the list have declined, for various reasons, to affix their signatures; the remaining officers, 326 in number, whose signatures have not been obtained, were absent at the time from sickness or other causes, but it has been stated, in many instances, that had they been present there was little doubt that they would have signed their names in favour of the petition.

The feeling in favour of a Provident Fund upon the principle of Life Assurance, is, therefore, we respectfully submit, all but universal throughout the departments in London, and in Dublin the feeling is even still more decided, there not being a single dissident.

We have not been able to collect the signatures from other public servants who contribute to the tax, and who are scattered throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies, but during the period of eight years that we have been preparing information upon this subject we have never met with the least objection to our proceedings on the part of those officers.

In placing the annexed signatures before you we are unwilling in the present letter to trouble you more at length upon the question, but we have thought it desirable to annex, by way of appendix, the various reasons which have induced us so long to persevere in the course we have felt it our duty to take.

In settling upon a just and perfect basis this question, which has so long disturbed the contentment of public servants, we have every confidence that our

* It has not been considered necessary to include this petition in the Return, as it is already before the House of Commons.

our prayer will receive at your hands that consideration which the importance of the subject would seem to require.

In that confidence we have the honour to subscribe ourselves,

Your most obedient

Faithful Servants,

APPENDIX.

THE operation of the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, cap. 24, may be regarded as twofold; viz., diminishing, by its 10th and 11th clauses, the value of the superannuation allowances to be granted, and imposing by its 27th clause assessments of $2\frac{1}{2}$ and 5 per cent., on the amount of public salaries, "with a view to reduce prospectively the charge incurred in providing for superannuation allowance."

In regard to the great reduction thus effected in the value of superannuation allowances, we are apprehensive that the operation of the present regulations may prove prejudicial to the public service, by inducing inefficiency in its senior branches from reluctance to accept retirement, and thus depress its junior branches by the remoteness of promotion; and are well aware that the service would be greatly benefited by any amelioration which might be effected in those regulations; but as we considered that these were matters involving the general policy of the State in its connexion with its civil servants, and were aware that the anomalies of the varying scales and regulations now governing the pensions awarded to the several classes of political, diplomatic, judicial, and civil servants of this country could not be unknown to Her Majesty's Government, it appeared to us desirable that we should not advert to these points, satisfied that whatever was awarded to us would be that which the Government would consider our services might merit, and convinced that in any consideration of this portion of the question our claims would be decided in a spirit of equity and liberality; a change in the regulations and scale of pensions therefore formed no part of our petition.

In respect to the assessments levied on our salaries, we have ascertained from returns recently laid before Parliament that in the year 1851 the amount thus assessed was 56,196 l., while the amount awarded as pensions to civil servants, appointed subsequently to 4 August 1829, was only 6,688 l.; and further, that the total amount assessed, to the close of the year 1851, was 580,708 l., while the total amount paid as above as pensions during the same period was only 30,423 l. These assessments have not been formed into a fund. Had such a fund been established, they would, in the year 1852, have accumulated to a sum of 681,667 l., producing the yearly interest of 20,450 l.

We have also prepared a calculation based on the enactments of the Superannuation Act, and on the probabilities of life, proving that the total amount of the future pension list will eventually be reduced to a maximum of 200,000 l. per annum; thus effecting, irrespectively of the assessment on salaries, a diminution of 60 per cent. on the amount of the present pension list, viz., 503,164 l., and permanently reducing the charge "to be incurred in providing for superannuation allowances" by about 300,000 l. per annum. We have also ascertained that subsequently to 1829 and the passing of the above Act, a decrease has been effected in public salaries, amounting to 282,272 l. per annum, which diminution of the annual charge for salaries will eventually operate still further, in proportionately "reducing the charge to be incurred in providing superannuation allowances." We therefore considered that a case had been established for the consideration of Her Majesty's Government, since it was thus demonstrated that the object of the Act had been already fully accomplished by the actual and prospective operation of its 10th and 11th clauses, in effecting so vast a "reduction in the charge to be incurred in providing for superannuation allowances," a "reduction fully as great, it is believed, as could have been contemplated by Parliament when those clauses were enacted;" we therefore felt justified in petitioning for immediate relief from the annual assessments levied on our salaries, solely for the purpose of effecting the "reduction" thus shown to be already insured; and the more so, since in pursuing the calculation alluded to, it was ascertained that the amount of those assessments was so excessive, that if funded at only three per cent. interest, they would not only suffice to defray the entire probable charge for the annual pensions of contributors during the next 57 years, but would, by that period, have accumulated to a surplus fund of upwards of 6,700,000 l., producing the yearly interest of 201,000 l., or more than the probable maximum of the pension list; so that the entire charge of civil pensions would, from the date of the passing of the above Act, be defrayed in perpetuity by assessments from the salaries of the civil servants employed between the years 1829 and 1910, and those assessments, if continued beyond the latter date, would become a clear source of revenue to the country.

In the confident anticipation that, from the foregoing consideration, Her Majesty's Government would be satisfied that there no longer existed a necessity for continuing the assessments on public salaries imposed by the 27th clause of the Act, for the purpose of reducing the charge for superannuation allowances, we were induced for the following reasons to petition rather for the appropriation of those assessments to another purpose, than for their entire abolition. We were painfully aware, from much experience, of the lamentable distress which frequently befel the families of deceased civil servants, owing to the want of any general provident fund for their relief; and were persuaded that the temporary assistance afforded in certain cases by eleemosynary aid was both derogatory and inadequate, while we found that, owing to the limited incomes generally received, insurances were rarely effected, and local benevolent funds existed in but few departments, and even in them were insufficiently supported.

Under these circumstances we considered that it would be for the present and permanent benefit of the service at large, if, instead of regarding the liberated assessments as a mere immediate increase of salary, which would or could, we feared, be applied in but few cases to provident purposes, advantage were taken of the existing system of assessments, to institute a general "Provident Fund," permanent in its operation, compulsory in its contributions, and bestowing equal benefits, according to the established principle of life assurance, on the families of married or unmarried contributors.

It was in the conviction that such a fund would constitute a noble appendage to the civil service of the country, and be most acceptable to the great body of its members, that we ventured to petition Parliament for the "conversion" of the assessments into a "Provident Fund." In order, however, to demonstrate to Her Majesty's Government that, in adopting this course we have been acting in accordance with the almost unanimous opinion of our colleagues, we have circulated, for their concurrence or otherwise, the accompanying sheets throughout our respective departments, confining ourselves, in the first instance, to the offices in London and Dublin, or in such towns as were most accessible for collection; and we beg to transmit herewith the signatures of the whole of the members present, with the exception of only 60 dissentients, or a minority of less than two per cent., thus expressing the almost unanimous concurrence of the vast majority of the civil service, viz., 3,196 contributors to the fund, in favour of our petition for the conversion of the assessment levied on salaries into a "Civil Service Provident Fund."

In the hope that Her Majesty's Government would be pleased to sanction the establishment of such a fund, we prepared a code of regulations and tables for its management, which have been already submitted for consideration. Those regulations and tables were, in our judgment, such as were best calculated to insure the efficiency and permanent security of the fund, but in the event of any portion of those regulations being considered too complicated for adoption, we beg respectfully to express our opinion, that the utmost simplicity might be combined with the most complete efficiency, were the fund to be established solely on the principle of life assurance.

The existing inexpensive Government machinery for the collection of the quarterly assessments in the several departments of the State, would, we trust, be suffered to remain unaltered; by which means any cost of collection would be saved to the fund; and we beg respectfully to state that we consider that the general management of the fund would be most satisfactorily conducted by members of the Civil Service, under such regulations, and subject to such supervision and control, as might be deemed expedient by Her Majesty's Government.

Thus the great maxim that the State should provide for its servants, and those servants for their families, will be completely sustained.

(signed) R. M. Bromley, Chairman.

		F. G. Gardner, 13 August 1855. Assistant Secretary.
		In the interval between the years 1848 and 1855 the number of convicts confined in the Government prisons has been almost doubled.
		Consequently, several new establishments have been formed; viz., Dartmoor, for 1,200 convicts; Portland, for 1,500; Brixton, for 640; and a new prison at Portsmouth has superseded two hulks, formerly stationed at that port. Governors, deputy governors, medical officers, chaplains, clerks, school-masters, warders, &c., have been appointed to these prisons, to the number of between 300 and 400, of whom by far the greater part are warders and other inferior officers, the proportion of whom to the number of prisoners may be stated at 10 per cent.
Secretary of State - - -	- - -	In addition to the positive increase in the number of convicts on the hands of Government, an improved system of discipline has been established, requiring more active superintendence by an increased number of officers.
		J. Jebb, Chairman of the Directors.

7 & 18 Vict. c. 95 (Public Health Act, 1854).	2,000 - -	The Public Health Act passed August 1848. -- Prior to the passing of the Amendment Act of 1854, there were two paid members of the Board, one at 1,500 £, and the other at 1,200 £, in addition to the unpaid members. Prior to the Amendment Act of 1854, there were five superintending inspectors (and at one time seven), receiving 3 £. 3 s. a day when engaged, in addition to travelling expenses; and 15 s. per night for personal expenses when from town. The estimate in respect thereof was, in 1849, 8,250 £.; and, in 1850, 7,250 £. The present estimate for similar services is 3,300 £. An engineer's clerk used to be employed at 100 £. a year, but has been discontinued.

- Originally appointed under Public Health Act, 1848; re-appointed under Amendment Act, 1854.	3,300 - -	Prior to the Amendment Act of 1854, there were five superintending inspectors (and at one time seven), receiving 3 £. 3 s. a day when engaged, in addition to travelling expenses; and 15 s. per night for personal expenses when from town. The estimate in respect thereof was, in 1849, 8,250 £.; and, in 1850, 7,250 £. The present estimate for similar services is 3,300 £. An engineer's clerk used to be employed at 100 £. a year, but has been discontinued.
- One was a re-appointment under the Act 854. The second was a fresh appointment under that Act.	650 - -	Under the Metropolitan Interments Act, 1850, a treasurer was appointed, at 600 £. a year. He acted as accountant under the Public Health Act. Since the repeal of the first-named Act, the duties of accountant under the Public Health Act have been performed by one of the clerks, though, till August 1854, under the superintendence of the gentleman originally appointed treasurer. During the visitations of cholera, various medical superintending inspectors were appointed by the Board, under sanction of the Treasury, at rates varying from 2 £. 2 s. to 3 £. 3 s. a day, and travelling expenses. During the epidemic of 1849-50, 18 medical men were so engaged by the Board. A few only of the principal of those inspectors were re-appointed during the subsequent visitations of cholera. A medical council, however, was formed in September 1854, to aid the president with their advice during the latest prevalence of cholera in that year. The council consisted of 13 members, each receiving 2 £. 2 s. for each sitting. The expenses of the last cholera epidemic are not included in the sum of 10,945 £. They will be included in next year's estimate.

Treasury authority, dated 22 June 1848 -	3,928 - -	-- These appointments were made in lieu of two bank clerks who had been previously employed, by which a saving of 268 l. a year was effected.
- - ditto - - - 31 August 1850 -	2,050 - -	-- These appointments were made in consequence of the great increase in the business of the Export Department, which had been previously provided for by temporary assistance.
- - ditto - - - 10 October 1851 -	1,975 - -	{ This addition was made in consequence of a great increase in the business of this office.
- - ditto - - - 8 February 1851 -	53,615 - -	{ These appointments were made in consequence of the arrangements adopted for the receipt of the taxes in England by the collectors of Excise, but there was no additional expense to the establishment generally, as corresponding reductions had been previously made by the abolition of the receiving inspectors and their clerks; saving on the whole, 5,365 l. per annum.
- - ditto - - - 10 November 1851	2,636 - -	{ The great increase of business at the port of Liverpool made this addition to the establishment there necessary.
- - ditto - - - 23 May 1853 -	3,610 - -	- - These clerks were added to this establishment owing to the additional business that arose from the Stamp Act, 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97.
- - ditto - - - 22 July 1853 -	5,974 - -	{ This addition was made to suppress any illicit practices that might arise in consequence of the augmentation of the rate of duty on spirits.

Treasury Authority, dated 25 August 1853 -	4,128 - -	These additions were made in consequence of the increase in the number of claims of exemption from income tax, and for return of duty overpaid.
- - - ditto - - - 22 November 1853	5,768 - -
- - - ditto - - - 23 September 1853	13,125 - -	These additions were made to the establishment, in consequence of the rates of legacy duty having been extended to successions to real property, per Act 16 & 17 Vict. c. 51.
- - - ditto - - - 10 February 1854 -	7,260 - -
- - - ditto - - - 5 July 1854 - -	13,065 - -	- - This augmentation was made to suppress any illicit practices that might be apprehended from the additional spirit duty in Scotland, the previous establishment not being considered sufficient for the complete security of the revenue.
- - - ditto - - - 28 July 1854 -	8,240 - -	- - These appointments were made in consequence of the additional business that had devolved on the collectors in England and Ireland by the collection of the income tax and other duties.
- - - ditto - - - 26 June 1854 -	48,170 - -
- - - ditto - - - 11 August 1854 -	2,670 - -	In consequence of the increase of business from the extension of the income tax to incomes of 100 £, and the alteration of the assessed taxes, which brought more persons into charge.
- - - ditto - - - 11 August 1854 -	7,468 - -
- - - ditto - - - 9 August 1854 -	3,420 - -	These appointments were required, in consequence of the additional business, caused by the extension of the income tax to Ireland, and the augmentation of the number of surveyors.
- - - ditto - - - 11 August 1854 -	8,130 - -
- - - ditto - - - 31 January 1855 -	- - -	- - This augmentation was made to meet the great increase of business arising from the bankruptcy, chancery, admiralty, and other stamp duties having been placed under the management of this department.
- - - ditto - - - 2 February 1855 -	5,833 - -	- - Persons had previously been temporarily employed in this duty; and from experience of the benefit to the revenue, it was considered desirable to make a permanent establishment of the preventive officers.
- - - ditto - - - 2 March 1855 -	1,040 - -	- - This appointment was made in consequence of the extension of the income tax, and the abolition of the Special Commissioners for Ireland.
- - - ditto - - - 8 May 1855 -	16,230 - -	- - Made in consequence of increase of business, and to save the time of the clerks.
		- - This addition made to meet the increase of business caused by the Act 16 & 17 Vict. c. 51, coming into more general operation.

The Lords Commissioners of the Treasury -	- - -	Prior to the 10th October 1851 the solicitor was paid by bills of costs. At the revision of the establishment which took place at that date, and with a view to a diminution of expense, the then solicitor was placed upon a salary of 2,000 l. a year, with an allowance of 350 l. for a house and 900 l. for clerks. Upon his retirement, in 1854, a further saving was effected by the appointment of the present solicitor and four clerks, with the salaries mentioned in the Return, and with no additional allowances.

4 Geo. 4, c. 61, 6 Geo. 4, c. 30, and Chancery (Ireland) Regulation Act, 1850.	-- From 50 l. to 60 l., being the yearly average payment to court and office-keeper, and stationery.	The Court of Chancery (Ireland) Regulation Act 1850 did not create these appointments, which existed for many years, during which these officers were appointed by and removable by the Master at his pleasure, but it gave fixed salaries to the existing officers, and enacted that they should hold their offices on good behaviour, and directed the fees of the office to be paid into the Suitors' Fee Fund Account (which fees were theretofore retained by the examiner). By this Act the salary of the master's examiner was fixed at 600 l. per annum, payable out of the Suitors' Fee Fund, and the assistant clerk's salary, which was 70 l. Irish, and contingent fees, was fixed at 200 l. per annum, payable out of the Suitors' Fee Fund. The Chancery Regulation Act also contained a clause directing that a sum not exceeding 100 l. per annum should be paid out of Suitors' Fee Fund for the incidental expenses of the office. Wm. D. Murphy, Examiner. I believe this Return to be correct. 25 June 1855. J. J. Murphy, M. C.

31st and 32d sections of 13 Vict. c. 18 -	1,950 - -	Upon the consolidation, in 1850 (by the Act of 13 Vict. c. 18), of the several writ and seal offices of the three law courts in Ireland into the present Writ and Seal Office, the three assistants now in this office were, under the 32d section of that Act, selected from the writ offices of the Exchequer and Queen's Bench respectively, where at that time and previous to the 6th April 1848 they held similar offices; so that these offices can scarcely be said to have been created since the 6th April 1848. For the same reason it can scarcely be said that the office of clerk of the writs of the three courts, which resulted from the consolidation of three such offices into one, is a creation of a new office. William Macdougall, 25 June 1855. PUBLIC REVENUE AND CONSOLIDATED FUND
CHARGES ACT.

RETURN of RULES and REGULATIONS issued by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in pursuance of the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 94, intituled, "An Act to alter the Mode of providing for certain Expenses now charged upon certain Branches of the PUBLIC REVENUES, and upon the CONSOLIDATED FUND."

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, }
23 January 1855.

JAMES WILSON.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated the 22d August 1854, for carrying into effect the Provisions of the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 94.

My LORDS read the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 94, altering the mode of providing for certain expenses heretofore charged upon certain branches of the Public Revenues, and upon the Consolidated Fund.

By this Act various judicial and other charges, which have hitherto been defrayed under the authority of various Acts of Parliament from the revenues of Customs, Excise, and Taxes, are made payable out of the Consolidated Fund from the 1st April 1854. These charges are enumerated in Schedule (A.), annexed to the Act.

Various other charges, described in Schedule (B.), annexed to the Act, which have hitherto been paid out of the Consolidated Fund, or out of the revenues of Customs, Excise, Taxes, and Post Office, are by the said Act removed from the Consolidated Fund, or from the said branches of the public revenue, and provision has been made for paying the same out of moneys provided by Parliament, as set forth in the Appropriation Act for the year 1854-55.

My Lords proceed to lay down the regulations for the future payment of these several charges, in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

In giving effect to that part of the Act which transfers the charges of collection and management of the revenue to the votes of Parliament, my Lords consider it desirable to adhere, as far as possible, to the regulations at present established for collecting and remitting the public revenue, and for defraying the public services which have hitherto been paid in every part of the United Kingdom out of local receipts. The change which has been made in the mode of providing for the expenses of collection has for its object to bring that branch of the public expenditure under the annual revision of the House of Commons, and does not render it necessary to restrict the facilities which have hitherto existed for the payment of such expenses as may have received the sanction of Parliament. Under the existing mode of payment, the public money is made available for the service of the public at the earliest moment, all unnecessary remittances to and from the country are avoided, a saving of interest and commission is effected, the security of the public money is promoted, and the public accounts are simplified. This mode of payment is, moreover, consistent with the provisions of various Acts of Parliament regulating the payment of naval and other voted services where they are directed to be made by the collectors of the revenue out of local receipts. My Lords desire, therefore, that the expenses of collection and management at the several stations throughout the United Kingdom may be paid, as heretofore, out of the revenue collected on the spot, and that the vouchers for such payments may be remitted to London and treated as bills recoverable out of the votes of Parliament.

The cash received on account of revenue at the head offices in London has, in like manner, been made immediately available for the public service, and the claims on those offices have been satisfied out of the current daily receipts. The payment of such receipts to the Bank in gross, and the issue of them again from the Bank, for the purpose of meeting the daily payments, would have the effect of increasing the balances, and would be attended with unnecessary risk. My Lords are therefore pleased to authorize the Revenue Departments to continue their existing banking arrangements, which are perfectly consistent with the strict appropriation of the grants of Parliament, with such modifications only as the following directions may render necessary.

The payments to be made by the Revenue Departments, either at head quarters or through their local collectors, will consist of—

1st. Drawbacks, repayments, pensions, superannuations, and retired allowances. These payments remain, as heretofore, finally chargeable on the revenue, and they will not be affected by any of the regulations to be made for the services to be defrayed out of the sums voted by Parliament for the charges of collection and management of the revenue.

2d. Advances for charges of collection and management, which being provided for by votes of Parliament, will be repaid to the revenue out of such votes.

3d. Advances for other departments of Government for services provided for by Parliament, which will in like manner be repaid to the revenue out of the funds, and in the manner prescribed by Parliament.

In accordance with the provisions of the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 15, which prescribes the authorities and forms for the issue of the grants of Parliament, my Lords have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Orders of Credit in favour of Sir Francis Hastings Charles Doyle, Bart., Receiver-general of Customs, for the following grants for the service of the year 1854-55; viz.,

£. 840,785 for Salaries and Expenses of the Customs Department.

479,320 for Salaries and Expenses of the Coast Guard, including Revenue Cruisers.

And for the following sums, in favour of James Brotherton, Esq., Receiver-general of Inland Revenue; viz.,

£. 1,154,594 for the Salaries and Expenses of the Inland Revenue Department.

52,769 for the Salaries and Expenses of the Revenue Police in Ireland, and "Seamew" Steamer.

Also in favour of the Right Honourable the Viscount Canning, Her Majesty's Postmaster-general, for the sum of 1,525,335*l.*, to defray the charges for Post Office services, and the collection of the revenue of that department.

These Royal Orders, and the Treasury warrants required by the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 15, will be forwarded to the Comptroller-general of the Exchequer.

When money may be wanted by the Revenue Departments on any of the votes of their respective estimates, either to replace advances made out of revenue, or to meet prospective payments, a certificate of the amount required on each vote, signed by the Comptroller-general of Customs, by the Comptroller and Accountant-general of Inland Revenue, or by the Receiver and Accountant-general of the Post Office, is to be addressed to this Board, when Exchequer credits for the amount applied for will be granted at the Bank of England. From these credits the necessary writes-off or transfers to the drawing and vote accounts, or to such other accounts as the advances or payments may be made from, will be ordered by the persons authorised to draw on the Bank accounts.

My Lords desire to call the attention of the Revenue Departments to the terms of the Appropriation Act, by which the sums granted are to be appropriated; the several sums are granted for the services "which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March 1855;" in other words, the payments to be made in the year are to be considered as the expenditure of the year chargeable against the grant of Parliament for that year. This principle of applying the votes of Parliament, which is in accordance with that adopted for all the naval and military expenditure, will enable the Revenue Departments to close their annual accounts of expenditure at a much earlier period than if the votes had been taken for payments falling due within the year.

The Revenue Departments should be careful to avoid any excess of expenditure beyond the sums appropriated by Parliament in each year for the service of their respective departments. As so large a proportion of the expenditure consists of salaries of establishments, my Lords consider that there will be little trouble in so regulating them, and in making the proper provision for them in the annual estimates, as to avoid the danger of exceeding the limit of expense prescribed by the vote of Parliament.

To give a further guarantee to Parliament for the due application of the sums granted upon the annual estimates, the several Revenue Departments are to prepare annually abstract accounts of the sums expended in the year contrasted with the sums voted; and these accounts are to be transmitted to this Board, for presentation to Parliament, as soon after the termination of the financial year as the same can be accurately made up.

If it should appear by these accounts that any surplus of grants remains after defraying the expenses of the year, the same will be declared available as Ways and Means; if, on the other hand, any excess of expenditure beyond the grants shall have taken place, a statement of the amount of such excess must be submitted to Parliament, that a special vote may be taken for it.

The payment of salaries which has hitherto been made for the quarters ending 5th of January, 5th of April, 5th of July, and 10th of October, in each year, should hereafter be made for the quarters ending 30th of June, 30th of September, 31st of December, and 31st of March. This change has already taken place in the Post Office, and it should be carried into effect in the Customs and Inland Revenue Departments not later than the 31st of March next, on which day my Lords propose to alter the termination of the quarters for the financial accounts.

My Lords also desire that financial statements of the gross receipt and net produce of the several heads of duty, of the charges of collection, and of the income and disposal of income for the quarter ended the 5th of April last, be made up in the usual form, to be laid before Parliament at its next meeting, and that the succeeding financial accounts be made up from that date to the 31st of March 1855.

According to the proviso contained in the first clause of the Act, the following charges of the judicial establishments in Scotland remain chargeable on the gross revenue during the lives of the present holders, and the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer will transmit to them separate quarterly schedules of such charges, that they may authorise the issue of the amount through the Receiver-general of Inland Revenue, and no further charge on account of the judicial establishment in Scotland will be payable out of the Customs Revenue, viz.:

Charges (Judicial)

Salaries of Sheriff Clerks - -	-	9,059	4	"
Estimated charge for 1854-55 -	£.	9,594	4	-

Charges (Scotland) payable out of Consolidated Fund. The following charges, included in Schedule (A.), hitherto paid out of the revenues of Customs, Excise, and Taxes, are made payable by the first clause of the Act, out of the Consolidated Fund, from the 1st April 1854, viz. :—

Salaries of the Judges of the Courts of Session, Justiciary, and Exchequer, and of the Bill Chambers, in Scotland.

Pensions of the Judges in Scotland.

Salaries of Sheriffs and Sheriffs Substitute, Scotland.

Retiring allowances to Sheriffs Substitute, Scotland.

Compensations to various persons for loss of fees and annuities, Scotland.

Stipends to Scotch clergy.

Augmentation of stipends to Scotch clergy.

The Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer will transmit to this Board a separate quarterly Schedule of the above charges payable out of the Consolidated Fund, upon which my Lords will give their usual warrant to the Paymaster-general to place the amount to his credit at the bank in Scotland employed by the Government.

Charges (Judicial) payable out of votes.

All other charges connected with the support of the judicial establishments in Scotland, and which are described in Schedule (B.) of the Act, are payable from the 1st of April 1854, out of the sums granted for such charges in the Appropriation Act for 1854-55. These charges are to be added to the Schedule of Services payable out of votes of Parliament transmitted to this Board quarterly by the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, in order that the issue of the amount thereof may be authorised through the Paymaster-general.

The salaries of the Macers, &c., of the Court of Session, and of the officers payable from the Fee Fund, are to be included in the Schedule of the Votes to be paid by the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer. The collector of the Fee Fund will transmit to the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, on the 1st September next, for the quarterly Schedule to the 30th September, a statement of the fees received by him since the close of the last quarter, and will pay the amount thereof to the account of the votes of Parliament in the national bank where the Government accounts are at present kept; the collector will follow a similar course, in future quarters, with the fees received by him in the three months ending on the 1st December, 1st March, 1st June, and 1st September, in every year.

Charges of Civil Government of Isle of Man.

The payments for the support of the Civil Government of the Isle of Man, and for public works, hitherto chargeable upon the Customs' Revenue of the island, are payable out of the Consolidated Fund from the 1st of April 1854. These payments will continue to be made out of the local revenue by way of advance; and on the Commissioners of Customs transmitting to this Board the accounts of such advances in each quarter, my Lords will cause the necessary charge to be made on the Consolidated Fund, in order that the amount thereof may be repaid by the Paymaster-general to the Receiver-general of Customs.

Audit Office.

The salaries of the Commissioners for Auditing the Public Accounts being payable out of the Consolidated Fund, while the other salaries, as well as the contingent expenses of the Audit Office, are payable out of the vote of Parliament, the Salary List transmitted by the Commissioners of Audit to the Paymaster-general every quarter should be confined to the salaries payable out of the vote of Parliament, as a distinct authority for the payment of the salaries of the Commissioners out of the Consolidated Fund will be issued to the Paymaster-general by this Board.

Commissioners of Lunacy.

As the salaries and travelling allowances of the Commissioners of Lunacy, and the salaries of their establishment, are continued on the Consolidated Fund, while the contingent expenses of the Commissioners are by the Act transferred to the votes, separate applications for advances should in future be made by the Commissioners of Lunacy to this Board, in accordance with that arrangement.

Police Courts.

The statement furnished to this Board quarterly, upon which the advances to the receiver of the police courts are authorised, should in future be divided into two statements; one for the salaries of the magistrates, the payment of which is charged on the Consolidated Fund; the other for the salaries of the clerks, ushers, ushers, gaolers, and messengers, and for the other expenses of the police courts which are payable out of the vote of Parliament. As provision has been made for the full amount of the expenses of the police courts, the fees, penalties, and forfeitures hitherto applied in diminution of the charge on the Consolidated Fund, are payable to the Exchequer; and the Receiver should pay over to the Paymaster-general for transfer to the Exchequer the amount of such receipts from the 1st of April last. The contributions to the Civil Superannuation Fund, received since the 1st of April last, should, in like manner, be paid to the Paymaster-general, for transfer to the Exchequer, and the same course should be followed quarterly in future.

A copy of the Act and of the Supplemental (Revenue) Estimates for 1854-55 should be transmitted to the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland, in order that his quarterly Schedules may in future be prepared in accordance with the classification of the charges adopted in those estimates, the voted charges being classed in a separate Schedule.

The following services, hitherto paid out of the Revenue of Customs, have been provided for under "Vote 3, Miscellaneous Charges," in the Civil Supplemental (Revenue) Estimates for the year 1854-55, viz.:

Difference of Trinity Light and Pilotage Dues under Reciprocity Treaties.	Trinity Dues, &c.
Treasurers of Counties for Corn Returns.	Corn Returns.
Quarantine Expenses.	Quarantine expenses.
Expenses of carrying out the Merchant Seamen's Act.	Merchant Seamen's Act.

The Customs Department will continue charged with the duty of making these payments, but they are no longer to be finally charged upon the revenue. The Commissioners will transmit to this Board quarterly accounts of the advances made out of the Customs Revenue for such services, that my Lords may authorise the Paymaster-general to issue out of the vote of Parliament to the Receiver-general of Customs the amounts necessary to replace such advances.

The following charges, hitherto defrayed from the revenues of Excise and Taxes, have also been provided for under Vote 3 of the Civil Supplemental Estimates for the year 1854-55, viz.:

Salaries of Inspectors of Corn Returns and Expenses.	Corn Returns.
Salaries of Process Servers, Ireland.	Process Servers.
Expenses of the Board of Fisheries, and building of Piers and Quays, Repairs of Boats, &c., Scotland.	Board of Fisheries, &c.
Grant to the Commissioners of Highland Roads and Bridges.	Highland Roads, &c.
Annuity to the Board of Manufactures in Scotland.	Board of Manufactures.

It is necessary that the payments for the first and second items should continue to be made by the collectors of the Revenue; and on receiving quarterly applications from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, my Lords will direct the Paymaster-general to repay the sums advanced to the account of the Receiver-general. With respect to the other three charges, my Lords will make arrangements for paying them in future by direct issues through the Paymaster-general.

The arrangement made by this Board in June 1840, under which an annual sum of 437 l. 12 s. 6 d. has been paid out of the Post-office revenue, to liquidate the principal and interest of loans made by the Public Works Loan Commissioners for the completion of roads in Carmarthen and Pembrokeshire, and which sum has been transferred to the votes for the year 1854-55 under the head of "Milford Road Fund," is one which my Lords are of opinion should cease after payment of the sum voted for the present financial year. The additional rates of postage imposed by the Act 6 Will. 4, c. 25, on letters between Great Britain and Ireland, by way of Milford Haven, as a security for the repayment of the loans in question, having been abolished by the introduction of the Penny Postage in 1840, it does not appear to my Lords desirable that the fictitious mode of extinguishing the debt which has been pursued since that year should be continued.

Militia charges.

Under the Act 49 Geo. 3, c. 120, s. 76, relating to the militia, the collectors of the revenue are required to pay to the clerks of general meetings, and to the clerks of subdivision meetings, the sums therein specified, as remuneration for their attendance. It is desirable that these charges should be removed from the Customs and Excise Revenues, and that they should be paid out of the general Militia Vote. My Lords therefore request that the Boards of Customs and Inland Revenue will issue the necessary directions for discontinuing such payments, and that the claimants may be referred to this Board for the future payment of the charges in question.

Allowances to officers of the late Tax Department.

Two charges have hitherto appeared in the finance accounts laid before Parliament, as payable out of the Excise Revenue, under the head of "Payments other than Charges of Collection," which are not included in either of the schedules annexed to the Act :

1st. Allowances to late officers of the Tax Department in Ireland.

2d. Expenses of Clothing on removal of Convicts in Ireland.

Clothing on removal of Convicts, Ireland.

As the Tax and Excise Departments are now consolidated, the first charge is clearly part of the general non-effective charge of the Inland Revenue Department, and should be paid out of the same fund as other similar charges.

The charge for clothing on the removal of convicts in Ireland was transferred to the votes in Class 3 of the Miscellaneous Estimates for the year 1849-50, and the charge on the Excise Revenue should have ceased from that year. My Lords will be prepared to direct the repayment to the Excise Revenue of all sums advanced for those expenses from the 1st April 1849, from which date an annual provision has been made for them in the votes of Parliament, on receiving from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue a statement of the sums paid in each financial year. As these expenses are no longer chargeable on the Excise Revenue, my Lords are of opinion that it will be desirable to discontinue the present mode of paying them through the agency of the Collectors of Excise, which was adopted under the provisions of the 117th section of the Act 7 Geo. 4, c. 74, and that arrangements should be made for paying them through the Paymaster of Civil Services in Dublin in future, for which purpose a communication is to be made to the Chief Secretary for Ireland.

With respect to the various charges in Schedule (B.), which are not specially referred to in this Minute, my Lords propose to issue separate directions as the charges come before them for payment.

It only remains for my Lords to prescribe the mode of adjustment to be pursued, under the authority of the 1st clause of the Act, in regard to such of the payments made out of the gross revenues or out of the Consolidated Fund before the passing of the Act, as cease to be chargeable on those funds, for any period subsequent to the 1st April 1854.

The Commissioners of Customs, and the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, are to prepare and transmit to this Board statements of the sums advanced by them in the quarter ending 5th July last, and in the present quarter, out of the gross revenues of Customs, Excise, and Taxes, for the several charges enumerated in Schedule (A.) of the Act, in order that my Lords may take the necessary steps for the repayment of the amounts to the several branches of the public revenue. As the advances made by the Revenue Boards for the Judicial Establishments in Scotland will be partly chargeable on the Consolidated Fund, and partly on the votes of Parliament, the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer will separate the proportions of such advances to be repaid to the gross revenue from each fund, in accordance with the division of such charges laid down for future issues at pages 3 & 4 of this Minute.

The Commissioners of Customs and Inland Revenue, and the Postmaster-General, are also to prepare statements of the several sums advanced out of the revenue in the quarter to 5th July last, and in the present quarter, for services described in Schedule (B.) of the Act ; and on receiving such statements my Lords will give the necessary directions for replacing the amounts to the different branches of revenue.

Transmit

Transmit copy of the Act and of the Supplemental Estimates to the Paymaster-general, and to the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland, and desire that they will prepare and transmit to this Board separate statements, in accordance with the provisions of the 1st clause of the Act, of the sums advanced to them in the quarter to the 5th July last and in the present quarter, out of the Consolidated Fund, for the several services described in Schedule (B.) of the Act, in order that my Lords may direct the issue of the necessary credits for the repayment of such advances to the Consolidated Fund.

Transmit to the Comptroller-general of the Exchequer the Royal Orders and Treasury Warrants authorising the issue of credits to the persons therein named for the several services transferred to the votes of Parliament by the Act 17 & 18 Vict. c. 94, and acquaint him that my Lords propose to authorise the grant of credits at the Bank of England to the several Revenue Departments, in precisely the same manner as they do in the case of the Paymaster-general and other public accountants.

Acquaint the Governor and Company of the Bank of England that Parliament having made provision, by votes, for the expenses of the Revenue Departments, under the authority of an Act passed in the last Session of Parliament (17 & 18 Vict., cap. 94), it will be necessary that Exchequer credits should be granted to the Receiver-general of Customs, the Receiver-general of Inland Revenue, and the Postmaster-general, to enable them to defray such expenses, and that these Exchequer credits will be drawn upon by the several departments under the regulations already in force in regard to other accounts opened in their books for those departments, except that they will only be operated upon by writes-off.

Transmit copies of this Minute to the several Revenue Departments for their information and guidance.

Write to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, the Commissioners for Auditing the Public Accounts, the Lunacy Commissioners, the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, the Collector of the Fee Fund of the Court of Session, Scotland, and the Public Works Loan Commissioners, in accordance with the directions contained in this Minute.

ROYAL SOCIETY.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 6 August 1855;—for,

AN ACCOUNT “ of the APPROPRIATION of GRANTS, amounting in the Aggregate to £.5,000, placed, by order of the Treasury, at the Disposal of the ROYAL SOCIETY, between the Years 1850 and 1854, transmitted on the 28th day of July 1855 to the Treasury by Lord Wrottesley, President of the Royal Society; together with a Copy of a LETTER from Lord Wrottesley to the Secretary of the Treasury, dated the 28th day of July 1855.”

LETTER from Lord Wrottesley, President of the Royal Society, to James Wilson, Esq., M.P.

The Royal Society, Somerset House,
28 July 1855.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th June, in which you state that the Government are not prepared this year to place 1,000 l. at the disposal of the Royal Society, and assign reasons for such determination.

With regard to the fund out of which the grant has hitherto been paid, the Council of the Royal Society were ignorant, until the receipt of your communication, that the advance in question proceeded from the source you mention, and I am sure that they would very much prefer that it should for the future be voted by Parliament in the way which you propose.

With respect to the terms of the advance, I have the honour to refer you to the letter of Lord John Russell, transmitted at the time when the grant was first bestowed, as the best evidence on that point.

I must be permitted to observe, that your letter seems to have been written under a misapprehension of the relation of the Royal Society to the Government in respect to the grant in question.

The Royal Society has ample funds of its own to meet its own expenses, and the Council neither require, nor have they solicited or received, aid from Government for the purpose of carrying out any of the objects which it more especially devolves upon them to execute, as representing the Society. In conformity with Lord John Russell's letter, already referred to, the Council considered the Government grant as a contribution on the part of the nation towards the promotion of science generally in the United Kingdom, regarding themselves as trustees of the grant, and accountable to the public for its due administration as long as it should be continued. They appointed a Committee of about 40 gentlemen of principal eminence in the different branches of science, to whom all applications for assistance from the Government grant were referred, and by whose advice the Council have been aided in its appropriation. The mode in which the Council have hitherto performed their trust will appear from the enclosed paper, detailing the distribution of the 5,000 l. which has been already received.

It is right also that I should explain, that the money devoted to the various researches specified in this paper, has been expended solely in instruments, materials, or other appliances required in performing the experiments and investigations which are severally described, and that by the aid of this contribution, the Government has in fact obtained for the advancement of science and the national character, the personal and gratuitous services of men of first-rate eminence, which without this comparatively small assistance would not have been so applied.

I have, &c.
(signed) Wrottesley,
President, R. S.

ACCOUNT of the APPROPRIATION of the Sum of 5,000 l. placed by HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT, in Five Annual Sums of 1,000 l. each, in the Years 1850 to 1854, inclusive, at the Disposal of the ROYAL SOCIETY, to be employed in aiding the Promotion of SCIENCE in the United Kingdom.

(A.)—APPROPRIATION of the Government Grant of 1,000 l. in the Year 1850.

1. For the publication of the Observations made at the Armagh (private) Observatory for the re-observation of Bradley's Stars, the work so published to be the property of Her Majesty's Government - -	350	-	-
The printing of this work is still in progress, and will shortly be completed.
2. For the publication of Vol. 1. of the Catalogue of Ecliptic Stars, observed at the Markree (private) Observatory, the work so published to be the property of Her Majesty's Government - -	150	-	-
This work has been printed, and the greater part of an impression of 500 copies presented, in the name of the British Government, to public institutions at home and abroad, and to individuals cultivating Astronomy in this and other countries, under the direction of a committee consisting of Sir John Herschel, the Astronomer Royal, and the Superintendent of the Nautical Almanack. The remainder of the impression is on sale at a low price, the proceeds to be credited to Her Majesty's Government.
3. To Charles Brooke, Esq., to be employed in the construction of an instrument for the Autographic Registry of the variations of the Terrestrial Magnetic Force, corrected for temperature - -	100	-	-
This instrument was completed, and exhibited in the Great Industrial Exhibition for 1851.
4. To T. Wharton Jones, Esq., to be employed in assisting him in investigations in Inflammation - - - - -	100	-	-
These investigations were in continuation of an inquiry in which Mr. Jones had been for some time engaged, and for which he had obtained, in 1850, the triennial prize of 300 l. founded by Sir Astley Cooper. Their continuation has led to further publications in the Philosophical Transactions, and in the Medico-Chirurgical Transactions, and is still in progress.
5. To Professor Owen, to have Drawings made of undescribed or unfigured parts of the Skeleton of the Megatherium - - -	100	-	-
The Drawings have been made, and are deposited at the Royal Society, accompanied by a Memoir drawn up by Professor Owen, part of which has been published in the Philosophical Transactions, and the remainder is now in course of publication.
6. To Lieutenant-colonel Sabine, for the purchase of Magnetical and Meteorological Instruments of a new construction, for trial of their merits at the Kew Observatory. The instruments to be the property of Her Majesty's Government - - - - -	100	-	-
These Instruments were purchased, and their merits examined at the Kew Observatory. The results of the examination have been published in the Transactions of the British Association.
7. To Dr. Stenhouse, to assist his researches into the chemical relations subsisting amongst the various genera of Plants - - - - -	100	-	-
This grant produced a valuable paper "On the action of Nitric Acid on various Vegetables," which was published in the Philosophical Transactions; and the full amount of the grant was subsequently replaced by Dr. Stenhouse at the disposal of the Committee, and became the subject of a fresh appropriation in 1853.
TOTAL Sum appropriated in 1850 - - - £.	1,000	-	-

(B.)—APPROPRIATION of the Government Grant of 1,000 l. in 1851.

1. To Dr. Thurnam, to assist in procuring exact Drawings of Crania of early British races - - - - -	50	-	-
The Drawings have been made, and are deposited with an accompanying Memoir at the Royal Society.
2. To Professor Stokes, for experiments to determine the Index of Friction in different Gases - - - - -	175	-	-
These experiments are in progress at the Kew Observatory, under Professor Stokes's direction.
3. To Dr. Hofmann, for a continuation of his investigations respecting Organic Bases - - - - -	100	-	-
These investigations were in continuation of researches of which the results were published in the Philosophical Transactions, and for which a Royal Medal was awarded. They are regarded by chemists as extremely important, and are still in progress.
4. To the Astronomer Royal, for the reduction and publication of the late Rev. T. Catton's Astronomical Observations - - - - -	50	-	-
These Observations, extending from 1791 to 1832, have been reduced, and the results published in the Transactions of the Royal Astronomical Society.
5. To John F. Miller, Esq., of Whitehaven, to obtain observations on the Fall of Rain, and on the minimum Temperature in Winter, at several stations in the Lake District of England - - - - -	50	-	-
These observations have been communicated to the Royal Society, and the results have been published in "Reports on the Meteorology of the Lake District," by Mr. Miller.
6. To Dr. W. B. Carpenter, for the execution of Drawings of Foraminifera, collected on the Australian Coast during the Surveying Expedition of Her Majesty's Ship "Fly" - - - - -	25	-	-
These Drawings have been deposited at the Royal Society, and have served, together with similar drawings, procured by grants in 1852 and 1854, as data from which Dr. Carpenter has drawn up an important monograph on this class of animals, which will be published in the forthcoming volume of the Philosophical Transactions.
7. To Leonard Horner, Esq., for the analysis of specimens of the Water of the Nile and of the Soil at different depths in the Valley of the Nile, which had been procured by the aid of a grant from the Donation Fund of the Royal Society - - - - -	50	-	-
The results of this analysis have been published in the Philosophical Transactions.
8. To William Hopkins, Esq., of Cambridge, for investigations on the Effect of Pressure on the Temperature of Fusion of certain substances - - - - -	250	-	-
These important experiments, in which Mr. Hopkins has been assisted by Messrs. Fairbairn and Joule, of Manchester, are still in progress. A report of the results hitherto obtained is expected to be presented to the Royal Society at its next Session.
9. To Dr. Miller, Mr. Gassiot, and Colonel Sabine, representing the Kew Committee of the British Association, for the Construction and Verification of Standard Meteorological Instruments - - - - -	150	-	-
By the aid of this and a subsequent grant of equal amount in 1852, the Kew Committee have been enabled to meet satisfactorily the extensive applications which have been made to them by the Governments of our own country and of the United States, to provide and verify Meteorological Instruments required for the Marine Meteorological Researches undertaken by those Governments, with a view to the interests of Trade and Navigation, as well as to those of General Science.
10. To Professor Owen, to defray the cost of Drawings of undescribed and unfigured Fossils from South America and Australia - - - - -	100	-	-
These Drawings have been executed, and are in number 72.
TOTAL SUM appropriated in 1851 - - - - -	£.	1,000	- -

(C.)—APPROPRIATION of the Government Grant of 1,000 l. in 1852.

1. To Professor William Thomson, of Glasgow, for experimental researches in several branches of Electrical Science - - -	50	-	-
This grant, as well as a subsequent one of 50 l. in 1853, was designed to assist in furnishing apparatus for various electrical researches, in which Professor Thomson was engaged. The results, as far as they have yet been obtained, have been communicated to the Royal Societies of London and of Edinburgh, and published in their Transactions, and in other scientific journals. The researches are still in progress.
2. To Dr. Tyndall, for experimental researches in the Diathermic and Conductive capacities of Crystalline and other Bodies - - -	50	-	-
This money has been expended in providing apparatus for the experimental researches referred to. The results, so far as they have been yet obtained, have been published in papers in the Philosophical Transactions, and the researches are still in progress.
3. To Professor Williamson, for experimental investigations into the Law of the Chemical Action of Masses - - - - -	100	-	-
The experiments are in progress, and the results hitherto obtained will shortly be communicated to the Royal Society.
4. To Mr. Joule, of Manchester, for experiments on the effects of Magnetism on the Dimensions of Iron and Steel Bars - - -	30	-	-
These experiments are still in progress.
5. To Mr. John A. Dale, of Balliol College, Oxford, for experiments on the relation of Metals with each other, and with Liquids in the Voltaic Circuit - - - - -	50	-	-
These experiments are still in progress.
6. To Professor Owen, for obtaining Anatomical Drawings of undescribed existing and extinct Animals - - - - -	100	-	-
Drawings, in number 43, have been executed, and part of the Grant yet remains to be similarly applied.
7. To Dr. Miller, Mr. Gassiot, and Colonel Sabine, for the construction and verification of Standard Meteorological Instruments - -	150	-	-
See Note to a similar appropriation in 1851. (No. 9.)
8. To Henry Gray, Esq., for investigations concerning the Spleen -	100	-	-
The results of these investigations are published in an Essay on the Spleen, for which the triennial Astley Cooper prize of 300 l. was awarded in 1853.
9. To Professor Beale, for investigation into the Chemistry of Morbid Products - - - - -	50	-	-
This investigation is still in progress.
10. To Dr. Carpenter, for the execution of Drawings of Foraminifera -	25	-	-
See Note to a similar appropriation in 1851 (No. 6.)
11. For the publication of Vol. 2 of the Markree Catalogue of Ecliptic Stars - - - - -	130	-	-
Vol. 2 has been published, and the edition of 500 copies disposed of, as in the case of Vol. 1 (1850, No. 2.)
12. To Professor William Thomson and Mr. Joule, for experiments on the Thermal Effects experienced by Fluids in passing through small Apertures - - - - -	100	-	-
The experiments referred to in this, and in subsequent grants of 100 l. in 1853, and of 200 l. in 1854, are still in progress. A memoir describing part of the results obtained has been presented to the Royal Society, and printed in the Philosophical Transactions.
13. To Dr. Frankland, for investigations into Organo-metallic compounds - - - - -	65	-	-
The results of this investigation have been communicated to the Royal Society in a Memoir, which will appear in the forthcoming volume of the Philosophical Transactions.
TOTAL Sum appropriated in 1852 - - - £.	1,000	-	-

(D.)—APPROPRIATION of the Government Grant of 1,000 l. in 1853.

1. To Dr. Waller, for investigating the results of the Section of Nerves - - - - -	100	-	-
An interim report of the progress of this investigation has been received by the Royal Society.
2. To Dr. James Thompson, C. E., of Glasgow, and Mr. Fairbairn, of Manchester, for experiments on the Friction of Discs revolving in Water, for the purpose of obtaining data required in calculations relating to Turbine Water Wheels and Centrifugal Pumps -	50	-	-
The results already obtained have been communicated to the Royal Society, and preparations have been made for renewing the experiments on a more extended scale.
3. To Captain Lefroy, for the Expenses of preparing for publication Observations on the Aurora Borealis made in North America -	20	-	-
The Observations have been in great measure prepared for publication.
4. To Warren De la Rue, Esq., for mounting the Huygenian Object-glass of 123 feet focal length - - - - -	250	-	-
This, with an appropriation of equal amount in 1854, was designed to meet an application made to the Royal Society by M. Struve, of St. Petersburg, to compare the appearance of Saturn as shown by the Huygenian Lens referred to, with that of the planet as seen in telescopes of modern date, in consequence of Huygens' representation of the ring not according with its appearance as now observed. Difficulties have been met with in carrying out this object in the method first proposed, which have occasioned delay; and the subject now stands for re-consideration.
5. To Professor William Thomson, of Glasgow, for experiments on the Thermal Effects of Electric Currents in unequally heated Conductors - - - - -	50	-	-
See Note to a similar appropriation in 1852 (No. 1).
6. To Professor William Thomson and Mr. Joule, for continuing the experiments on the Thermal Effects experienced by Fluids in passing through small Apertures - - - - -	100	-	-
See Notice to a similar appropriation in 1852 (No. 12).
7. To Dr. Marcet, for Expenses connected with his researches on the Excretions of Men and Animals - - - - -	50	-	-
The results were communicated in a paper presented to the Royal Society, and printed in the Philosophical Transactions.
TOTAL Sum appropriated in 1853 - - - £.	620	-	-

(E.)—APPROPRIATION of the Government Grant of 1,000 £, in 1854, and of a Balance carried from the preceding Year of 480 £. 10 s. 11 d.

1. To Robert Mallet, Esq., C.E., Dublin, for experiments on Earth-quake Waves - - - - -	£.	s.	d.
The apparatus for these experiments was prepared by means of a grant from the British Association. The experiments are proposed to be made at Holyhead, when a fitting time is arrived in the progress of the Harbour Works at that station.	150	-	-
2. To Dr. Marcet, for a continuation of his researches on the Excretions of Men and Animals - - - - -	50	-	-
See Note to a similar appropriation in 1853 (No. 7).
3. To Professor Eaton Hodgkinson, for experiments on the Strength of Materials - - - - -	100	-	-
This appropriation has been augmented by a gift of 200£. from Robert Stephenson, Esq., C.E. The experiments are in progress.
4. To Dr. Tyndall, for experimental researches in Heat and Magnetism - - - - -	100	-	-
The results of a part of these researches have been presented to the Royal Society, and will be published in the forthcoming volume of the Philosophical Transactions.
5. To Dr. Woods, of Parsonstown, Ireland, for experimental researches on the Heat developed in the Oxydation of certain Metals - -	20	-	-
The experiments are in progress, and an interim report has been presented to the Royal Society.
6. To Professor William Thomson, of Glasgow, and Mr. Joule, of Manchester, for experimental researches on Fluids in Motion, and on the Thermal Effects experienced by Fluids in passing through small Apertures - - - - -	200	-	-
See Note to an appropriation for the same purpose in 1852 (No. 12) and in 1853 (No. 6). A memoir containing the results of these researches, so far as they have yet been completed, has been presented to the Royal Society, and printed in the Philosophical Transactions.
7. To Warren De la Rue, Esq., for mounting the Huygenian Object-glass - - - - -	250	-	-
See Note to a similar appropriation in 1853 (No. 4).
8. To T. H. Huxley, Esq., for the publication of his Zoological Researches - - - - -	300	-	-
Mr. Huxley was employed under the orders of the Admiralty in a surveying expedition under Captain Owen Stanley, during which these researches were made. On his return he contributed two memoirs to the Royal Society, for which the Royal Medal was awarded him. They were printed in the Philosophical Transactions. The publication of the whole of his researches has been strongly recommended by the highest authorities in this branch of science, and will be accomplished by this grant. The work itself will be the property of Her Majesty's Government, and will be distributed in a manner analogous to that of the Markree and Armagh Star Catalogues.
9. For the publication of Vol. 3 of the Markree Catalogue of Ecliptic Stars - - - - -	132	1	7
Vol. 3 has been published, and the edition disposed of as already described in the cases of Vols. 1 and 2.
10. To Dr. W. Carpenter, for completing the Illustrations of Typical Forms of Foraminifera - - - - -	50	-	-
See Note to an appropriation for the same purpose in 1851 (No. 6).
11. To Nevil Maskelyne, Esq., of Oxford, for chemical researches on the solid Oils and Waxes of the Vegetable Kingdom - - -	100	-	-
These researches are in progress.
12. To Dr. Pavy, for continuing experimental researches on the Physiology of the Blood, of which a part has been recently communicated to the Royal Society - - - - -	50	-	-
The researches are in progress.
13. To Professor William Thomson for experiments in Thermal Effects of Electric Currents in unequally heated Conductors - - -	50	-	-
The experiments are in progress.

* The stock held by the Commissioners has always been valued in these Accounts at the prices on 20th November in each year. If those prices be higher at one period than another, in the same degree will the value of the securities appear to be greater or less, and so of the Balance deficient. The prices of stock on 20th November 1853 and 20th November 1854 were as follows:

	1853.	1854.
Consolidated 3 per Cents. - - - - -	94 $\frac{7}{8}$	91 $\frac{1}{2}$
Reduced 3 per Cents. - - - - -	93 $\frac{1}{2}$	90 $\frac{1}{2}$

New 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ per Cents. - - - - -	- - -	82 $\frac{3}{4}$
New 3 per Cents., Ireland - - - - -	96	89 $\frac{7}{8}$

Upon this principle the Balance deficient on 20th November 1854 is made to appear much larger than on 20th November 1853, the securities being necessarily valued at the rate in 1854, which is considerably less than in 1853.

THE Amount of INTEREST Credited to SAVINGS BANKS in Great Britain and Ireland, during the Year ending 20th November 1854.

Amount of Interest credited to Savings Banks on the Capital Sums invested with the Commissioners—	£. s. d.
Half-year ended 20th May 1854 - - - - -	531,725 6 11
Half-year ended 20th November 1854 - - - - -	534,823 7 9
	£. 1,066,548 14 8
Add, Interest actually paid during the period on drafts drawn by Trustees, and included in Column 2 - -	11,557 11 8
The TOTAL AMOUNT so credited, and paid therefore to the Trustees in their account with the Com- missioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, was - - - - -	£. 1,078,106 6 4

The sums actually paid to the Trustees as interest on the amounts withdrawn, as stated above: viz., £. 11,557. 11. 8., being cash transactions, and affecting the cash balances, are included in Column 2 of this Return.

The amounts of interest credited, but not paid, have, on the other hand, not been so inserted, because they are not cash transactions affecting the balances of money in the hands of the Commissioners; they are the amounts credited to the Trustees, and added to the capital of the Savings Banks in the Books of the National Debt Office, under the directions of the Act 9 Geo. 4, c. 92.

The Sums applied for Incidental Expenses, paid out of the Funds of the Savings Banks during the Year 1854 were as follows:—

From 20th November 1853 to 20th November 1854 (see Detail in Column 5 of this Account) was - £. 821. 7. 3.

The above-stated SUM of £. 821. 7. 3. was applied as follows, viz.:—

	£. s. d.
Salaries to Barrister and Clerk - - - - -	305 14 9
Postage of Letters - - - - -	515 12 6
TOTAL - - - £.	821 7 3

(^c) This includes 80*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* for extra Clerks, and 23*l.* 12*s.* gratuities to Bankers' Clerks, Servants, &c. The Secretary and Actuary have been called upon to occupy that part of the house not used for the business of the Bank.

(^d) Also eleven occasional Assistant Clerks.

(^e) In this amount is included 2*l.* 15*s.* for boys (assistants), and 30*l.* for the Chief Cashier's Servant, and 60*l.* for superannuated Officers.

(^f) In addition to this surplus, there is 5,630*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* Three per Cent. Reduced Annuities, being the balance of the surplus fund accrued prior to the 20th November 1828.

(^g) The high rate of interest on the capital for expenses is attributable to the annuity business of the Bank demanding the daily attendance of the Officers.

(^h) And house for Secretary.

General Note.—The number of hours given in the last column does not, in numerous instances, as appears by the returns received at the National Debt Office, show to anything like the full extent the time occupied in transacting the whole business of the Banks; the attention of the officers and clerks being much occupied with correspondence, attendance on Trustees and Managers at their meetings, half-yearly balances of accounts, preparation of returns to the Commissioners, and to Parliament, and various incidental matters in addition to the ordinary business arising from receipt and payment of money.

STAGE CARRIAGE DUTIES.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 12 June 1855;—for,

A LIST “ of all MEMORIALS and APPLICATIONS made to the Lords of the Treasury, and to the Board of Inland Revenue, as to COMPOSITIONS of MILEAGE DUTIES on STAGE CARRIAGES during this Year, 1855; showing the DATE of APPLICATIONS, the NAME and ADDRESS of APPLICANT, in respect of what VEHICLES, and the ANSWERS of the TREASURY or COMMISSIONERS.”

LIST of all MEMORIALS and APPLICATIONS made to the Lords of the Treasury as to COMPOSITION of MILEAGE DUTIES on STAGE CARRIAGES during this Year, 1855; showing the DATE of APPLICATIONS, the NAME and ADDRESS of APPLICANT, in respect of what VEHICLES, and the ANSWERS of the TREASURY.

(The following Names and Addresses are given as nearly as they can be made out, but some of them are scarcely legible in the original Memorials.)

—	Niblett & Taylor - -	Broad-street, Bristol - -	10 omnibuses.	These memorials were forwarded to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a letter from Mr. Bradfield, Secretary to the Stage Carriage Committee, dated 11 December 1854, and the following reply was made to him, dated Treasury Chambers, 13 February 1855. Sir, I AM directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you that the Chancellor of the Exchequer has laid before this Board the several memorials from stage coach proprietors in different cities and towns in England and Scotland, on the system of mileage duties on their conveyances, which accompanied your letter of the 11th December last, and that my Lords have taken the matter into their careful consideration. Their Lordships are of opinion that the system under the present law of computing the duty on the carriages, according to the distance actually travelled, is one that works fairly, as it may be reasonably assumed that the number of carriages employed is regulated by the amount of traffic, and that the duty therefore bears in most instances a fixed proportion to the earnings. Where, however, this is not the case, and it can be proved to the (continued)

My Lords are not prepared to grant the exemption from duty, solicited by the Memorialists, in favour of omnibuses, &c. taking passengers at 1d. per mile, as they consider that there is no such analogy between the cases of conveyances of the kind referred to, and that of the railways as to call for a similar concession to the former in this respect.

22 Feb.	H. Gray, Chairman J. C. Bradfield, Secretary	On behalf of the metropolitan stage carriage proprietors.*

* Extract from a Report of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, dated 18 May 1855, on the Memorial of the Metropolitan Stage Carriage Proprietors, dated 22 February last:

"We beg to state, that since the Memorials were referred to us, the points in question have been fully discussed with the parties interested, at an interview to which they were admitted by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and at which one of the members of our Board was present. It was then decided that the Government could not comply with the wishes of the Memorialists, and no further communication to them therefore appears to be necessary on the present occasion."

STAGE CARRIAGE DUTIES.

LIST of MEMORIALS and APPLICATIONS made to the Lords of the Treasury and to the Board of Inland Revenue, as to COMPOSITIONS of MILEAGE DUTIES on STAGE CARRIAGES, during this Year, 1855, &c.

STAGE CARRIAGE DUTIES.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons,
dated 11 July 1855 ;—for,

COPIES “ of APPLICATIONS from John Greenwood, of Manchester, and Chaplin & Horne, of London, to the Board of Inland Revenue, requesting to be allowed to COMPOUND for STAGE CARRIAGE DUTIES :”

“ And, of LETTER from the Board of Inland Revenue to Messieurs Chaplin & Horne.”

No. 1.

COPY LETTER from Mr. Greenwood to the Board of Inland Revenue.

Gentlemen,

Pendleton, near Manchester,
19 March 1855.

I BEG leave most respectfully, as a Stage Carriage Proprietor of 22 licences, to approach your Honourable Board on the present occasion, for the purpose of detailing cases of hardship and oppression in connexion with my business, by which I have already sustained considerable losses, and in the event of no relief being extended to me threatens to be destructive to my trade.

In humbly submitting my case for the consideration of your Honourable Board, I rely on the kind attention shown to my late father and myself for the last 30 years.

Permit me to remark that, in order to meet the requirements of the manufacturing community of this district, it is essential to have cheap fares. I am therefore compelled to furnish accommodation by the whole of my conveyances at a price not exceeding 1 d. per mile, and in some cases at less than $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per mile, or a distance of three miles for 2 d.

The rate of fares here quoted have not been adopted as a temporary expedient in consequence of competition, but have been found for the last three years to be indispensably necessary to accommodate the working population.

It is to be regretted that, during the last twelve months, I have been reluctantly compelled to reduce considerably the number of these cheap conveyances, as will appear by the following statement of duties paid in respect of the same ; viz.,—

Paid in 1853 for mileage and licences	-	-	-	1,710	2	-
„ 1854 „ „	-	-	-	1,407	9	2

The inevitable consequence of such a reduction, as will be apparent to your Honourable Board, has been a great sacrifice of property in relinquishing carriages which have not been remunerative, and have therefore been withdrawn from the road, to the injury of the proprietor and inconvenience of the public.

CORRESPONDENCE RELATING TO

The following cases of oppression are extracted from the receipts of 17 conveyances :

R O U T E.	TOTAL RECEIPTS for 6 Months.	Licences and Mileage.	Per Centage of Tax.	R E M A R K S.
Two Omnibuses from Bowden Railway Station to Knutsford and Northwich; 14 miles.	603 7 3	97 6 -	16 - -	-- These Conveyances run in connexion with the South Junction Trains. Vide Bradshaw's Guide, p. 92.
Four Omnibuses plying between Pendleton to the Salford and Altrincham Railway Stations, and to Stretford Road; 3 miles.	1,200 1 1	178 7 -	15 - -	-- These Conveyances are chiefly supported by the two Railway Stations.
Six Omnibuses plying between Old Trafford Vine Grove and Brooks' Bar to Manchester; 2 miles.	1,825 - 9	256 3 -	14 - -	-- Brooks' Bar and Vine Grove are improving neighbourhoods, but not sufficiently large to supply passengers both ways to and from Manchester.
Three Conveyances plying from Pendleton to Hollinwood, Newton Heath, and Failsworth; 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles.	1,297 6 6	189 16 6	14 15 -	-- Chiefly supported by the operative silk weavers, the traffic being regulated by the prosperity of that branch of trade.
Eccles and Manchester; 4 miles -	112 7 4	20 1 -	18 - -	-- This Omnibus runs for the accommodation of parties residing some distance from the Railway.
Swinton and Manchester; 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles -	125 4 4	20 14 -	15 10 -	-- Swinton is upwards of 2 miles from any Railway Station.

It is quite evident from the foregoing Returns that I cannot any longer maintain the whole of these conveyances, unless your Honourable Board is pleased to extend immediate relief by permitting me to compound for the present duties. The four stage carriages plying to the Salford and Altrincham Railway Stations are to a great extent supported by those lines, and since the booking offices of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company have been removed from the former station, the omnibus traffic has reduced.

I have now briefly stated my grievances to your Honourable Board, which prove that I have been forced during the past year to reduce the number of conveyances in consequence of the operation of the mileage duties, and I have furnished a true and faithful account of the receipts of those conveyances to show that I have no alternative but to make a further reduction unless some relief be granted. The result of such a step would be in a great measure to discontinue my business, which I am desirous to preserve, and the loss of my capital.

In submitting my request I rely on the justice of my case, and appeal to your Honourable Board in humble confidence that you will give it a favourable consideration, and that you will feel justified in affording me the relief which it is in your power to give, not only on the ground of public necessity, but as an act of justice and right to an oppressed trader.

I have, &c.

(signed) John Greenwood.

To the Honourable
The Board of Inland Revenue, London.

No. 2.

COPY LETTER from Messrs Chaplin & Horne to the Board of Inland Revenue.

Branch Office, Euston Station,
23 March 1855.

Sirs,

WE beg most respectfully to lay before your Honourable Board the result of two years' working of omnibuses between this station of the London and North Western Railway and the City, as also to and from the west end of London. You will perceive that we have not averaged four persons per trip for the the two years, that therefore the duty, as now assessed, is a hardship which we are unable to bear, being twenty per cent. of the receipts.

That the duty for the conveyance of 16 persons presses much too seriously on our returns; in fact, that number is but seldom conveyed, as the average of four must show.

That it is needful to run to and from every train (or nearly so) must be admitted, as it is impossible to calculate on the trains which the public may select. In order to cultivate traffic, and accommodate the public, it is necessary to run to and from most trains even as late as 10 p.m.

That the business which these omnibuses possess is not that of a street or road omnibus, inasmuch as they traverse cross streets, and not any direct route on which traffic exists.

To enable us to continue this public accommodation and thereby increase traffic (in which the Government are interested to the extent of the duty), we pray you to put us on a more liberal footing, by either taking our duty on the same terms as of railways, or by allowing us to compound.

Trusting this appeal will have your favourable consideration,

We are, &c.
(signed) Horne & Chaplin.

The Honourable
The Commissioners of Stamps.

We may observe that ours are the only omnibuses to and from the station.

No. 3.

COPY LETTER from Board of Inland Revenue to Messrs. Chaplin & Horne.

Gentlemen,

Inland Revenue, Somerset House,
London, 17 May 1855.

WITH reference to your application to the Commissioners of the 23d of March last, and letters to Mr. Pressly of the 14th and 28th ultimo,

I am now to acquaint you that the Board have carefully considered the subject to which you refer, and are willing, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, to accept a composition at the rate of two-thirds of the amount of the duty which would otherwise be payable according to the licences for the journees performed by your omnibuses to and from the Euston Station, and the other specified stations on the North Western Railway, upon condition that a certificate is given by the Railway Company that each of the carriages is required to attend at the railway station on the arrival and departure of each train.

Should these terms be acceded to, the Board will be glad to be furnished with the numbers of the carriages and other particulars of the licences, to enable them to issue the necessary instructions for the guidance of the officers.

Messrs. Chaplin & Horne, Euston Square.

I am, &c.

The General Board of Health, Whitehall,
7 July 1855.

Sir,

I AM directed by the President of the General Board of Health to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th ultimo, asking for a "Copy of the instructions under which Mr. Rammell acted" in the matter of the Thames Marsh Drainage, and for which service a sum of 595 l. 19 s. 2 d. was paid to Mr. Rammell, and charged in the Civil Contingencies Account for 1854; and I am to state that it does not appear from the documents in this office, that any instructions beyond those contained in the following extracts, which are taken from the Minutes of the late General Board of Health, were given to Mr. Rammell on the subject.

The Honourable W. Cowper,
Home Office.

I have, &c.
(signed) J. F. Campbell,
Assistant Secretary.

EXTRACTS from MINUTES of the GENERAL BOARD of HEALTH, 14th October 1853.

Ordered, THAT it be an instruction to Mr. Rammell, that on visiting Charlton for the coming inquiry under the Public Health Act, he extend his inquiries over the Plumstead and Erith Marshes, carefully examining the general drainage of those marshes with a view to supply the Board with information as to the Works now existing for draining them, and as to the probable benefit and profit of an improved system of drainage by steam power.

Ordered, That the attention of Mr. Rammell be called to the evidence bearing upon these marshes in the Second Report of the Metropolitan Sanitary Commissioners; and that he be informed that as a conference with the Board on the subject has been fixed for the 21st, the Board would wish to have the result of his inquiries before that day. It was also directed that the propriety of communicating on the subject with Sir Culling Eardley should be suggested to Mr. Rammell.

EXTRACT from MINUTES, 26th June 1854.

READ a letter from the Home Office, inclosing one from Sir C. Eardley, asking for the services of the superintending inspector of the Board in the preparation of evidence to be given before the Select Committee on the Thames Marsh Drainage.

Ordered, That Mr. Rammell be directed to afford such assistance, in concert with Mr. Austin, and that inquiry be made of the Home Office as to the mode in which any expenses that may be incurred are to be defrayed.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of 22d July 1854.

READ a letter from H. Waddington, Esq., Home-office, with reference to the application from the Board as to the source from which the cost of Mr. Rammell's inquiries, in connexion with the drainage of the Thames Marshes, was to be met, stating, that as the Committee have made their Report, these inquiries will now be unnecessary.

Ordered, That he be informed that the inquiries have been made, and Mr. Rammell examined before the Committee.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of 7th August 1854.

READ a letter from Messrs. Rammell and Lister, transmitting their account of the expenses of engineering evidence for the Thames Marshes Drainage Committee of the House of Commons.

Ordered, That the account be referred to Mr. Austin for consideration.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of 7th January 1854.

THE Board directed that Mr. Rammell should be requested to add to his Report on the drainage of the Plumstead Marshes :

1. A proximate estimate of the expense of the proposed drainage works.
 2. An estimate of the annual charge upon the land for the amount of such expense, &c.
 3. A proximate estimate of the increased value of the land from the execution of the works.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of 16th January 1854.

THE Board directed that a copy of Mr. Rammell's Report on the drainage of the Plumstead Marshes be forthwith transmitted to Sir Culling Eardley.

THAMES MARSH DRAINAGE.

RETURN, in DETAIL, of the EXPENSES included under the Sum of £. 595. 19 s. 2 d. respecting the THAMES MARSH DRAINAGE, paid to Mr. T. W. Rammell, C. E., and charged in the Civil Contingencies Account for 1854; and Copy of the INSTRUCTIONS under which Mr. Rammell acted.

(Mr. Masters Smith.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
10 July 1855.
